VICTORIA, BRITISH COLUMBIA, TUESDAY, AUGUST 1, 1978
15 CENTS DAILY, 30 CENTS SATURDAY

Award Cut Over Belt

A Victoria man has had his B.C. Supreme Court damage award for injuries in a traffic accident more than two years ago chopped by a quarter because he wasn't wearing a seatbelt.

Kim Anthony Charles Lucas, then 19, suffered a fractured pelvis and several less serious injuries when the car in which he was a passenger left West Saanich Road near the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory May 8, 1976, and rolled over several times.

He sued the driver of the car, Susan Raper (formerly Davis), then 17 and the owner of the car, her mother, Dorothea Davis.

Mr. Justice Kenneth Meredith assessed damages for pain and suffering, past and future, loss of pleasures of physical recreation and a life-time limp at $28,000 with an additional $8,000 for the risks in a further operation if one becomes necessary. Special damages and passed wages lost of $4,000 had also been agreed on.

Meredith said Lucas was sitting in the right front bucket seat of a small Cortina which was equipped with seat belts that were rarely used. Before the accident, Lucas recognized the danger he was in and warned the driver to slow down several times but she did not do so and the accident resulted, Meredith said.

Liability was admitted but the defendants said the award should be reduced by 25 per cent because Lucas wasn't wearing a seatbelt.

Meredith said he would do this if the defendants established that the injury would not have occurred had the seatbelt been used.

He said Lucas wasn't excused because of forgetfulness or neglect from his obligation to care for his safety by using a seat belt.

He said the seatbelt was designed to hold the passenger firmly in place in an accident such as this. An expert witness said Lucas' injuries would not have occurred had the belt been worn.

FOOD PRICES LEVELLING OFF

OTTAWA (CP) — Recent sharp rises in food prices have levelled out and consumers can expect stable prices for the rest of the year, the anti-inflation board predicted Monday.

Reporting on its regular monthly survey of supermarket prices in 12 cities across the country, the board said the price rise in the four weeks to July 21 was the smallest this year.

In that period, prices increased six-tenths of one per cent. The increases apparently peaked in early July, when they were rising at 4½ per cent a month, and have been rising more slowly since, the board says.

But board officials caution that it will likely be September before the price moderation shows up in Statistics Canada's consumer price index, the most commonly used inflation measure. The board's survey is more current than the consumer price index.

Prices for fresh produce in particular should start declining in late summer and fall as domestic supplies become available, the board survey notes.

In the past four weeks, beef and fresh vegetable prices have declined significantly, the board says. In the past six months, beef prices particularly have led generally escalating consumer prices. Prices for poultry, margarine, shortening, apples, potatoes and other root vegetables rose in the past month.

In the four weeks to July 21, beef prices declined by 2.9 per cent, the survey found. Recent declines in live and wholesale beef prices suggest continuing lower beef prices in coming weeks, the board says. But for the longer term, beef will rise again, it predicts.

Beef prices now are 49 per cent higher than a year ago, according to the board's survey.

U.K. Shops Dump B.C. Salmon

Times News Services

LONDON — Supermarkets and stores are clearing their shelves of canned salmon today — especially salmon from Canada and the United States — in the wake of a British government health warning.

The alert went out after four older persons, who ate salmon allegedly from Canada, became ill in Birmingham with symptoms of deadly botulism poisoning.

"We just do not know whether this was an isolated case or if there are thousands of contaminated tins in the country," a department spokesman said.

"Our strong advice is, if you have a can of salmon from America or Canada, do not eat it.

"If anyone is in doubt, they should avoid all tinned salmon."

The spokesman said: "We are very worried by the situation and we do not issue such warnings lightly."

The bulk of salmon sold here, where it has been considered a delicacy for years, comes from Canada and the United States. It is bought by a number of British firms and sold under various brand names.

Sainbury's, one of the large supermarket chains here, ordered all 187 branches to stop selling canned salmon of all kinds "to avoid confusion."

An Ottawa spokesman said today that possibly contaminated salmon reported sold in Britain does not come from Canada but from the U.S.

Health and fisheries officials said they are not yet able to explain why the cans are labelled Produce of Canada when they are processed in Alaska, and shipped to England via the Peter Pan Seafood Co. of Seattle, the spokesman said.

"Naturally our main concern is whether Canadians are in danger," he said. "However, there is a very good chance the salmon cans didn't come into Canada."

In Vancouver, the head of the salmon inspection program for B.C. also stressed that there is no health danger from canned salmon sold in Canada.

Major Prisoner Swap Includes Shcharansky?

VIENNA (Reuter) — Jailed Russian dissident Anatoly Shcharansky will shortly be flown to the West as part of a major East-West swap of prisoners, sources involved in the bargaining said today.

But plans for Shcharansky, convicted of treason by a Moscow court last month, to be traded for East German spies Guenter and Christel Guillaume have been vetoed by West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt, the sources said.

Instead the Soviet Union, acting through an East bloc negotiator, has indicated its willingness to exchange the 30-year-old dissident computer scientist for an unidentified person being held in the West.

Details of the swap were being worked out in Europe and the United States this week by the Communist negotiator and U.S. state department representatives, with an Israeli parliamentarian acting as intermediary.

The Israeli, billionaire Samuel Flatto-Sharon was also engaged in parallel negotiations with Russian go-betweens to secure the release of up to 12 Jewish dissidents jailed or exiled in the Soviet Union, the sources told Reuters news agency in an interview here.

Shcharansky's release was to have involved Guillaume, a personal political adviser to Willy Brandt whose arrest as a spy in 1974 led to Brandt's resignation as West German chancellor.

But the sources said Schmidt, who succeeded Brandt as government head, refused to release the Guillaumes on political grounds during a personal interview with the East Bloc negotiator.

Guillaume has served 2½ years of a 13-year prison term after being convicted in 1975 of spying for East Germany. His wife Christel is also in a West German jail on related charges.

Flatto-Sharon has been active in previous prisoner exchanges with East German lawyer Wolfgang Vogel, most recently in a complicated three-way trade last April which was to have included Shcharansky.

The sources, who have been directly involved in bargaining between Tel Aviv, Washington, East Berlin and Moscow, said the Russian withdrew their offer to free the dissident scientist as a follow-up to the April deal when rumors of an impending court case against him led to protests in the West.

Shcharansky was sentenced on July 14 to three years in jail and 10 years in a labor camp.

Boy, 15, Caught With Coke

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A 15-year-old South American boy was arrested at Los Angeles International Airport Monday with 2½ pounds of cocaine stashed in his suitcase, authorities said.

U.S. Customs inspectors said they found the cocaine, which they said had a street value of $700,000, during a routine search of the boy's luggage.

The boy was the youngest smuggling suspect ever arrested at Los Angeles International Airport.

Two Colombians, meanwhile, were arrested at the Mexico City International Airport with 14 pounds of cocaine, worth $5 million, hidden inside six pairs of shoes and a suitcase with a false bottom.

Dollar Skids To New Low

Times News Services

The battered U.S. dollar crashed to another low against the Japanese yen and skidded on European money exchanges today, sending gold to its highest price in history.

The dollar hit a low of 187.00 yen in hectic trading before rebounding slightly to close at 188.00. The Japanese government called the drop "noteworthy" and said it might tighten foreign exchange controls to stem the dollar's decline.

The Canadian dollar followed its U.S. counterpart downward on world markets and continued its decline against the American dollar as well. The U.S. dollar was up 2-5 to $1.1389 in Montreal at noon today and in New York the Canadian dollar was down 31-100 at 87.8 cents.

The U.S. currency also sank in Europe and investors, worried over the dollar's future, shifted their funds into gold, a traditional hedge against economic uncertainty.

The price of gold soared in hectic London trading today, reaching an all-time high of $207.50 U.S. an ounce before dropping back in late afternoon dealing.

The big five London bullion dealers fixed the price of the metal at $205.10 an ounce at the late afternoon fixing, down $2.40 from the record-high morning fixing price of $207.50.

But it was still $4.85 above Monday's close of $200.35. The previous high, set last Friday, was $201.30.

Demand for gold was so strong that the price inched upward 12.5 cents after the formal fixing.

In Paris the American dollar opened at 4.3525 francs, its lowest figure since Nov. 3, 1975, when it touched the same figure. At Monday's close it was 4.3625 francs.

In Tokyo the U.S. dollar ended the day's trading at 188 yen, down sharply from the previous low of 190.30 and the close of 190.80 on Monday.

Immediately after opening at 188.50, the dollar slumped to the new, lower rate. It has lost 26.7 per cent in value since Jan. 4, when it was traded at 237 yen. Compared with the long-established postwar rate of 360 yen, the ratio of depreciation came to 92.5 per cent.

Earth Opening Beneath Kamloops Homes

VANCOUVER (CP) — At least 20 new houses could collapse in the immediate future after a massive land shift in a picturesque valley overlooking the South Thompson River in Kamloops, officials said Monday.

One family already has had to evacuate its $60,000 house, after huge cracks opened up in the crumbling silt around the home.

The house now is hanging precariously over a 10-metre-high cliff, and the young owners and their two-year-old baby are living in a tent in the backyard after being warned the house could collapse at any time.

"This is just the tip of the iceberg," Mike Latta Kamloops mayor said Monday night. "This is a very serious situation — it's a natural disaster, and at least another 20 homes are in immediate danger.

"We want to see something done, but it is the provincial government's responsibility. The provincial highways department originally approved the development, and we are not going to assume financial responsibility."

"This building should never have been allowed, the whole area is geologically very unstable," a senior civil engineer said.

Civil engineers and geologists have prepared a rush report for provincial highways and Public Works Minister Alex Fraser, who was expected to take action today.

"The bureaucrats are passing the buck, while my house is collapsing around me," said teacher Don Erickson, 28, owner of the house which has begun to collapse.

"It's crumbling before our eyes. We've literally put our last penny into our home, and I'm sure not going to stand back and see it go down the drain.

"Unless someone helps us we're going to have to declare bankruptcy.

"We've taken out all our furniture and belongings and stored it with friends in eight different houses," he said. "All we've got left there is the tent, but a crack has opened up under that now, so we're going to have to stay with friends.

"My insurance company say it's a natural disaster and won't help; Kamloops City Council won't do anything; and my lawyer says my mortgage company will sue me if I don't pay them back. My last hope is the provincial government."

The Ericksons moved into their house three years ago. They paid $46,500 then, and still have a $34,000 mortgage.

"We noticed the first crack in the land about two months ago," said Debby Erickson. "It was quite a way from the house, and the city engineer's department assured us we had nothing to worry about.

"Then the cracks started getting bigger and bigger and much nearer the house. The foundation has sunk five inches, the floors have twisted — it's an uphill walk from the bathroom to the living room — and there are cracks in the walls."

Sextuplets Born

ALGHERO, Sardinia (UPI) — A 26-year-old woman gave birth to sextuplets at the Alghero hospital early today, but all six babies died later, the Italian news agency ANSA said.

Fishermen Fight Hydro 2,4-D

VANCOUVER (CP) — Northern Vancouver Island residents are fighting a proposal by B.C. Hydro to spray the herbicide 2,4-D near the site of a proposed $1 million salmon replenishment project.

Greg McDade, a lawyer for the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union, one of the groups opposed to the spraying, said B.C. Hydro plans to spray 2,4-D to control alder and other growth on sections of its power line right-of-way between Woss Lake and Port McNeill.

One of the sections to be sprayed, he said, is near an area where Nimpkish River meets Nimpkish Lake, the site of the proposed salmon project to be managed by the Nimpkish Indian band.

The band is opposed to the spraying because its members say they fear a repeat of the environmental damage that occurred with the misuse of DDT.

In a letter to the Mount Waddington Regional District, which also opposes the spraying, Chief Roy Edgar Cranmer says the band blames non-Indian ways for the "rape" of the valley.

"We cannot permit and will not allow the use of poisons in the valley," he says. "Their use will only jeopardize our restorative efforts before they have a chance to show any improvement.

"It appears that money as usual is the only consideration to the corporate interests wishing to destroy alder. Money before the environment, money before the birds and mammals, money before the fish and money before the people."

He says the band's salmon project, funded by the federal government, will replace the fish destroyed by DDT and restore the Nimpkish drainage basin to its former status as one of the prime salmon areas in the province.

The B.C. Hydro application now is being examined by the provincial pesticide control appeal board.

Band manager Alfred Pearly said Monday the band will continue to oppose spraying even if the board rules against the band.

"I think it will be very difficult for the band to accept such a decision and we are prepared to fight it," she said. "We will only become independent through the salmon enhancement project."

Nola Miller, spokesman for a local committee also opposed to the spraying, said opposition is based on confusion over the herbicide's safety.

"We feel we are caught in the middle of this scientific war between B.C. Hydro which says it is safe and other authorities who are dubious about its safety," she said.

Also opposed to the spraying are the planning committee of Malcolm Island, village councils in Port Hardy and Alert Bay and the municipal council in Port McNeill.

NANOOSE BAY FIRE STILL UNDER WATCH

Moriarity Mountain forest fire, the largest on Vancouver Island, has stabilized but is not yet considered under control.

The blaze has burned six days and covered about 1,500 acres since starting from a lightning strike Wednesday in MacMillan Bloedel lands at about 2,500 feet near Labor Day Lake west of Nanoose Bay.

Company spokesman Tom Williams said today there had been some confusion as to whether the fire was under control because the situation had not changed for a couple of days and with firefighting efforts the fire had contained itself.

B.C. Forest Service does not consider the fire under control and points out that winds could result in a sudden breakout. Eleven ground tankers, three aircraft and 170 men with equipment are on the fire lines in rough, steep country covering mature timber, fresh slash, young plantations and alpine scrub.

No sign of a break in warm, dry weather throughout most of B.C. is expected for the next two or three days, although some rain drizzle is expected on the west coast of Vancouver Island and the northern mainland coast, with the possibility of more lightning in the interior.

There were 216 fires burning in the province today, down slightly from Monday although 28 new fires were reported in the past 24 hours.

Six new fires in the district, which includes Vancouver Island, were attributed to careless smoking, an escaped campfire, an undetermined cause and two lightning strikes.

HOLDS DENTURES FIRM WITHOUT DAILY "FIXINGS"

Snug Cushions hold dentures comfortably tight for weeks

No more "fixings" every morning with messy powders or creams. Even if dentures need "fixing" after every meal, here's important news. Snug cushions restore dentures' holding power so dentures stay comfortably tight for weeks. Snug, the soft, effective temporary aid, forms a "comfort bond" between dentures and gums. Sticks to dentures, not to gums. Rinse, scrub or soak Snug fresh and clean. Easy to remove, but won't wash off or flake away. So, end daily "fixings"! Use Snug to hold dentures comfortably tight for weeks.

B.C. Bank Workers' Union Pulls Out, Plans to Regroup

By MIKE HUGHES
Times Staff

The bank workers' section of the Service, Office and Retail Workers Union of Canada (SORWUC) is pulling out of negotiations with banks in B.C. but will be back to fight again, a union spokesman said today.

Dodie Zerr said from Vancouver the move was made because of a lack of money and a realization that the union needed more members at more banks in order to have the required clout.

But it is only Round One for the little union, she said. The United Bank Workers section of SORWUC is down but not out.

She said the 2.3 million—member national labor body is as much to blame for the difficulty in organizing bank workers as the anti-union attitude on the part of bank management.

She said the CLC, which has its own campaign to organize bank employees, has told its affiliates not to support SORWUC.

"We are well aware that we need the support of the whole labor movement," Zerr said.

"That is why we are so bitter at what the CLC has done."

SORWUC members at three B.C. branches had voted to take strike action against the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce to back contract demands.

Zerr said the union had to decide whether to go ahead and negotiate and perhaps come off with "a crummy contract" or to regroup and come back later and get a better deal for the employees.

The decision was to regroup — to build up a more solid core of committed members.

In the meantime, the union members at certified banks will likely apply for decertification, she said, and the indication at meetings last week was that most of the SORWUC members would retain their membership.

The union holds 26 of the 42 bank branch certifications won across the country. There are 24 in B.C. and two in Saskatchewan, where negotiations will continue.

A CLC official today denied that the labor body has ordered its affiliates not to help SORWUC.

However, the official said most B.C. unions support a CLC bid to organize bank employees on a national rather than a provincial basis.

A national drive gives the employees more bargaining power, the official said.

A CLC official will meet today with the Canada Labor Relations Board to discuss ways that it can support the B.C. workers. It is ready to help them bargain their first contracts, a CLC official added.

In its national drive, the CLC has organized employees into unions at 44 branches of chartered banks in Nova Scotia, British Columbia and Ontario, a spokesman said.

SORWCU asked for finanical help from the CLC last year but the Congress said it does not provide funds to non-affiliated unions.

The Congress suggested that SORWUC join the labor body and become part of the the CLC's national drive to organize bank workers.

However, Zerr said this is not suitable to SORWUC members because they would just be swallowed up in the larger body.

SORWUC has always attributed its success to the fact that bank workers are organizing bank workers, clerical workers organizing clerical workers.

The union members also view SORWUC as part of a movement for women's rights.

"We believe that women should control the unions in which we are the majority," a union spokesman said last year in a letter to the CLC.

Joe Morris, then president of the CLC, said that history has shown it will take a strong well-organized movement to deal with the strongly entrenched banking industry.

It was SORWUC which won a major victory last year when the Canada Labor Relations Board ruled that the union could organize on a branch-by-branch basis.

Zerr said SORWUC had little money at the time it had to cover the legal costs and then once the decision was given, the CLC stepped in.

Not only do they start their own campaign but they ask their affiliates not to support the union that won the major victory, she said.

"Its really outrageous."

Fire Laid To Wiring

Oak Bay fire officials believe faulty wiring was the cause of a fire that resulted in about $12,000 damage to an older single-storey house at 2072 Chaucer Monday.

A fire department spokesman said the fire, reported at 5:30 p.m., was confined to the attic and roof.

Vacant Land In City Mapped

Greater Victoria vacant land with potential for residential development has been mapped by Central Mortgage and Housing Corp.

Part of a land-mapping program, CHMC has investigated detailed private and public ownership and placed the land into time frames of when development could occur.

The mapping was done with the aid of other levels of government and has also taken place in 26 other cities.

Rings exchanged in Moscow

Christina Weds Jobless Soviet Boyfriend

They rode to the ceremony in a borrowed Chevrolet.

The 27-year-old daughter of the late Aristotle Onassis became the wife of 37-year-old Sergei Kauzov in a 10-minute civil marriage ceremony attended by 11 invited guests and a group of Russian photographers. It was the bridegroom's second marriage.

The nuptials took place in Moscow's Central Palace of Marriages, a huge ornate green mansion that once belonged to czarist nobility. His mother, with whom the couple will live in a two-room apartment, was present, but his nine-year-old daughter by his first marriage was not.

While policemen held back a crowd of about 300 spectators and Western journalists who were barred from the ceremony, the couple pulled up to the building n an old car loaned them by the Greek embassy. She wore a long purple chiffon dress and carried red and white roses. He wore a dark grey business suit.

The newlyweds leave Thursday for a honeymoon at Lake Baikal, in Siberia, a favorite Russian holiday spot. On their return they are to live in the two-room Moscow apartment he has shared with his mother since his divorce earlier this year.

Kauzov met Christina in Paris in 1976, the year after she inherited control of the Onassis shipping empire as her father's only surviving child. He was head of the Paris office of Sovfrakht, the Soviet freight firm.

She arrived in Moscow in June, maintaining that she had come on business and that there was no romance. But meanwhile he had divorced his wife and quit his $235-a-week job.

She has said they plan to live in Moscow and she wants to raise a family. But she also has said she will leave the management of her interests to associates in London, Monte Carlo and New York.

Kauzov, son of a worker, graduated from the Institute of Foreign Languages and is a longtime Communist party member.

"Does it make any difference whether you are a capitalist or a Communist if you happen to be in love with each other?" he once asked an interviewer.

Piracy 'Out Of Control'

HALIFAX (CP) — The theft of boats and property from unsuspecting yachtsmen travelling the Caribbean area has become a great hazard, British sailor Peter Prankherd said Monday.

Prankherd and his family, who live of their yacht, a converted Scottish trawler, were victims of an internationally-sought drug runner, smuggler and murderer, the Briton said in an interview.

"Piracy in the Caribbean at this point is completely out of control and so many Canadian and American yachtsmen know nothing about this."

Prankherd displayed Monday a file, about 10 centimetres thick, which he has accumulated on the problem of the pirating of private vessels in the area.

He said they were asked by immigration authorities in Gibralter last year to provide a lift for a West German sailor who lived with them for seven weeks before disappearing one night with $10,000 worth of gear.

It turned out the man was wanted by a number of police forces.

"He had loaded our two whalers with navigation gear and food, and fled," the former stockbroker said.

Easy Listening For the Queen

Hard-hatted Edward

EDMONTON (CP) — While the Queen lunched on chicken and Saskatoon berry pie Monday, her husband and young Prince Edward were 1,015 metres underground in a pitch-dark potash mine at Cory, Sask.

The Royal Family arrived here behind schedule Monday night following a weather-delayed flight from Lloydminster, Sask., and today planned trips to Grande Prairie and Peace River before returning to Edmonton for a concert.

At a lunch in Saskatoon on Monday, the Queen was treated to easy-listening music by a military quintet. At the mine, Prince Philip and his son, in coveralls and hardhats, endured a bumpy landing as the elevator cage hit the bottom of the shaft.

Then there was a high-speed, roller-coaster feeling as special diesel vehicles tore through 6.4 kilometres of underground tunnels to the mine face.

Prince Edward, 14, did not appear as interested as his father in the mine trip.

But he seemed to enjoy the special attention he got at Lloydminster from Brownies and Girl Guides, who blushed when he spoke to them.

Prince Edward, the Queen's youngest son, was taking part in his first official functions as a member of the Royal Family.

The Queen's day opened with a lunch at the University of Saskatchewan.

After the meal, staunch royalist John Diefenbaker started an attack on Prime Minister Trudeau for his failure to greet the Queen on her arrival in St. John's, Nfld., last week.

"It was a snub," said the former prime minister, his voice quavering, minutes after he emerged from a lunch with the Queen, courtesy of the federal government.

Trudeau returned to Ottawa from a vacation in Morocco Monday and will join the Queen later at the Commonwealth Games during her 12-day Canadian tour.

Dog Days. . .

LLOYDMINSTER (FP) — The queen's security detail stood by helplessly Monday as a Royal tree-planting ceremony went to the dogs, literally.

Two canines stole the show when they darted past surprised Mounties and began watering a Blue Spruce planted moments earlier by Prince Philip.

The crowd twittered and so did military equerries and other members of the Royal entourage. But the Queen, Prince Philip and 14-year-old Prince Edward couldn't see what was causing the laughter, their view blocked by the crowd as they started walking toward a waiting limousine.

Air Canada Still Flying Into Danger

MONTREAL (CP) — Air Canada negotiators, having averted strikes by 7,500 ground-service employees, turn their attention this week to two other hot potatoes which could lead to trouble for the airline.

Negotiators for the company and its 2,700 flight attendants will meet Wednesday with conciliation commissioner Pierre Dufresne.

Talks resume the following day with the pilots union, which threatened to strike earlier this summer to restore first-class flying privileges for flight crews.

While those talks get under way, the International Association of Machinists will be preparing to poll the 7,500 ground-service employees—baggage handlers, ramp attendants and cargo and loading agents—on their tentative agreement reached during the weekend.

Negotiators for the flight attendants say that if the first few days of their talks aren't productive, they'll seek a strike mandate in mid-August, paving the way for a possible walkout before Labor Day.

The union is seeking a 10-per-cent wage increase plus a cost-of-living bonus in a one-year contract retroactive to June 30, but the talks may hinge on two other clauses the company wants to change.

Lore Tamme, chief negotiator for the Canadian Air Line Flight Attendants Association, said Air Canada has refused to make a comprehensive offer until the union agrees to revise sick-leave plans and the monthly maximum each flight attendant can fly. Currently, they are limited to 75 hours flying time.

"Our membership has given us a very clear mandate," she said in an interview. This would mean a strike unless management leaves sick leaves and maximum flying time untouched in the new agreement.

Last December, while the flight attendants were negotiating their last contract, Air Canada drafted contingency plans calling for supervisors and land-based personnel to replace the attendants and keep planes flying in the event of a walkout.

However, a pilots' strike would halt operations. They threatened to walk out in June to get Air Canada to restore first-class travel privileges to first and second officers returning from assignments, a practice known as deadheading.

The airline agreed to restore the first-class privileges to avoid a strike, but said it would re-negotiate the issue in a new agreement.

Some company officials now say the pilots appear determined to resist any attempt to take them out of first class, and that previous statements to the contrary were just to win public sympathy.

The pilots are also insisting on a commitment to merge Air Canada and Nordair seniority lists when the national airline purchases Nordair, even though Air Canada president Claude Taylor says the two will be operated as separate entities.

The Air Canada pilots, without a contract since the end of January, are held to six-per-cent wage increases by anti-inflation guidelines.

If the flight attendants and pilots don't offer enough problems, the airline will start negotiations later this month with 2,300 passenger and ticket agents, members of the Canadian Air Line Employees Association.

EXPLOSIVE SURGERY

COPENHAGEN (Reuter) — A 36-year-old Dane died of blood poisoning after a spark from an electric surgical knife caused gases in his intestines to explode during an operation, two Danish surgeons reported Monday. Doctors Niels Jentoft Olsen and Vagn Berg said the patient was undergoing intestinal surgery at the time. The operation to open a hole in the intestine proceeded well until the electric knife triggered the explosion. Several operations were needed to patch up the exploded intestine and the patient finally died of blood poisoning, they said.

Nothing Could Be Worse

The confusion for municipalities, bus-riders and taxpayers created by the vagueness of the government's new transit plans has not been cleared up by the sudden leap of B.C. Hydro back into the bus fray.

Hydro, everybody thought, was getting out of the transit business, to its own relief as well as that of anyone else who had ever had much to do with Hydro's buses. Legislation was passed giving control of transit to a provincial Urban Transit Authority and three local commissions, all composed of elected municipal politicians. The municipal affairs ministry was working on implementing the legislation and getting at least an interim authority set up within the next few weeks. The municipal governments were worrying about how they were going to raise the money to pay for transit deficits and about when Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis would tell them just how much they would have to raise. It appeared evident that Hydro was nothing more than a caretaker government until the new authority was in place.

However, it seems that nobody bothered to tell Hydro. For last week, apparently without consulting Curtis' ministry at all, Hydro chairman Bob Bonner announced that bus fares would rise between 43 and 67 per cent on Vancouver and Victoria routes, effective Sept. 5.

For heaven's sake, with luck Hydro may not even be running the buses after that date. The interim authority should be set up by then, the finance formula known, and local commissions should be starting to negotiate with the provincial government to take over the services now run by Hydro.

Those commissions, however, will have significantly less flexibility in their decisions because of Hydro's announcement. It was widely agreed that fares would have to rise soon on the Vancouver and Victoria transit systems because the proportion of costs being collected back from the bus-riders is much lower than recognized standards.

But Curtis and others in his ministry hoped that the local commissions would find more flexible ways of dealing with the problem than just slapping on huge fare increases. Weekly, monthly or yearly passes, zonal fares — you pay more if you go further — and discounts for off-peak hours were just a few of the suggestions made.

Hydro has effectively scuttled much of that, at least for the time being. With fare increases a month away, the new plans could be used only by reducing some of those September rates. And taxpayers, who are already upset by the thought of paying new gasoline or property taxes for transit, are not going to accept a rate reduction.

About the best thing that can be said for Bonner's announcement is that it may quell some of the opposition to the new transit plan on the grounds that perhaps nothing could be worse for the bus system than to allow Hydro to keep running it.

Flights of Fancy

Last year airline tycoon Freddie Laker fought innumerable legal and financial battles to get permission to run a cheap, no-reservations, no-frills airline service between the U.S. and Britain.

This summer the struggle is paying off, not only for Laker but for numerous other airlines that adopted an if-you-can't-beat-'em, join-'em philosophy and began to offer their unfilled seats on trans-Atlantic flights on a similar basis — standby, no frills, but cheap, cheap, cheap.

Introduction of the system means that virtually every flight between Britain and the U.S. is going full. Indeed passengers are lining up for hours at Heathrow Airport and London airline terminals to buy the cheap tickets.

Laker, it is said, still offers passengers the best chance to get a flight on the day they want. The reason is that all 530 seats on Laker's planes are used for the queuing passengers; on the other airlines, only those seats that have not already been booked by full-fare-paying passengers are available on a standby basis.

The disadvantage with Laker is that it flies only between New York and London. Other airlines go to other U.S. cities such as Boston, Washington, Los Angeles, San Francisco, and Houston. (Houston, it is reported, is one of the easiest cities to get a flight into, but one of the hardest to get a flight out of.)

It seems ironic that such easy access is offered to Americans and thus, by default to Canadians, while at the same time the Canadian government is trying to encourage Canadians to take their vacations at home. Although Air Canada offers some discounts on some standby flights to some people and although it now runs cheap fares on its Nighthawk flights, there is no Canadian program that comes close to either the cheapness or the simplicity of the transatlantic programs.

How many more Canadians would journey across the country if they could fly from Vancouver to Montreal for $100 or so? How many more would like to see the prairies if it only cost $50 or $75 to get there? How many would like to drive the Cabot Trail on Cape Breton Island if they could get there from B.C. for only $150 or so?

Maybe it would be worthwhile for the Canadian government and its Crown corporation Air Canada to find out.

RICHARD GWYN

Chess Game of Defence

BRUSSELS — In encounters with the press, the secretary-general of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, Joseph Luns, doesn't always use his 6'7" height to best theatrical advantage. Luns bends forward in his chair so that truth comes to a reporter on the level, rather than down from on high.

To make one of his points though, Luns sat upright and stared downwards. How has NATO reacted, I had asked, to Prime Minister Trudeau's announcement to the United Nations last May that Canada would remove the nuclear warheads from our Voodoo interceptor planes at Comox, B.C., and Bagotville, Que.?

"With a marked lack of enthusiasm," replied Luns. "It was a decision about which we knew nothing in advance. We were not consulted about it, as is normal when members of NATO intend to make changes in their defence establishment. We were not informed about it. We have not yet been officially informed. I assume that, eventually, we will be."

Small Move

A slap on Trudeau's wrist, therefore, for a breach of protocol. Yes, but perhaps quite a bit more as well. A small move, at a guess, in an infinitely complicated game of international diplomacy, economics, industrial strategy and politics that is being played out at NATO headquarters here, and in other western capitals as well as in those of eastern Europe.

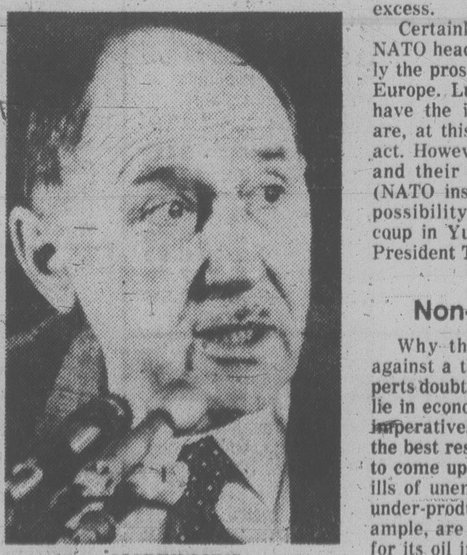
Luns' annoyance at Trudeau's decision to unilaterally reduce Canada's defence effort by replacing nuclear warheads with conventional ones needs to be linked to a sudden offer made two months ago by the Russians at the mutual balanced force reduction negotiations in Vienna.

Until now, the Russians have insisted that any troop reductions be made in equal amounts by both sides. This seemingly balanced proposal is in fact unbalanced since the Russians begin with larger forces. The west has ignored the Russian offer, and the talks have been stalemated for five years. Suddenly, though, and in apparent contradiction to its hard line in Africa and against domestic dissidents, the Russians have proposed that both NATO and the Warsaw Pact reduce their forces in central Europe to 900,000 troops each.

This new offer is still refusable. Russia excludes from its Warsaw Pact totals some rear units that NATO believes should be counted. (NATO cheats in the same way by excluding French troops from its tally.) The Russian offer remains significant though, as a gesture of good intent.

"There has been a change in the Russian attitude," says Luns. "Though the actual reductions are likely to be modest, there are now real prospects for a solution."

Here's the point at which Canada seems to be out of step. By unilaterally reducing our forces, we have given away a western bargaining chip in advance.



JOSPEH LUNS
. . . not consulted, he says

To the argument that Trudeau has been naive, though, there is a flaw. So far, the only practical consequence of the Vienna talks on force reductions has been to prevent any such reductions from happening — since none of the allies have wanted to break ranks. Indeed, some Brussels observers believe that the U.S. initiated the talks precisely to prevent NATO countries from making unilateral cuts, as did Canada when we halved our NATO contingent in 1970.

Rather than reducing their forces, both sides have been expanding them. Russia is spending 12 to 15 per cent of its gross national product on defence, as against about five per cent by western countries. The Russian forces now bristle with new offensive weapons, like the SS-20 medium-range missiles, the medium-range Backfire bombers and an entire new fleet.

In reply, NATO, at its Washington meeting last May, has committed itself to a five-year, $80 billion armament built-up.

Though the Russian military build-up is real, as many explanations for it exist as there are experts — from the desire of Russia to bully the west to the inability of the cumbersome Russian bureaucracy to do anything except to excess.

Certainly, it is hard to find anyone at NATO headquarters who takes seriously the prospect of a Soviet attack upon Europe. Luns himself says, "I do not have the impression that the Soviets are, at this time, envisaging any such act. However, they have the capacity, and their intentions could change." (NATO insiders do take seriously the possibility of an attempted Russian coup in Yugoslavia after the death of President Tito.)

Non-existent Threat

Why then is the west rearming against a threat that most western experts doubt exists? The answer seems to lie in economic rather than in military imperatives. Armaments spending is the best response anyone has been able to come up with for our twin economic ills of unemployment and of industrial under-production. Arms sales, for example, are the U.S. best hope of paying for its oil imports. In Canada, our new $2.5 billion fighter plane purchase will create more jobs than the Alcan gas pipeline.

In this complex military-economic-political game, Trudeau seems to have blundered by moving a pawn too early.

True, except that Trudeau may not have moved a pawn at all. Once the nuclear warheads are gone from Canadian soil, our Voodoo fighters still will retain the electronic capacity to carry and to fire them. It's a safe bet that our new fighters will come "wired" for nuclear warheads, as in the case of another of NATO's nuclear virgins, Norway.

The Canadian public, naturally, doesn't know this. NATO, though, does. And so, to complete the circle, does Soviet Russia.

CLAUDE ADAMS

Racism Hits Georgia Politics

WASHINGTON — The word "nigger" and overt race-baiting on commercial television may be offensive to many Americans, but insofar as paid political broadcasts are concerned, they are perfectly legal, a government agency ruled last week.

The ruling by the Federal Communications Commission (FCC), watchdog of the U.S. airwaves, came in the case of a Georgia lawyer named J.B. Stoner, who is running for governor of that state on a white supremacy platform.

Stoner, who is given only an outside chance of getting the Democratic nomination against incumbent Democrat Governor George Busbee, is flooding Georgia TV stations with the message:

"If Gov. Busbee is re-elected, he will pass more state civil rights laws which take from the whites and give to the niggers."

Has Some Support

Six years ago, Stoner, 54, ran for the U.S. Senate on an even more explicit campaign message, saying "the main reason niggers want integration is that niggers want our white women."

The lawyer has a measure of support in Georgia, where politicians often took a hard segregationist line before Jimmy Carter came on the scene. In one state election in 1974, Stoner drew 10 per cent cent of the vote.

FCC officials, while conceding that this kind of race-baiting is offensive, say that it's perfectly within the letter of the law.

Milton Gross, head of the FCC division which deals with fairness in broadcasting, said in an interview: "A station has no control whatsoever over the content or format of what a candidate says."

Nor is the agency about to censor political messages, he added. What a politician says on the air is "totally unlimited" by law, unless it can be shown that his words would incite "imminent lawlessness.'

Black civil rights leaders have challenged the FCC over the Stoner ruling. Julian Bond of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, for example, has threatned to buy broadcast time and have someone recite the famed "seven dirty words" which the U.S. supreme court recently ruled offensive.

In a telegram, Bond, a Georgian, demanded that the FCC put "nigger" on its list of obscene words because it is offensive to at least one-quarter of Georgia's population — the blacks. But the agency has refused.

Gross draws a distinction beteen "nigger" and the "seven dirty words" that comedian George Carlin feature in his most famous monologues.

"That indecent language had to do with the broadcasting of patently offensive words that deal with sex and excretion and was broadcast at a time when children were listening," he said.

Stoner's campaign manager, a Dr. E.R. Fields, said in a telephone interview from Atlanta that Stoner's strategy is dictated by a small campaign budget.

"We are running on a budget of $30,000 and Gov. Busbee has a quarter of a million dollars," Fields said. "To get the word out to our people we have to have controversy. We have to let our people know he stands up for the separation of the races."

Although Georgia television stations carry his 30-second spot, which has already received national notoriety, state newspapers insist that he use the word "blacks."

Stoner is calling for a repeal of state civil rights laws, and a return to pre-1960s segregation.

In Second Place

Considered by some to be second only to Busbee in a six-man Democratic primary race, Stoner isn't worried about opposition from Georgia's most famous politician, Jimmy Carter.

"Mr. Carter's popularity in Georgia is at a very, very low ebb," Fields said.

Until 1971, when Carter became governor, Georgia politics revolved almost entirely around race. Tom Watson, who ended his political career in the 1920s as a raving racist, was the great symbol of southern populism.

Eugene Talmadge, another strident race-baiter, served four terms as governor until the mid-1940s. Jimmy Carter himself was considered somewhat soft on civil rights, and his pronouncement in 1971 that racial segregation was over in Georgia surprised many voters.

Not Quite Old

I am a woman of almost 57 years who cannot obtain suitable work. I have, therefore, checked out the situation regarding taking a course to further this end. I cannot do jobs entailing much standing and/or lifting without adverse health effects which is fairly common, to some extent, at my age. I have done office work most of my life, it is accepted that this or related work is still best for me.

From a Camosun College counsellor I understand that the human resources ministry does not underwrite a course for anyone who has not been on their computer for some time, and I am getting no younger.

If Canada Manpower helps financially with a course, it is just that — help. The client is given an allowance which she is not expected to live on, plus the client provides for books and incidentals. The client must have some other means of support, i.e. savings or marriage or such, giving a base. Since the client can expect to wait about eight months after applying, these savings could be used up prior to the start of the course. In this economic depression, saving while working is impossible in cases like mine since I cannot obtain suitable work. It would therefore appear that those already in jobs and wishing to upgrade are the ones who benefit, or where a married woman decides to take a job and needs a course. There is no place to go for such as I with this system.

I can also obtain a one subject evening course through Canada Manpower but books must be bought, and on social assistance how do I pay for them, plus more bus fares, already a problem when job-hunting? To sum up, help is there for those on other than the bottom rung of the ladder.

Since I and other formerly married women have only a few years before the stated retirement age of 65, I believe our needs are being overlooked. When a marriage ends, the woman is in the same position as school leavers — only she hasn't just recently been in school. Even working, as I had to while children were growing, gave me only routine poorly-paid work which many younger women can do, so why hire me! This means I require skills beyond the routine, hence a course.

Also, I would be happy to take a "junior" position but, for some reason, I am not considered. It has been suggested that volunteer work can lead to a paid job, or at least to refurbishing of old skills or learning of new ones. However, one needs once again to be on a reasonable monetary base and not continually job-hunting to be any use on both sides; bus fares are again a factor, as for any outside interest.

I wish the taxpayers to know that however well-intentioned the various government planners may be, these plans do not hit the spot in such cases as mine — and I am by no means the only one. — Not-Quite-Old Brigade.

We'll Be Back!

As frequent visitors to your lovely city, I would like to comment on a few of the attractions we enjoyed. The provincial museum is tops. That and the classic car museum are unequalled anywhere. Our last two visits we were guests at the Crest Harbor Inn and dined at Mr. G's. The meal was fantastic and the waitresses were very courteous. The front desk staff were all very well informed in all aspects of tourism. This is what tourists are looking for when travelling. Thank you all for the very nice times and all the beauty of your glamorous city. We will return. — Mr. and Mrs. B. Kenneth, Seattle.

Do We Need It?

Confession from the Editor (Times, July 15), in my view, was factual to a point. As for those tall ships, curiosity I think was the drawing card, understandably so. But for anyone to classify them, as well as Captain Cook, as being something special is beyond me. First of all, he found the island occupied and left with questionable results. A great many of those sailing ships, as most people know, were run by slaves for the slavery trade. Canada did not escape this, especially in the era of Queen Victoria when many thousands were swept off the streets of Britain, derelicts evicted to Canada, many in such poor condition that thousands died on the way over. I have often wondered how heritage and tradition took over from domination. Here again in conjunction with Captain Cook, a British flag display at the Mayfair Mall. Multiple sections of five Union Jacks lording it over one Maple Leaf, in each section, and for one whole day no Maple Leaf at all. Combine this with a large display ad for "a taste of Britain." Do we really need that? — Len Skelton, 4068 Grange Road.

Let Up on Irish

The McCarthy deportation fiasco is of real interest now. This man is held since March with no charges, but wanted in Dublin for questioning of a bank robbery, while that day his passport is stamped Manchester Airport, England.

McCarthy, 24, is married to an American wife, with the American army in Germany, and has two small children which he is now deprived of seeing. If this man is wanted, he should be taken to Dublin and handed over to Dublin police, minus hypo needles and chains. The republican movement in Dublin confirms that this man is not a member, therefore not an IRA man and they cannot help him.

There is a right way and a wrong way of doing things, and open season and surveillance of Irish people in Canada is not good in this democratic country. — Anne V. Sherbrook, 1919 Davie Street.

Sunday Closing: Cheers for a Small Town Decision

PAUL ST. PIERRE
Vancouver Sun

We anarchists have trouble in the logic department; since government is by nature iniquitous, how can any government regulation be good? Oh well, it doesn't matter. Three cheers, not too grudging, for Vancouver city council, which is going to keep most of the shops closed on Sundays.

That council decision was more than just another bylaw: It was a large decision, taken by nine of the 10 aldermen, to keep Vancouver marching to a different drum than is heard in some of the big cities to the south and east. Council did not merely decide for us whether or not we can shop for outboard motors and bed sheets on Sunday. It decided something about how we are going to live in this city for a little while.

Associated with that philosophic decision there were some practical benefits.

It protected some little people from some big ones, never too awful a thing to see.

It proclaimed that this is not such a big and busy city after all but one with a few traces of small town still present.

Call it provincial if you care; provincial cities are what some of us have always preferred anyway.

Finally, those nine out of 10 aldermen showed some courage of conviction in that vote, because they weren't necessarily doing the popular thing. It may well be that a plebiscite in Vancouver would show today that a majority of people would like to see as many stores open on Sunday as on all the other days.

Majorities are not always right, particularly when asked to give an offhand opinion on a question involving their personal convenience. Convenience may be bought at a cost, and the bill isn't always presented early. Sometimes, by the day the cost is recognized, and seen as grievous, it is too late for a bad decision to be quickly unmade.

The arguments for open Sundays were few and frail.

We were told that in this age when most husbands and wives are both working, Sunday is needed as a shopping day. Nobody was heard speaking loudly about the five-day work week and how it fits that theory.

Increased sales for stores?

Ald. Harry Rankin said the commonsense thing. People only buy so much. The social benefit of spreading their spending over seven days instead of six is hard to perceive.

From time to time the apologists of the Sunday shopping idea remind us that it would not impose longer hours on the sales people because they have unions and government legislation to protect them.

That just won't wash. Most sales people in small stores do not have union contracts. And, for all the protection of legislation which may, or may not, reach the employees, there are a lot of small shopkeepers in this city who are their own bosses, hard, demanding bosses. They don't deserve cardiac arrest any sooner than it's catching them today.

For the corner grocery stores, a city council decision for wide open Sundays would have been little less than a breach of faith.

Most of those people built their businesses on the premise that they could, by working harder and longer, gain some advantage over the big stores by staying open late and on Sundays.

Their prices are a little higher but nobody is obliged to pay those prices. There are six days, including evenings, in which we may buy cheaper food in bigger stores. If we choose not to exert ourselves we should not complain about paying a little more at the corner store on Sunday.

As for their social value, it's a fair bet that corner store profits sent as many youngsters through medical school, proportionately, as did the big corporate operations.

The argument that shoppers needed one more day for shopping seemed, once the water was squeezed out of all the talk, to be little more than the suggestion that Vancouver should open because a lot of American cities do it.

Not everything about the modern American city is balm to the spirit, as may be indicated by the fact that families are fleeing them for the suburbs.

For many of those cities today, Sunday is just like any other day, and for some the night is just like the day. They are cities which can never sleep, nor pause, nor cease their noise. Mind and body may cry for rest but the engine of commerce demands ceaseless attention.

In those places the consumer — poor devil, he is every man — must be constantly prodded and goaded. Helium balloons beckon him to the shopping centre by day and searchlights by night and he seems, all too often, as much a weary servant of the marketplace as the tired men and women who stand behind the sales counters.

They are great cities. They are bright, glittering, vivacious, opulent and exciting. They are, after a little exposure, utterly wearying and oppressive.

They are made, it seems, for people who know the price of everything and the value of nothing, and not one man in a hundred looks as though he is capable of understanding the pure virtue of spending a day in a boat fishing for salmon and catching nothing.

Keeping most of the shops closed on Sunday in Vancouver may not do much to ease the hyperkinesis we share with all western men, that nervous affliction which makes us run ever faster in the same place. But to the extent it does help keep Vancouver slightly provincial, even a wee bit sleepy, we may be grateful.

If it be unprogressive, let us take our chances. Too many people who talk about progress can't tell us where they are going.

STAPLETON . . . simple message

Christianity is a Hot-selling Item in the U.S.

By PETER SMARK

(Smark is western U.S. correspondent for the Australian newspaper 'Age' of Melbourne, in which this article first appeared. It was excerpted by Atlas World Press Review)

The pink-and-blue Marin County aberration is Frank Lloyd Wright's last architectural work and arguably his worst. But the almost exclusively white and middle-class crowd in the Civic Center has not come to argue the architecture's merits. It has come with what the featured speaker calls "a great hunger," to hear a carefully-coiffured lady employ her singsong Georgian voice to soothe and heal.

By the time Ruth Carter Stapleton reaches the microphone, the audience has been "warmed up" in the approved American style by a hearty black gospel singer. It has clapped and rocked and swayed and now sits still to hear the message. The message is a simple one: Give yourself to Jesus. "If you have lost your patience lately, or if you have hurt anyone, or hate anyone, you feel the need for the touch of Jesus to set you free," Mrs. Stapleton says, and they listen.

Later, as the congregation drifts away, chatting happily, the outsider reflects it has been a very American religious occasion. Mundane things like money are not open for discussion, but one is left with no doubt that for all her obvious sincerity, for all the evident satisfaction of her public, her own deep religious conviction and wish to help people, the sister of the president of the U.S. makes a very fine living from her work.

For that matter, all over America homogenized Christianity is being marketed like soap and the people are buying it in extraordinary numbers. A recent nationwide survey showed that more than half the Americans polled regarded themselves as born-again Christians. And there are some 64 "current Christian classics" available with sales of more than one million.

While religious publishing is thriving, religious broadcasting is doing even better. There are currently more than 1,000 Christian radio stations, 25 religiously controlled TV stations, and thousands of religious TV and radio programs. Billy Graham and Oral Roberts are still the most popular figures in the Christian movement, but several rivals have built an audience of millions through TV.

The born-again movement has its oddities, especially in California and Texas, where there is particularly suitable soil for the unusual. The Daisy, once a swinging private disco in Beverly Hills, is now a Christian nightclub. Jiving black gospel groups are the entertainment, but the audience is predominantly white. One Texas woman swears she lost 50 pounds on a "Jesus Diet" and has started marketing it with great success. It involves praying for help before sitting down to eat, but calorie charts are included in case.

The Christian Revival Movement is not cohesive, but its influence stretches into every area of American life. For instance, former Black Panther leader Eldridge Cleaver has been born again; two senior generals in the Pentagon regularly invite their staffs to join them in prayer; entertainers like the Osmonds spend as much time discussing religion as they do practising their music.

In a nation where one in two marriages ends in divorce, a country beset by urban rot, drug addictions, and economic ailments, this religious rebirth is a form of mass psychiatry, a cry for help. Undoubtedly many aspects work for the good of the country and its people. But these are so often intertwined with commercial exploitation that the foreigner is bewildered.

Perhaps one establishment above all others epitomizes this contradiction: the 22-acre Garden Grove religious complex adjoining Disneyland outside Los Angeles. Every Sunday about one-and-a-quarter million Americans watch on TV a religious variety show produced here called Hour of Power. Chunks of Norman Vincent Peale-style positive thinking are profferred by the resident genius, Dr. Robert H. Schuller, and variety acts keep the pace moving.

In the 14-storey skyscraper at the heart of his operation, Dr. Schuller spends much of his time these days writing The Theology of Self-Esteem. "I'm fine, you're fine" is the soothing message, and it is highly popular, as the thousands of cars attending drive-in services here attest. "Drive-in sanctuary, worship in your car," says the sign beckoning the cars to a Schuller service. And the staff moving from car to car is equipped not only with collection plates but with an abundant supply of religious literature for sale.

It is impossible to separate the techniques of capitalism from the current U.S. religious revival. Looking at the history of Christianity, it is extraordinary that such an unskilfully merchandized and often cost-ineffective package could have survived so long.

Fox Hunting for the People

By ALISON MUSCATINE

VALE-OF-AYLESBURY, England — From the elegance of Glyndebourne and Ascot, to the tea lawns at Henley and Wimbledon, the English pass the first weeks of summer celebrating what is to many a dying way of life. That is why, despite a sharp and biting wind, men clad in bowlers and gray pin-striped suits, and women in wide-brimmed summer hats and fashionable dresses gathered in a rolling meadow here recently to honor that friend, companion, faithful servant and symbol of old-fashioned country life, the foxhound.

The occasion, the annual Vale-of-Aylesbury Foxhound Puppy Show, is one of many celebrations leading up to the 100th anniversary of the Royal Foxhound Society Show at Peterborough. The show is the most splendorous social event of the English fox-hunting world. Prince Charles is president of the society and Princess Anne, a former president, regularly attends. Lords and ladies abound, dress is strict (only the scarlet attire that forms the "hunting kit" is acceptable) and the hounds are England's very best.

Competition between kennels is so intense that hounds and bitches from the Vale of Aylesbury will not compete this year. The Vale's huntsman fears that the poor "physical conformation" of his hounds would cause him embarrassment in the company of the fine breeds that are sent to Peterborough.

Yet, lacking only the higher prestige of Peterborough and the presence of the Royal Family, the Aylesbury show displays all the grandeur and pomp of the fox-hunting tradition. The judges — one of whom is Capt. R. E. Wallace, former master of the prestigious Heythrop Pack, and often a judge at shows in the United States — scrutinize the physical details of each pup, while the audience mumbles its reactions.

The winning hound, Cruiser, and the winning bitch, Crosspatch, win praise for their straight legs, keen eye and bold stance. All of the puppies, even the losers, win silver spoons. Then, after a final round of applause, the hounds return to the kennels, where they will spend the next few months preparing with their packs for the hunting season that runs from November through April.

It is not surprising that the foxhound is the subject of so much attention here. Fox hunting has been the favorite sport of the English aristocracy for several centuries. Its patrons have included famous British families, such as the Pelhams, the Fitzwilliamses, the Somersets and the Spencers — names still associated with the finest foxhound kennels — and it was the Duke of Richmond who invented the science of hound breeding in the 1730s.

Fox hunting and hunt clubs are the hub of aristocratic country life, and the sport has had extravagant spenders among its better-known pack masters. One legendary figure was Henry Chaplin who, as an undergraduate at Oxford in the 19th century, hunted six days each week and kept four huntsmen in the lodgings at Christ Church College.

Nowadays, however, that style of life exists mainly as an Englishman's nostalgic whim. Though dress for the hunt is still strict, and the sport still costly, fox hunting is no longer an aristocratic preserve. It has become so popular among the middle classes that some traditional old-timers call it "a bourgeois occupation." There are no accurate figures on the number of people who participate in the hunt; estimates range from 300,000 to one million people.

Well-to-do townspeople, many of whom lack riding experience and family hunting tradition, have flocked to the countryside in greater numbers than ever before, making hunting packs larger and harder to join. Packs that once had 50 members now have 150. And these days few packs allow members to invite guests on hunts; some have even confined membership to regional residents. From the most fashionable packs in Warwickshire or Leicestershire to the simple, local packs in Essex, popularity seems to be the sport's greatest enemy. So much so that one retired hunter said that "the pure fashion of hunting is what will finally kill it."

Fox hunting is also threatened by motorways cutting across hunt lands, and there are other signs of urban life encroaching on the countryside's once undisturbed green pastures. In the suburbs so many spectators and hunt aficionados follow the packs in cars that a new term, "car following," has been coined in hunting vocabulary. There is also a persistent campaign here to outlaw the sport — a campaign that Lord Jeremy Bentham waged in the early 19th century — on the ground that fox hunting is cruel to animals.

But, in spite of ardent moral and political adversaries and the changing character of the English landscape, the English fox hunters remain a group linked to tradition. And that is why the foxhound continues to win interest and affection from those who cherish the old-fashioned country way of life. The elegance, the splendor, the rich and regal character of events devoted to honoring the foxhound are all part of an attempt to preserve traditions that are slowly fading away. And the foxhound shows at Peterborough and Aylesbury are the last signs that, in spite of the modern-day odds against it, old country life is still alive in England — at least in spirit.

Tories Would Eliminate 5% Sales Tax

By TERENCE O'NEILL
Canadian Press

If the Progressive Conservative party forms the next B.C. government, leader Vic Stephens says the first thing it will do is eliminate the province's five-per-cent sales tax.

The move would mean a loss of revenue to the provincial government of about $600 million a year, something which would be offset by greater government efficiency, he said.

Stephens made the policy announcement in an interview Monday during which he outlined his hope of riding the burgeoning provincial tax protest movement to the premiership before the end of the decade.

He also said a Conservative government would remove the school tax from property, and would pay for all basic school costs out of general revenue.

Stephens, the sole member of his party in the legislature, said earlier this year that if put into power, his government would eliminate the sales tax one percentage point a year.

"I think that's a mistake," the Oak Bay MLA admitted. "That was a position I had taken earlier and perhaps taken hastily."

The provincial government collected $740 million in revenue from its sales tax last fiscal year, and predicts it will collect $595 million this year. The tax decreased to five per cent from seven per cent in early April.

Stephens said a slow withdrawal of the sales tax might tend to depress sales, because consumers might not want to buy goods when they know a further tax reduction is around the corner.

In addition, the Conservative leader said a gradual removal would not give the immediate boost needed to revitalize the province's economy.

Stephens said he views the next provincial election — due within 2½ years — the electorate's only chance of voicing a tax protest similar to that mounted two months ago in California through Proposition 13, which reduced property taxes by 57 per cent.

He explained that because B.C. does not have an initiative system allowing voters a direct say in legislation, an election is the only manner through which they can show their anger over high taxes.

"We'll tell the voters during the next election that "it's your Proposition 13, it's your initiative,'" he said. "We'll look them square in the eye."

Stephens explained that his party will construct a firm platform centred on tax reduction, so the electorate will be able to see a clear distinction between it and the "big-tax, big-government" parties.

"This time, they're going to have a choice," he said.

"I see this as the purpose of the Conservative party. It's very clear, its very basic, and it's very simple, and I hope to keep it that way."

He said Conservative party membership in B.C. has risen to 20,000 from 3,500 in two years. He noted, however, that many of the new members joined through interest in federal politics.

Stephens also said that a Conservative government would define what the basic cost of a "no-frills" education, then the government would provide the funds.

If school districts want to provide such extras as "driving lessons, belly dancing and excursions to camping grounds," taxpayers in the district would vote on the request, and, if approved, the money would be raised locally, he said.

Park Sizes Increased

The provincial government has increased the size of the Fort Nelson Provincial Park and the Kettle Valley Provincial Recreation Area, Recreation Minister Sam Bawlf said Monday.

Bawlf said in a news release the Fort Nelson park will be increased to eight hectares from five, and part of the addition will be used for a museum to be built by the Fort Nelson Historical Society.

He said the Kettle River park will be increased by 39 hectares of adjacent Crown land to 119 hectares to provide an area along the river for beach development and day use facilities.

TRAVEL AGENTS TO GET 8.25%

VANCOUVER (CP) — CP Air, Air Canada, and the alliance of Canadian Travel Associations announced Monday agreement on a new single commission the airlines will pay travel agents selling Canadian flights.

The new rate of 8.25 per cent commission for intra-Canada sales replaces a four-tiered system that had been in effect since 1970.

The airlines and the association said in a joint news release that the new rate which will eliminate much inconvenient, uneconomic work for travel agents and the airlines.

The new two-year agreement replaces the previous structure of seven-per-cent commission on intra-Canada point-to-point sales. and eight per cent for promotional fares, 10 per cent, for incentive and convention group sales and 11 per cent in conjunction with an approved air tour.

Acquittal Won By Lawyer

VANCOUVER (CP) — Lawyer Patricia Colleen Connor was acquitted Monday in county court on a charge of harboring a prison escaper.

She also was acquitted of possessing a stolen Luger pistol and of not having the gun registered in her name.

Miss Connor, 27, was charged after police re-captured prisoner Russell Charles Elliott Sept. 9, 1977, outside a city dwelling. Elliott had escaped while on a visit to Vancouver General Hospital.

Judge J. C. Cowan was told a combined force of RCMP and city police officers staked out the dwelling and saw Miss Connor sitting in a car parked outside. Elliott was shot by police when he refused a warning to stop as he left the house. Miss Connor reached the scene moments after he fell to the ground.

She told officers who arrested her that she was making preparations that day to have Elliott voluntarily turn himself in.

The revolver charges were laid after she had offered to sell a city detective a Luger pistol.

The officer testified she told him at the time that she was concerned about infection in a gun wound Elliott had received earlier. He said he warned her she should not help Elliott and could get into a lot of trouble if she did.

He stated that when he asked her in a telephone conversation if she knew where Elliott was she told him she didn't.

Judge Cowan said Monday he accepted her evidence that she was arranging to sell the Luger for its owner, a Penticton man.

The judge said Miss Connor was extremely foolish to have become involved with Elliott after his escape, but accepted her evidence on her intention to persuade Elliott to surrender.

Loan Adds 49 Pt. Hardy Lots

A $500,000 loan through the provincial land servicing program will add an additional 49 residential lots to a 22-acre Port Hardy subdivision.

Municipal Affairs and Housing Minister Hugh Curtis said the loan is in addition to an earlier $875,000 loan which produced 36 lots in the first stage of the development.

Lots will sell for $8,750 to $12,000 and should assist in the production of affordable housing, Curtis said.

Two Firms Bid on HCBC Assets

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two private companies—one of which is made up of part of the Housing Corp. of British Columbia's (HCBC) management—have offered to buy the real estate assets of the government-owned corporation.

The B.C. government announced last April that the entire corporation is for sale. A financial statement of the company at that time estimated its gross assets at $19.6 million and gave the book value of its real estate holdings as $14.1 million and of mortgages as $4 million.

Bids were opened Monday by the HCBC sales advisory committee, headed by E. G. Byrd, of Coppers and Lybrand, chartered accountants.

Bern Enterprises Ltd., a group headed by W. J. Webb, HCBC president, and vice-president of marketing P. J. Doyle, proposed to buy the corporation's property for $10,540,000.

The other bid came from Candou Industries Ltd., a privately-owned Vancouver company. It said it, or a nominee, would absorb the corporation's liabilities of just over $7 million and pay about $8 million for its assets.

Candou said it based its bid on the corporation's financial status as of April 30 this year.

The corporation was bought four years ago by the former New Democrat Party government.

In addition to bids for the real estate division, the sale of HCBC also attracted two bids for its professional services arm.

One came from J. L. Northey, the corporation's vice-president of professional services, who proposes a reorganization of the division. No price was stated in his bid. R. D. O'Brian, a land consultant of the corporation's staff, submitted one for $15,000.

SUB BASE TRIAL DELAY

SEATTLE (AP) — The trial of five demonstrators charged with trespassing on the Trident Submarine Base at Bangor May 22 has been postponed.

The trial, scheduled to begin Monday, was put off to await a ruling by the 9th United States Circuit Court of Appeals on motions filed by protesters convicted last year.

The appeals were heard in June.

The five defendants include Julianne May, of Victoria.

All our steaks are vacuum wrapped ready to go from freezer to barbecue! Enjoy these very juicy and tender meats. Sound good? Taste for yourself.

Microwave demonstration

Sample our juicy steaks cooked to perfection in Kenmore microwave ovens. Steaks flash-frozen to lock in flavor. Talk to the demonstrator, who will give hints on how to cook perfect steak everytime.

Barbecuing hints:

Preparation for barbecuing these meats: One-half-in. thick cuts can be slowly cooked frozen. ¾-in. thick cuts should be thawed before cooking. To prevent steak from curling while cooking, nick around edges and slightly into the lean.

- Lightly apply fat to hot grill to prevent meat from sticking. Clean off burned residue from grill.
- To prevent loss of juiciness, don't salt meat before cooking. Turn the meat with tongs.
- To lock in juices, sear both sides of meat while cooking slowly.
- Thicker-cut steaks can be cooked over a hotter fire than thinner steaks, which are burned easily.
- Get that delicious smoke flavor by throwing some damp hardwood on fire. Hickory sawdust is preferred.
- Because heat of fire fluctuates, determine doneness by nicking meat and observe the color.

Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market edged fractionally higher in active mid-afternoon trading.

Among industrials, OPI Ltd. A climbed 1¾ to $14¼, Crestbrook Forest Industries ⅞ to $8, Husky Oil ¾ to $40¾, Great Lakes Paper ⅝ to $34 and Kaiser Resources ⅛ to $14½.

Algoma Steel dropped 1 to $21¾, Bow Valley Industries 1 to $34, Dome Petroleum 1 to $66½, Elks Stores ¾ to $14 and Asbestos Corp. ¾ to $39¼.

Campbell Red Lake Mines jumped 1½ to $44¾, Sigma Mines Quebec ¾ to $40¼ and United Siscoe Mines ⅜ to $8½. Ego Mines declined ⅞ to $8¾ and Campbell Chibougamau A ⅜ to $6⅜.

Amalgamated Bonanza Petroleum gained 1⅝ to $37⅛, Ocelot Industries B ½ to $14½ and Ocelot A ⅜ to $14⅜. Numac Oil and Gas fell ¾ to $34¾ and North Canadian Oils ¾ to $11⅝.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices pulled back a bit in active trading as the U.S. dollar continued to slump in foreign exchange.

Brokers said some traders seemed to be selling in the belief that the market's recent rally had run its course for the moment, especially with pressure on the dollar persisting.

The dollar declined against leading foreign currencies today, and the price of gold soared in London to a record of $207-plus an ounce.

Gold mining shares advanced broadly, following the lead of the bullionprice. Dome Mines gained ¾ to $82½; Campbell Red Lake 1¼ to $39⅜; Homestake Mining ⅞ to $39¾, and ASA ¼ to $26¾.

Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Prices were mainly higher in moderate trading on the Montreal Stock Exchange. Texasgulf was up ⅞ at $23¾, Noranda A ¼ at $30, Interprovincial Pipe Lines ⅛ at $16½, CP Ltd. ⅛ at $20¾ and Reitman A ¼ at $17. Falconbridge Nickel A was off ¼ at $24¾, Bank of Montreal ¼ at $22¼ and Zeller's A ⅛ at $8⅞. Among speculative issues, Silver Stack Mines was up 13 cents at $1.75 on a volume of 25,300 shares traded.

London

LONDON (CP) — Speculation over a possible reduction in the minimum lending rate sent the London stock market sharply higher today near the close of moderate trading. The Financial Times index was up 5.2 to 494.6 an hour before the close. Lending equities advanced, while gold issues moved sharply higher with international bullion prices. Canadian stocks eased.

Australia Eyes Energy Boom

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Australia is on the threshold of huge oil and natural-gas activity, hoping it will bolster export earnings and buttress a sagging economy.

In the remote northwest, four major consortia are investing up to $500 million to explore the Exmouth Plateau where Indian Ocean waters are 10 times deeper than in Europe's North Sea oilfield.

In the adjoining Northwest Shelf, an oil group is on the way to reducing the odds to ensure their proposed $3.5-billion natural-gas project will prove profitable once production starts in the mid-1980s.

More than 3,200 kilometres away, in the southwest, an Exxon subsidiary and Australia's Broken Hill Property Ltd. plan to spend $1 billion during the next decade to develop their rich Bass Strait oilfields.

Elsewhere in Australia, the search for oil and natural gas is picking up on long-neglected, but less-attractive, onshore prospects.

Many causes have led to the upsurge of activity after the declining exploration trend started from the 1964 peak. A drastic tumble occurred during the three-year term of the former Labor party government, which imposed strict controls on foreign ownership of resources.

Under increasing pressure from oil producers and explorers, the current Liberal-Country party coalition of Prime Minister Malcolm Fraser has removed most of the uncertainties that worry the industry.

Fraser agreed to guarantee full world price levels for new oil finds and to increase by more than 400 per cent current domestic crude-oil prices, the two measures jointly becoming the major incentive.

In recent weeks, he has backed down from a pledge to introduce a super tax designed to siphon off excessively high oil profits.

Partly because of the promise of higher prices, Esso and Broken Hill have been able to boost oil reserves at their equally owned Bass Strait operation, leading to optimistic Australian press reports that a little more time has been bought before the oil crunch of the 1980s.

Some observers say this optimism may be somewhat misplaced. Current oil reserves, of about 2.5 billion barrels, are being rapidly depleted and output from the Bass Strait, which produces 90 per cent of the daily output of 400,000 barrels, will see oil flows drop in the 1980s.

As a result of the higher predicted reserves, Australia's current ability to produce 65 per cent of its domestic oil needs will fall to 45 per cent by 1985, instead of the previously forecast 30-per-cent level.

Pac. North. Gas

Pacific Northern Gas Ltd. reported Tuesday net income of $660,116 or 41 cents a share, after provision for preferred dividends, for the six months ended June 30, 1978, compared with $482,812 or 30 cents a share in the first half of 1977. President John Anderson said in a news release the higher earnings reflected a rate increase granted the company by the British Columbia Energy Commission which became effective June 1, 1977. Operating revenues were $8.2 million, compared with $6.8 million in the first half of 1977. Anderson said management and supervisors were maintaining service despite a strike by Local 213 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers which began May 30.

Cda. Tungsten

Canada Tungsten Mining Corp. Ltd. announces unaudited earnings for the first six months of 1978 of $10,282,000 or $2,06 a share, compared with $7,491,000 or $1.50 a share for the same period last year. C. Allen Born, president and chief executive officer, said in a news release that in spite of a world-wide reduction in the selling price of tungsten concentrate in the first half of 1978, the company was able to maintain a high product sales volume. Born said that record production for the first six months of 1978 coupled with higher mine recovery and sales volume contributed significantly to the record earnings.

Goodyear Canada

Goodyear Canada Inc. had a slump in profits for the first half of the year but reported increased income for the second quarter. J. Robert Hicks, president and chief executive officer, said the brighter profit picture in the second quarter was due to increased sales and better prices. "The sales outlook for the balance of the year is good." The report to shareholders showed Goodyear had net income for the six months of $3,640,000 or $1.39 a share compared with $5,113,000 or $1.96 a share for the same period in 1977. In the second quarter, the company had income of $3,232,000, an increase of $439,000 or 15.7 per cent compared with $2,793,000 earned in the same period last year. The company also declared the regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents a share.

Ashland Oil

Ashland Oil Canada Ltd. of Calgary says net income for the nine-month period ended June 30, 1978 amounted to $21 million, an 83-per-cent increase over the $11 million for same period last year. Per-share earnings increased to $1.60 from 87 cents, said Ashland Canada, whose parent company, Ashland Oil of Ashland, Ky., recently reached agreement to sell Ashland Canada to Kaisher Resources of Vancouver. Revenue during the period totalled $164 million, up 20 per cent from a year ago, while the cash flow of $40 million was higher by 41 per cent. Vernon Van Sant, Jr., Ashland Canada president, attributed the performance to increased oil-and-gas production and improved prices. The company also participated in successful oil-and-gas ventures in British Columbia and Alberta.

FoMoCo

Increased car and truck sales in North America and Europe led to record profits of $4.55 a share in the second quarter for Ford Motor Co., up 1.3 per cent from the same quarter last year. The No. 2 automaker said it also enjoyed record sales of $11.9 billion in the three months ended June 30, a 22 per-cent jump from the year-ago period. Chairman Henry Ford II said the higher car and truck sales more than made up for inflation and a "less profitable mix" of cars during the period. Net income for the period was $540 million, up 1.8 per cent. The difference in percentage increase between net income and earnings a share reflected a small increase in the number of shares. For the first six months, the company's earnings were $8.48 a share, down 11 cents from last year, reflecting this year's first quarter drop of 17 cents from the first quarter of 1977.

Computer Order

TORONTO (CP) — Acklands Ltd. reports it has sold the federal government 50 diagnostic and maintenance computers worth $1.3 million for use on armed forces vehicles in Canada and abroad. Acklands is Canadian marketer of the computers produced by a division of United Technologies in the U.S.

Lebanon Pushing UN, U.S. Aid

BEIRUT (AP) — Lebanon sought U.S. and UN intervention today to let regrouped units of the Lebanese army move into southern Lebanese regions bordering Israel, informed sources report.

France and Norway also were asked to bring pressure on the Jewish state to withhold support of Lebanese Christian militias now blocking the army advance to the south, the sources said.

They said U.S. Ambassador Richard Parker was asked to communicate the request for U.S. intervention on grounds the United States sponsored the UN resolution that called for Israel's withdrawal from southern Lebanon and created the UN force there.

France and Norway were selected for diplomatic pressure because their forces make up the bulk of the UN force; the informants reported.

They said the campaign was mounted by President Elias Sarkis's government soon after Israeli-backed militiamen opened fire on Lebanese soldiers to prevent them from reaching their southern destination Monday.

But the sources said the Christian president and Moslem Premier Salim el Hoss resolved to go ahead with plans to deploy the army in the south despite objections from Israel and local Christians.

The Christian sector of the capital, meanwhile, was rocked by sporadic dusk-to-dawn clashes between Christian militias and Syrian forces policing a civil-war armistice in the rest of Lebanon.

The Christian Voice of Lebanon radio station said 50 persons were either killed or wounded in the 13 hours of Syrian-Christian clashes that ended with a daybreak lull. The casualty report could not be confirmed.

VANCE PLANS TO TRY AGAIN

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. State Secretary Cyrus Vance still plans a weekend trip to the Middle East despite strong U.S. displeasure with Anwar Sadat's new demand that Israel — as the price for resuming stalled peace talks — return all captured Arab lands.

One official said consideration was given to cancelling the visit because of Sadat's statement.

Vance decided to go, another official said, because of the realization that the visit may be the only way to get the two sides talking again and to salvage the glimmering hopes for a peaceful settlement.

The state department announced on Monday that the Vance trip to Jerusalem and Cairo will go ahead as planned. What Vance will say to Egyptian President Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin has not been decided.

In Tel Aviv, an Israeli government spokesman said that Begin expressed "satisfaction" with U.S. criticism of Sadat's demand and said that Sadat's recent move "proves that the obstacle to peace is the unreasonable extremism reigning in Egypt."

Sadat said on Sunday that he will not talk to Israel any more unless Israel first agrees to give up all of the territory captured from the Arabs in 1967.

The administration responded with its sharpest criticism of Sadat since his trip to Jerusalem last November, calling his demand "very disappointing."

SHOTS DEMANDED IN FLU WARNING

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Leading immunologists say three kinds of flu appear headed for North America this winter and governments should help pay for protective shots for elderly and chronically ill people.

In the U.S. a reduced request for $8.2 million was sent to Capitol Hill from Health and Welfare Secretary Joseph Califano Monday. In July, the House killed a $15 million appropriation to immunize nine million high-risk Americans from Russian, A-Victoria and B-Hong Kong flus.

Califano said Congressional jitters about flu shots are understandable due to the abortive swine flu program in 1976 which left hundreds of persons paralyzed.

But both the Health, Education and Welfare chief and a panel of immunologists headed by Nobel prize winning Dr. Frederick Robbins said the program is worth the risk.

"The experiences of the past, coupled with those of the most recent year, indicate that there almost certainly will be influenza in the 1978-79 influenza season," Robbins reported.

Home Rule Bills Signed

LONDON (AP) — Prince Charles has given royal assent to government bills designed to give limited home rule to Scotland and Wales.

Royal assent means the bills are law, but they will not become operational until referendums are held among Scotland's five million population and Wales' 2.5 million to determine whether they want a greater voice in running their own affairs.

Forty per cent must say yes before Parliament gives the final go-ahead. If they do, the government will set up legislative assemblies in Edinburgh and Cardiff to run a wide range of domestic affairs such as health and education.

Namibia Plan Ready

PRETORIA (Reuter) — A Western-backed United Nations plan for independent South-West Africa is about to go into operation. But South Africa ready to block it at any stage.

After a lengthy meeting, the South African cabinet agreed Monday to a special UN envoy visiting the territory, but asked to see his report on implementing the independence plan before allowing it to go further.

The proposals, worked out by a five-country Western "contact group" in 15 months of talks with South Africa and the South-West Africa People's Organization hung in the balance after a UN Security Council meeting last Thursday.

Although the Security Council adopted the proposals, Western backing for a resolution that the deepwater port of Walvis Bay should become part of an independent Namibia raised a furore in South Africa.

The day-long meeting, informed sources said, was split over whether South Africa should put aside its objections and accept the proposal or go it alone and invoke possible international trade sanctions.

Polio Hits 100

AMSTERDAM (AP) — Almost 100 persons, most of them children, have been stricken in a polio epidemic this summer among members of Dutch sects rigidly opposed to vaccination.

"God must decide who is struck down by sickness, not the doctors," said the father of one ailing child in a television interview. "You will never understand unless you read the Bible."

"You can't tamper with God's will," said a teen-age girl in a wheelchair. "He wanted me to get polio. If it hadn't been this, it would have been something else."

Officials say the virus is comparatively mild and not a killer. Almost half the victims have been discharged from hospitals and are on their way to recovery.

KILLER WATERSPOUT

KILL DEVIL HILLS, N.C. (AP) — A huge waterspout crossed onto land Monday and destroyed a row of small houses in this beach resort community. Harriet Tillet, 75, was killed. The twister was several hundred metres high as it slammed ashore, witnesses said. In a matter of seconds, it left a path of destruction about 25 metres wide and 100 metres inland before fading away.

PING-PONG PADDLES HIS OARS IN FLEEING CUBA

A Cuban handyman pulled from the sea near the Florida Keys says he used ping-pong paddles as oars and fought off sharks and dodged Cuban navy patrols during a seven-day journey to the United States floating on two inner-tubes. The ordeal of 27-year-old Ramon Estevez Cordova ended when he was rescued by the crew of a pleasure boat about eight kilometres off the coast of Key Largo. Cordova said had planned his flight for a year, wanting to escape the Cuban political system. He said he left his home in Habana del Este, a Havana suburb, on July 23 after waiting nine days for calm seas.

Viktor Korchnoi and Anatoly Karpov opened their seventh game of the world chess championships today in Baguio, the Philippines, with a Russian doctor Korchnoi has accused of trying to sabotage his game sitting in the second row. TV Movie On Trial

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The outcome of an $11-million negligence suit, charging that an NBC television movie inspired the rape of a nine-year-old girl on a San Francisco beach, might pose an important question for the future of TV programming in the United States.

The trial begins today in San Francisco Superior Court.

Seeking $1 million in compensatory damages and $10 million in punitive damages, Valeria Niemi of San Francisco claims in her suit against NBC-TV and its local affiliate, KRON, that the three girls who raped her nine-year-old daughter with a beer bottle were imitating a scene from the television movie Born Innocent.

The film told the story of a runaway teen-ager, portrayed by actress Linda Blair, who was sexually assaulted with the wooden handle of a plumber's plunger during her stay in a reformatory.

Mrs. Niemi's daughter was attacked four days after the film was broadcast on Sept. 10, 1974.

At a news conference, NBC lawyer Floyd Abrams said there are conflicting statements about whether the girls, and the boy who stood lookout for them, actually saw the movie. The four youngsters, aged 10 to 15 at the time of the attack, were charged in juvenile proceedings and put on probation.

Abrams said he will argue the film did not lead to the attack. He said a defeat in the case might have wide-reaching effects on television by intimidating future portrayals of "life as-it-is."

"We view this as a terribly significant First Amendment case dealing with constitutional rights of free expression," he said.

Contract In Doubt

CHICAGO (AP) — Representatives of U.S. letter carriers have voted to recommend that union members reject a contract offer from the U.S. Postal Service, but the union's president has urged that they accept it.

The action came Monday at the national convention of the National Association of Letter Carriers, where 8,000 representatives urged rejection of the government offer.

The association is one of three unions that reached a tentative settlement on July 21 to avert a nation-wide strike.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A 26-year-old Colorado man who pleaded guilty in Victoria provincial court Monday to impersonation was handed a four-month jail term by Judge Fred Green.

Crown counsel Dorothy Robbins told the court Coffman was arrested by Victoria city police on July 16 for mischief, fingerprinted and released on an appearance notice.

A check through fingerprint files indicated that Coffman was wanted in the B.C. Interior and was using the false name of Christopher Alexander Treasure, Robbins said.

Coffman, who gave police a Moss Street address, was arrested again on July 25 for possession of a narcotic and again used the name Treasure. After questioning by police, she continued, Coffman admitted he entered Canada via Sidney in 1971 under the name of Daniel Edward Webb and was in Canada illegally.

Robbins said that Coffman appeared before an immigration board hearing last Thursday and was ordered deported.

Defence-lawyer Barry Mah Ming told the court Coffman was from Denver and had been in Victoria for the past year. He said Coffman came to Canada to avoid the draft and will have to face the draft board in the U.S. when he is deported.

Crown counsel Nicholas Lang entered stay of proceedings on charges of possession of a narcotic, failure to appear in court and mischief.

A member of the Canadian junior gymnastics team was given a conditional discharge after pleading guilty to assault causing bodily harm.

Michael Vossen, 20, of 1035 Caledonia, was given the unusual discharge and 12 months' probation.

Lang said that Vossen and others went to the residence of Reed Martin, 18, on Sept. 4 of last year and carried on an argument from the day before and that Vossen struck Reed, causing him injury to two teeth.

Defence-lawyer Tamara Stomp told the court that Vossen and two others, including Philip Delesalle, a world-class gymnast competing in the Commonwealth Games in Edmonton, went to Martin's residence at 1625 Belmont to ask him to open the Victoria Sports Club, to which all three belonged, at 10 a.m. the next day. She said the argument ensued between Delesalle and Martin and that Martin slammed the door in Vossen's face.

In asking for an absolute or conditional dishcarge, she said Vossen had accepted a scholarship from the University of Oregon, ranked third in U.S. colleges in gymnastics, and had turned down a similar offer from the University of Michigan.

Green said that ordinarily, cases involving physical violence didn't warrant discharges but, he said, he detected "undercurrents as yet unresolved" concerning the club.

A man who escaped from William Head prison on Jan. 1, 1972, was charged with being unlawfully at large and remanded until today for election of his trial method.

Richard Douglas Bell, who was serving a four-year sentence for trafficking imposed April 5, 1971, was arrested in Toronto on Saturday and returned to Victoria.

A 17-year-old who was described by his father in court as "intelligent but weak" received a three-month jail term.

Philip Cespedes-Holt, 1250 Balmoral, was being sentenced for auto theft when his father was asked to say something by defence lawyer Mah Ming.

"I worked to give him the amenities of life," the father began. "Perhaps I was wrong."

He described his son as "a good boy" who was easily led and associated with the wrong crowd.

Green noted that it was the third time Cespedes-Holt had been convicted of a criminal offence this year. He was convicted of breaking and entering on April 27 and June 28 and received sentences of one and 14 days, respectively.

The judge also said he agreed with a pre-sentence report and the boy's father and lawyer that he should be removed from Vitoria, drugs, alcohol and past associations.

"Philip . . . you're blowing it," Green warned. "For heaven's sake, do something about it before it's too late."

Green also placed Cespedes-Holt on 10 months probation even though the youth was on a two-year probation term from a previous sentence.

A 21-year-old man who was convicted for similar drinking and driving offences a month ago was given jail terms totalling 21 days.

Sidney John Doucette, 1336 Burleith, was handed a 14-day sentence for impaired driving and was given seven days concurrent for refusing a breath test demand and seven days consecutive for driving while suspended.

Doucette was the driver of a vehicle which contained six other people July 8 when it was stopped by Saanich police at 4:40 a.m. at Boleskine and Douglas.

* * *

Fined for drinking-driving were: Ronald Edward James, 22, of Shawnigan Lake, $550; and George Shechosky, 47, of 902 Kingsmill, $350.

In addition, Shechosky was fined $150 for refusing a breath test demand.

Debts Written Off

LONDON (AP) — The British government is writing off $1.7 billion owed it by 17 of the world's poorer countries. Judith Hart, the minister for overseas development, said the decision will end the absurd spectacle of Britain "clawing back" money in repayments and interest from countries it is also giving aid grants to.

Staff Cut Fight Advised

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — The president of the Union of National Defence Employees called on members Monday to stand up to the government's attempts to reduce staff.

Joe Power told delegates at the opening of the union's convention that proposed reductions might mean 800 to 1,000 people would be laid off.

He urged delegates to fight against the government's increased hiring of private firms to do government work.

"Let management know you are not going to co-operate with the contractors," he said. "You are not going to cover up their poor workmanship and waste."

Andy Stewart, president of the 180,000-member Public Service Alliance of Canada, said the federal government has been using public service employees as a scapegoat to divert the electorate's anger away from the government's economic affairs.

He said the public service alliance is setting up a political action group that will establish committees in every federal riding. An immediate objective is to defeat Bill C-28, which would amend the Public Service Staff Relations Act, Stewart said.

In an interview, Power said the civil service union disagrees mainly with the federal treasury board's proposed use of a universal average pay rate as a guide in future bargaining with public service unions.

He said Bill C-28 will set this average by comparing public service pay with salaries in the private sector and will include good and bad employers from the private sector.

"We don't want an average that includes the sweat-shops and the unfair employers," he said. "That pulls our public service average down by 30 or 40 per cent."

PSAC Warns Gov't National Strike Possible

OTTAWA (CP) — The union representing most of Canada's public servants has warned that a national strike is possible if the government does not withdraw legislation that would link their pay with that paid in the private sector.

The possibility of strike is part of a three-step action plan against the legislation announced by Andy Stewart, president of the Public Service Alliance of Canada, in the current edition of Argus-Journal, the union's newspaper.

The newspaper says the union must "prepare for a national withdrawal of services."

"We hope it won't be necessary. We hope the MPs will understand the alliance message without a withdrawal of services. But we cannot overlook the possibility."

The announcement is a new development in a continuing campaign the union has been pressing ever since the government introduced the legislation last March. It warns the union will fight candidates in the next election who do not support its position on the legislation.

The legislation proposes "total concept comparability" which would tie public service wage increases to salaries in the private sector. The value of such fringe benefits as pensions also would be compared with benefits in the private sector.

The association says the legislation would make a farce out of collective bargaining. The Canadian Labor Congress has said it will oppose politicians supporting the bill.

The government made no attempt to advance the legislation through the parliamentary process before the Commons recessed in June. Unless Prime Minister Trudeau calls a fall election, as some expect, the legislation could come up again for consideration when the Commons resumes in October.

Treasury Board President Robert Andras has refused to back down on the principle of the bill, however.

A spokesman in his office said so far the union has not accepted invitations from the minister to discuss the matter with him.

The first step in the union plan is to survey all MPs to see where they stand on the legislation and to make public the findings.

The second is to establish political action groups of public servants in each constituency. They would work in co-operation with other unions to defeat the candidates not committed to defeat the legislation.

"A general election is coming, and whenever it comes pubic service employees will be ready to do everything permissible under the Public Service Employment Act to support MPs who are their friends and to oppose those who are clearly foes or even fickle," the newspaper says.

Pete Will Get Another 'Freakballer' Tonight

By Associated Press

Pete Rose has a chance to break the all-time National League baseball record for consecutive-game hitting streaks tonight against what he calls another "freakball pitcher."

The Cincinnati Reds' third baseman hit in his 44th consecutive game Monday night; getting a sixth-inning single off Atlanta Braves right-hander Phil Niekro, a knuckleball specialist. That tied him with Wee Willie Keeler, who hit in the first 44 games of the 1897 season with Baltimore Orioles, then an NL club.

Tonight, the Braves send left-hander Larry McWilliams to the mound, a rookie whose stock in trade is a forkball. "Freakball pitchers have a tendency to get you lunging," Rose said.

Niekro, 12-11, came as close to ending Rose's hitting streak as any has, holding him to 1-for-4. Niekro walked Rose his first time up and got him to line to shortstop before he pulled a rare Niekro fastball past second-baseman Rod Gilbreath in the sixth on a 2-0 count. Rose got up twice more, both times grounding to first.

"I was looking fastball because he had me 2-0 in a 1-1 game and I knew he didn't want to walk me," Rose said. "He has got the best knuckleball in the National League, but he doesn't like to throw fastballs."

Gilbreath made a diving stab at the ball, but it went by him cleanly into right field.

"It was a clean single and I gave it my best shot," said Gilbreath. "If I had caught the ball, I'd have been standing on my head and couldn't have made a throw."

The Reds wound up winning 3-2 on ninth-inning RBI singles by Cesar Geronimo and pinch-hitter Joe Morgan, making a winner of Mike LaCoss, 2-1. Johnny Bench homered in the second. Atlanta got its runs in the fifth on Biff Pocoroba's sacrifice fly and in the ninth on Jeff Burroughs' bases-loaded grounder.

Elsewhere in the National League, Phil Niekro's younger brother Joe pitched a two-hitter to give Houston a 4-1 victory over San Francisco, San Diego edged Los Angeles 4-3, Philadelphia clobbered New York Mets 6-1 and Montreal shaded Pittsburgh 3-2.

The only streak left in Rose's sites—besides the imaginary string of 48 games by Sidney Stonestreet, whom Rose fabricated earlier this week, is the major league mark of 56 by Joe DiMaggio in 1941.

That string is 12 games away and, barring a rainout, could be tied on Aug. 13 in San Diego and broken Aug. 14 in Pittsburgh.

In the American League, Boston's Carlton Fisk commented: "Maybe that's what we needed, a little rain."

The Red Sox, suffering from pernicious anemia of the bat, played Chicago White Sox in sporadic drizzle at Fenway Park on Monday. They had scored just five runs in their last six games, had won just one of their last six and watched as their once-huge American League East lead dwindled.

But as raindrops kept falling on their heads, Jim Rice and George Scott broke out of slumps and Boston bombed the White Sox 9-2.

"We were playing lousy," said Fisk. "Tonight we snapped out of it." Scott had been 0-for-25 and Rice 1-for-21 before they collected two hits each off Chicago pitching.

Baltimore Orioles, though, were not pleased with the way they were tied. The Birds and Milwaukee Brewers had played 8½ innings when rains nearly drowned the 10,514 fans at Memorial Stadium.

The Brewers tied the game 5-5 on Cecil Cooper's single in the top of the ninth. Then came the downpour . . . and the wait.

When it rains, it bores.

The umpires waited two hours, 20 minutes for the storm to stop. So, 31 minutes on the other side of midnight, play resumed; the Orioles could not score, and the game was suspended by local curfew laws that prohibits the start of a full inning after 11:59 p.m.

Had the umpires called the game before the Birds batted, the top of the ninth would have been washed out and the Orioles would have won. Now they must wait until 6:30 p.m. EDT on Wednesday to finish the contest before the regularly scheduled game between the teams.

"I feel terrible," said Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver. "I knew what was going to happen."

In other American League games, Toronto trimmed Detroit 8-7 in 14 innings, Cleveland edged Kansas City 4-3, New York topped Texas 6-1 and Oakland blanked California 2-0.

Joe Niekro, 8-8, yielded only singles to Darrell Evans in the fourth and Roger Metzger in the eighth in pitching the Astros to their seventh straight victory and 10th consecutive triumph at home.

"I really had the good knuckleball tonight," Niekro said, "and I was getting ahead of the hitters."

Rookie Dave Bergman drove in two runs with a single in the fifth inning off Giants starter Ed Halicki, 5-5. Bob Watson and Julio Gonzalez singled, then executed a double steal before Bergman's hit. The Astros added runs in the sixth on a single by Jose Cruz and in the eighth on Gonzalez's RBI single.

Mariners' Mikes Batter Mussels

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

The shuttle service still operates between Seattle and Bellingham but the manager of the Mariners' Northwest Baseball League team has been getting some of his best mileage out of a pair of non-travelling Mikes.

Players still come and go from Seattle, the parent American League team, to Bellingham. Bob Didier's Bellingham roster is one of the largest, and most altered, in the eight-team Northwest League.

Seattle, it should also be mentioned, should have a pretty good opinion of Mike Moore and Mike Guerra. The two Mikes have avoided the shuttle service because they have become two of the more solid fixtures in Bellingham's lineup.

It was the Mikes, turned on, who short-circuited Victoria Mussels 10-2 at Royal Athletic Park on Monday.

Handcuffed effectively by Victoria starter Matthew Reeves for six innings, the Mikes ignited a late-inning Bellingham show of power that put an end to a three-game Mariner skid.

Moore, a husky first baseman, banged out two singles and a double to drive in three runs. Guerra, a utility performer who stepped up as Bellingham's designated hitter Monday, also drove in three runs with a single and triple.

Both stand 1-2 as Bellingham's batting leaders with averages around .315.

It was Moore's double that turned everything around Monday. Mariners trailed 2-1 when he stepped up in the sixth and jumped on a Reeves offering to score Chuck Lindsay and Carlos Matamoros. Bellingham went on to score three more runs for a 6-2 lead.

Guerra contributed a run-scoring single, as well as a run, in the inning.

A run-scoring single by Moore and Guerra's two-run triple highlighted a four-run Bellingham outburst in the seventh and, to all intent and purpose, that was the game.

Righthander, Carl Best, surviving a rocky second inning, was able to cruise to his first victory of the season. Best was clearly in command but Didier tossed in Rob Pietroburgo and Jeff Carey to mop up.

Victoria scored both of its runs in the second, and threatened to mount up more, but Best was able to survive. Mussels' playing manager Jim Chapman led off with his second homer of the year and Victoria added a second run on singles by Paul Kirsch and catcher Jim Thamann.

After Thamann scored Kirsch, newcomer Steve Kasunic followed with another single and Mussels had runners on first and second with only one out. A Victoria outburst seemed promising but Best struck out Greg Schultz and then got Doug Morganti to ground out.

"It wasn't a good night for out pitchers," said Chapman. "A break here and there may have changed things. I can't complain, however, because our pitching has been pretty solid for the past six games."

Kirsch accounted for three of the seven Victoria hits.

The teams conclude a three-game series this evening, starting at 6, with Mussels scheduled to send Dale Mahorcic against the Mariners.

In other games Monday, Eugene and Bend went on hitting sprees to remain in first and second place, respectively, in the league's Southern Division.

Eugene had 22 hits in a 15-0 rout of Salem and Bend blasted 18 hits on the way to a 13-7 triumph over Boise while Northern Division leader Walla Walla dropped an 11-5 decision to Grays Harbor.

Cross Captures Three Top Awards

Clive Cross of Victoria captured the prestigeous Lt.-Governor's Prize as the 94th annual British Columbia Rifle Association championship shoot ended Monday at Heal's Range.

The prize was decided in three stages over the five-day meet.

Cross also collected the long-range aggregate trophy and the B.C. target rifle championship.

CANADIENS' SALE EXPECTED SOON

TORONTO (CP) — The Sun says the sale of Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League at an estimated $23 million is imminent.

The newspaper quotes a Montreal source as saying Monday night that brothers Edgar and Peter Bronfman, majority owners of the Forum and the Canadiens, have been trying to unload the club since January.

The Bronfmans, who paid $15 million for the Forum and the Canadiens a few years ago and have managed to increase the ownership to 90 per cent, have been negotiating with several buyers for some time, the newspaper says.

Nobody in the Canadiens' or Labatt's organizations was immediately available for comment.

Another Strange Twist To LA Finance Puzzle

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The idea of the U.S. Olympic Committee assuming the financial risk for the 1984 Olympic Games was termed "rather strange" by a Los Angeles city council member Monday.

USOC president Robert Kane was quoted by councilman Ernani Bernardi as saying two months ago that the USOC didn't have money to provide a financial backing for the Games. Two others on the 15-member Council also had reservations about the USOC's financial muscle.

Awarding of the 1984 Games to Los Angeles has been held up over the issue of financial responsibility on the city's part. Los Angeles has been the only city formally bidding for the Games, but the International Olympic Committee will look for another host city if agreement on financial terms is not reached by Aug. 21 — a deadline that was recently extended from July 31.

The USOC and Los Angeles mayor Tom Bradley have not made public any details of the plan, which was announced in Colorado Springs, Colo., Sunday. Kane said it would have to be presented to the IOC before details could be made public.

Bernardi has been among Los Angeles officials opposing any city financial backing of 1984 Olympics. He quoted Kane as telling him, in a telephone conversation two months ago: "We don't have any money. We don't have any money at all."

Bernardi said Kane added that the USOC has to "beg" for money to take care of U.S. athletes.

Bradley was not available for immediate comment on Bernardi's statement. But an aide to the mayor said any comment was unlikely.

"The mayor's not going to comment on the council statements, because they don't know what they are talking about at this time, because the details of the plan haven't been announced," Bradley spokesman Tom Sullivan said.

Sullivan said he is unfamiliar with USOC finances. But he added that quote attributed to Kane by Bernardi may have referred to lack of money to send athletes to the Olympics.

"I don't think that necessarily correlates with this (1984 financial backing). I don't necessarily think this means they have the money in the bank," Sullivan said.

Two other council members also questioned the USOC's financial position, if the city signs a contract to hold the Games and then wants to sub-contract the financial risk to the USOC.

"If we are also on the hook, who knows what the assets of the USOC will be in 1984?" councilman Bob Ronka asked.

"What assets does the USOC have to make it a legitimate guarantor?" councilman Zev Yaroslavsky added.

Foe for Macs A Tough One

Victoria McDonalds now face a tough struggle.

The Macs will tackle league and defending Minto Cup champion Burnaby Cablevision in a Western Canada Junior Lacrosse League, best-of-seven, playoff semi-final opening Thursday night in Burnaby.

General manager Bob Reid said the three new Victoria coaches — Steve Buckley, John Entzminger and Dave Lowden — are working the team real hard "with practices every night."

Bakers have at least one player change in the offing: Mike Duch, the regular goaltender for most of the season, will likely be dropped in favor of junior "B" pickup Gerry Lindal. Former backup netminder Bill Thomas will move up to the No. 1 spot.

The second game of the series is scheduled Tuesday, Aug. 8, in Victoria with the third game the following night in Burnaby.

Further games in the series are scheduled Aug. 12 (Victoria), Aug. 13 (Burnaby) and Aug. 14 (Victoria). A seventh game is tentatively slated for Wednesday, Aug. 16.

New Westminster Salmonbellies, who dropped Coquitlam J-Hawks 24-7 Monday in a makeup game to end the regular league season, meet Richmond Roadrunners in the other semi-final starting Wednesday at Queen's Park Arena.

Other leading New Westminster scorers were Mark Tuura with four goals, and Rob Dalzell and Terry Miller, each with three.

Mike Reely lead Coquitlam with two goals.

Walking Win

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (CP) — Helmut Boeck of Toronto, the only Canadian in the field, won the New York State 20-kilometre walk regional championships Saturday over a field of 15 walkers.

DUNCAN KEEPS HOPES ALIVE

VANCOUVER — Duncan stayed alive in the British Columbia Little League championship baseball tournament by eliminating Prince George 5-1 Monday.

Flames Keep Club in Tulsa

ATLANTA (AP) — Atlanta Flames of the National Hockey League will continue to operate their Tulsa Ice Oilers franchise of the Central Hockey League next year, but without the co-operation of the NHL Vancouver Canucks.

The Flames and the Canucks had run a joint franchise in Tulsa for three years, but the Canucks have applied for a separate CHL franchise in Dallas.

Billets Required

Organizers are still scrambling around looking for billets for more than 400 boys, aged 11 and 12, who will be competing in the Canadian peewee lacrosse championships starting in three Victoria-area arenas Monday, Aug. 11.

The tourney is expected to involve more than 40 teams from as far away as Nova Scotia and will decide the national peewee titles in three categories — A, B and C.

About half the teams are expected to come from British Columbia and about a dozen will come from Alberta and Ontario, Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Quebec and Nova Scotia have all said they would be represented by one or more teams.

Opening ceremonies are scheduled Sunday, Aug. 13, at Memorial Arena and play gets underway Monday at 9 a.m. at Memorial, Pearkes Arena and Esquimalt Sports Centre.

Teams will play in A, B or C categories depending on age and ability with the finals in all three brackets slated for Aug. 20.

Tickets to the games and further information may be obtained by telephoning Dick Gibson (652-1047) or Clarence Finnigan (592-1773).

Harness Record By March Stream

March Stream established a new harness-racing standard Monday at Sandown Park, covering a five-eighths of a mile pace in 1:17 2/5 while winning the second race.

The win held off a comeback bid by Lady Vale, a six-year-old mare who came out of a two-year retirement this season.

In the fourth race, Surrey Queen came up with what must have been the fastest closing rush of the 34-day-old meet to beat highly-favored Senga Robin.

Veteran Clarence Gagnon, who drove Surrey Queen, was the only pilot to win two races Monday after guiding Expresso Coffee to victory in the seventh with another stretch surge.

Surrey Queen's win also brought the best prices of a formful card, paying $42.70 to win. The exactor provided a $77.30 return.

Eskimos Could Expose Weak Spots of Riders

By Canadian Press

If George Brancato has any doubts about his defensive backfield, they may be exposed tonight when Ottawa Rough Riders visit Edmonton Eskimos in one of two Canadian Football League interlocking games.

"Of all the teams in Canada, Edmonton has to be the best right now," said Brancato Monday. "I'm not saying this is going to be true three weeks from now or at the end of the season or at Grey Cup time.

"The Eskimos are the only undefeated team. After piling up 46 points last week against Regina (Saskatchewan Roughriders), they have to be considered a good football club.

"We are going to find out how good our defensive halfbacks are Tuesday night. We can't forfeit the game and get out with a 1-0 score.

"I think our guys can do it if they get up for it. If our defensive line gets off and puts any pressure on Wilkie (Tom Wilkinson) we will be in the ball game."

In another CFL interlocking game tonight, Hamilton Tiger Cats visit British Columbia Lions in Vancouver.

In Vancouver, either Jimmy Jones or Tom Shuman will start for the Tiger-Cats who will be without the services of running back Jimmy Edwards.

Edwards, who rushed for a league-leading 1,581 yards last season, was placed on the 30-day injury reserve list Sunday with a foot injury suffered in Hamilton's 24-12 loss to Montreal last Tuesday.

Vince Allen, a recent cut from Winnipeg Blue Bombers who played college football at Indiana State, will replace Edwards.

The Tiger-Cats will also be without defensive end Angelo Wells, defensive tackle Al Romano and offensive tackle Al Moffat.

Rudy Sims, the ex-Ottawa and Toronto lineman, will fill Romano's spot.

The Tiger-Cats will be up against a club coming off a bruising, penalty-studded contest against Calgary Stampeders last week. The Stamps rallied for a 19-19 tie on a last-minute field goal.

The Rough Riders have dominated the Eskimos since the CFL began interlocking play in 1961. Ottawa has won nine of the last 11 games and last season the Rough Riders recorded a 34-17 victory in Ottawa on Oct. 1.

Brancato said that Tom Clements will start at quarterback for the Rough Riders with Condredge Holloway ready to step in if Clements fails to get the offence moving.

Wilkinson likely will start for the Eskimos with Warren Moon waiting in the wings.

The Ottawa-Edmonton clash will be televised on the full CTV network starting at 6:30 p.m. PDT.

INJURED SKI STAR 'GETTING BETTER'

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP) — Lise-Marie Morerod, Switzerland's World Cup over-all woman's champion in 1977 and giant slalom titlist in 1978 who was seriously injured in a car accident July 22, underwent surgery Monday on her skull and pelvis.

Hospital authorities said her state of health was now "getting better."

They said the 22-year old skiing star "stood up well" to both operations. She has come out of the coma she had been in for more than a week, opened her eyes and carried out orders.

They would not comment on the chances of Morerod returning to competitive skiing.

Argentine Stars Get Permits

LONDON (Reuter) — Work permits were issued Monday to the two Argentine World Cup soccer stars signed earlier this month by English First Division club, Tottenham Hotspur.

The decision to grant work permits to Osvaldo Ardiles and Ricardo Villa, who signed for the north London club in a $1,425,000 deal, was announced in Parliament by government employment under-secretary John Grant.

An application by Sheffield United for a permit for their new Argentine signing, Alejandro Sabella, was also under consideration, Grant said.

But he said the government wanted talks with the English Football Association, Football League and the Professional Footballers Association (PFA) before allowing any more players from outside the European Common Market to join English clubs.

Skylarks Romp

Sandy Ferguson drove in eight runs on four hits Monday to lead Victoria Skylarks to a 24-1 romp over Ingraham Hotel in Victoria Senior Women's Softball League play at Hyacinth Park.

In another game, Esquimalt Combos topped Victoria Athletics, 15-7.

Crystal Lockyer and Laury Grimston also tagged four hits each for the Skylarks and Cathy Wilkinson fired a two-hitter to pick up the pitching victory.

The tourney, which is being played to defray a massive dentist bill resulting from Wilson's collision with a post during a league game, continues tonight at 6:45 with Langford "A" facing Langford "B" at Belmont high School and Hampton tackling Cordova Bay at Lochside Park.

Gymnastics at Edmonton Could be Canadian Show

By Canadian Press

The strongest competition for Canadian gymnasts at the Commonwealth Games that start Thursday in Edmonton is likely to come, not from England or Australia, but from other Canadians.

"I would say the Canadian team, both men and women, has an excellent chance of taking top placement in both team and individual competition," says Gladys Hartley, the team manager.

The team events are scheduled for Aug. 6-7 and the individual all-around competition Aug. 8-9.

Predictions are based on the performance of the Canadians in international competition because gymnastics has never been a Commonwealth Games event in the past.

There doesn't seem to be anyone from other Commonwealth countries who can come close to Philip Delesalle, the 21 year-old men's champion from Victoria.

Delesalle is rated among the top three in the world on the pommel horse, one of six events in men's competition. He reinforced his rating by earning a perfect mark of 10 in an international meet in Vancouver in February.

He is also a solid all-round gymnast, meaning he could be tops on the rings, vault, parallel bars, horizontal bar and in the floor exercises.

If anyone is to threaten his dominance, it could be other members of the Canadian men's team—Jean Choquette, 22, of Montreal, Owen Walstrom, 24, of Vancouver, and Nigel Rothwell, 21, of Windsor, Ont.

Rothwell was a replacement for Warren Long who was injured at the Canadian championships in Ottawa but the team did not lose much as a result of the switch.

In the women's competition, Elfi Schlegel, 14, of Toronto, the new Canadian champion, and Karen Kelsall, 15, of Surrey, B.C., the former champion, will be in a head-to head battle.

But Hartley is also high on the chances of two 13-year olds—Monica Goermann of Winnipeg and Sherry Hawco of Cambridge, Ont.

And she wouldn't be surprised if Canadian girls were to sweep all the medals in the individual all-round, which includes the vault, uneven bars, balance beam and floor exercises.

"England and Australia would possibly be somewhat of a threat to our women's team, but not a great deal," Hartley noted.

Unlike the Olympic Games, where gold medals were awarded for each apparatus competition, there will be no individual apparatus events.

But the team and individual all-round medals will be awarded on the basis of two separate competitions, not from one competition as in the Olympics. There will be no compulsory exercises in the Commonwealth Games.

The final two days of competition have been sold out for some time and, as in Montreal, it is apparent that gymnastics has become one of the glamor sports in international competition.

That's a tribute to Nadia Comaneci and Olga Korbut, the European girls whose charismatic performances at the last two Olympics have given gymnastics an element of excitement that puts it in the class with swimming and track and field.

First Defeat For Alberta

WINNIPEG (CP) — An afternoon downpour marred the third round of the Canadian cricket championship Monday, and the day's three matches had to be decided on the basis of overs bowled and runs scored.

Ontario scored 245 with the loss of six wickets to defeat previously-unbeaten Alberta, which lost three wickets for 88 runs.

In other matches, Quebec 5—244 beat Saskatchewan 7—93, and British Columbia 5—150 defeated Nova Scotia 9—174. Manitoba had a bye.

Four teams—reigning champion Ontario, Quebec, B. C. and Alberta—shared the lead with 12 points each after Monday's round. Manitoba had six points, and Saskatchewan and Nova Scotia were winless with no points.

The week-long tournament ends Saturday.

Ontario captain Glenroy Sealy set his province off to a good start by scoring 61 runs. But the star of the inning was right-hander Cecil Marshall, who scored a powerful 91 before being trapped in front by Hal Bowen.

The best match of the afternoon was between British Columbia and Nova Scotia. Although outclassed in the first two games, Nova Scotia came out fighting Monday, and batsman Rustum Southwell scored a hard-hitting 87 runs before he was caught behind by keeper Anthony Brierley off the bowling of Steven Deare.

N. S. pacemen Cecil Solomon and Renn Holness had British Columbia in trouble early, and three wickets were quickly down for 12 runs.

Bowling Reward

SEATTLE — Talent and knowledge of the game helped Lisa McLeary of Victoria gain a $1,000 scholarship at the All-American Youth Bowling championships last weekend.

Lisa, who finished fourth in the girls' handicap division, earned the scholarship on the combination of bowling prowess and a written examination.

Another scholarship went to Vince Ornato of West Vancouver. Winner of the boys' handicap championship, he will represent the Northwest region in the national rolloffs in Greenwich, Conn., Aug.16-20.

Nanaimo Test For Golf Vets

Gordon Verley of Victoria, last year's low-gross champion, and Dick Renwick of Nanaimo, the 1977 handicap winner, will be shooting for repeat triumphs Friday when members of the Vancouver Island Seniors' Golf Association compete in their annual tournament at Nanaimo Golf Club.

VICTORIA RUTH TEAM SURVIVES

HERMISTON, Ore. — Victoria stayed alive in the Northwest Regional Senior Babe Ruth baseball championship tournament by tripping Oregon 7-4 Monday.

Victoria bowed 11-0 to Seattle in their opening game and then rebounded with a 9-1 decision over Idaho Falls at the weekend.

Perry Walz picked up the pitching victory over Oregon while Calvin Harrison and Glen Smith supplied the necessary backup support by each tagging a home run.

Either Wyoming or Montana will provide the opposition for Victoria as play continues in the tourney tonight.

VANCOUVER PAIR LEADS

Volleyball Tourney Carded Wednesday

Three teams from Japan and one from Santa Fe, Calif., will visit Victoria YM-YWCA juvenile teams for an exhibition volleyball tournament Wednesday.

The tourney will run from 4 to 10 p.m. at the Kerry Road campus of Camosun College.

UMPIRE RECUPERATING

Canadian Pair Takes Atlantic Doubles Final

HALIFAX (CP) — Dale Power of Toronto and Richard LeGendre of Quebec City won the men's doubles event at the $15,000 Atlantic Open tennis tournament Sunday, defeating two U.S. competitors.

Power and LeGendre defeated top-seeded Bruce Kleege of La Jolla, Calif., and Joe Garcia of Knoxville, Tenn., 6-4, 7-6 after the second set went to a 12-10 tie-breaker.

They became the first Canadians to win an event on the $100,000 American Express Canadian challengers circuit, gaining a standing ovation from the crowd as they strolled from the court.

Kleege had previously won the singles crowns in the British Columbia and Quebec Opens and was ousted from singles contention here Saturday when his come-from-behind bid was foiled in the semi-finals.

The Atlantic Open was the fifth and final tournament leading to the $25,000 Masters Tournament, starting Wednesday at Montreal.

Six Canadian men won berths in either singles or doubles play in the Montreal masters.

The Atlantic Open singles title went to Australia's Alvin Gardiner, who defeated Emilio Montano of Mexico 6-3, 6-2 after Montano won the first three games in the first set.

In women's singles, third-seeded Leslie Allen of New York City defeated Kym Ruddell of Melbourne, Australia, 6-2, 7-5 to get the title.

Allen came back with Aleida Spex of Miami, Fla., to win the doubles event over Brenda Perry of New Zealand and Britain's Kate Brasher 6-2, 6-2.

Only the top 16 men and eight women, based on points accumulated during the B.C., Prairie, Ontario, Quebec amd Atlantic Opens advanced to the masters.

In Sunday's finals, the men's and women's singles champions both won purses of $1,800.

Rebate 'Nasty Needle'

OTTAWA (CP) — Quebec taxpayers started receiving $85 rebate cheques by mail this week, along with a message from the federal government.

The rebates — the federal government's method of paying Quebec the money owed to it in Finance Minister Jean Chretien's April budget — are accompanied by a message from Chretien which reads in part:

"The refusal of the government of Quebec to participate in the national (budget) plan would have deprived the people of Quebec of the benefits of the federal budget.

"So as not to penalize the people of Quebec, Parliament has passed a law to compensate Quebecers for what they otherwise would have lost."

Sinclair Stevens, Progressive Conservative finance critic, Monday called the enclosure dishonest and unfair. He said it could be nothing but a further irritant in relations between the federal government and Quebec separatist government.

A spokesman for the finance minister said he sees nothing divisive or controversial about the message.

"We put it in so people would know why they were getting the money. It's there for obvious reasons and I think an explanation was due with the cheque.

"I don't see why anyone would want to question it."

He said there has been no reaction to the message from the Quebec government.

Stevens predicted such a reaction would not be long in coming.

"He (Chretien) is obviously going out his way to put a bar in the side of the Parti Quebecois. We don't need this kind of nasty needling from the federal government."

The $85 income tax rebates were the focus of a two-month budget controversy between Chretien and his Quebec counterpart, Jacques Parizeau, this spring.

Chretien wanted Quebec to cut its retail sales taxes in order to be eligible for the federal reimbursement offered in his spring budget.

Disease Not Here

OTTAWA (CP) — A fatal disease caused by an organism which attacks the nervous system and has claimed several lives in the United States has not yet been reported in Canada, a Montreal parasitologist said Monday.

Theresa Guyorkos of the National Reference Centre for Parasitology said the organism, which could exist in Canadian waters, can work its way into the brain through the nose or ear.

Miss Guyorkos said the disease, which is rare and extremely difficult to diagnose, could still occur here.

Symptoms include high fever, vomiting, nausea, severe headaches and some drowsiness with death on the fifth or sixth day.

REPORT DELAYED AGAIN

EDMONTON (CP) — A report by the federal transport department on the crash of a Pacific Western Airlines jet in Cranbrook last February which was to have been released today has been delayed for a fourth time.

Bill Almolky, a department of public affairs official, said Monday the report is not yet written and will not be released until the middle of September.

Investigators are still trying to decipher tapes of conversations between ground personel and the plane's crew and are hampered by static interference, he said.

The inquest into the Feb. 11 crash, which took 43 lives, ended May 23 with a ruling that a communications problem was the major cause of the tragedy.

The report was originally to have been ready in time for the inquest.

Accord on Van Safety, Mail Delivery Resumes

TORONTO (CP) — Mail delivery resumed today in Metropolitan Toronto after agreement was reached late Monday between the post office and the Letter Carriers' Union of Canada, a post office spokesman said.

Delivery had been disrupted for almost a week because of a dispute over the safety of delivery vans.

Nigel Dunn, manager of public affairs for the post office, said pickets set up by drivers, members of Local 1 of the union, were lifted about midnight Monday night.

The pickets were set up on a rotating basis at truck and transportation depots in parts of the city and the borough of Scarborough by representatives for the local's 400 drivers.

The dispute began last Wednesday when seven drivers refused to use their 1977 Dodge series 115 vans, saying the vehicles have defective brakes and steering and inadequate rear-bumper assemblies.

About 200 drivers set up picket lines in support of the seven workers and the other 200 drivers refused to cross.

On Friday, about 1,000 letter carriers were ordered not to report for work in the three areas where trucks had not made deliveries.

Ed Roworth, another postal spokesman, said seven drivers were suspended for a day on Sunday and the suspensions will go on their records.

The post office did not grant any concessions on the disciplinary or safety issues, postal officials said.

Roworth said he expected the mail accumulated during the strike would be cleared up by the first of next week. He said the backlog of national mail, most of which moves through Toronto, did not begin to materialize until Monday.

Meanwhile in Windsor, letter carriers voted in favor of striking in support of drivers who went on strike early Monday. The 16 drivers went on strike because they felt steps taken to deal with problems caused by the Toronto strike were unsafe, union representatives said.

RCMP Thought Break-In Legal, Hearing Told

OTTAWA (CP) — RCMP officers believed it was legal for them to break into the offices of a Montreal computer data firm in 1973 to steal Parti Quebecois membership lists, an RCMP inspector told a federal royal commission on RCMP wrongdoing Monday.

Insp. Claude Vermette, who was in charge of the RCMP counter-revolutionary squad in Montreal and responsible for carrying out the break-in, said, "because it was approved by the top echelons I think it was considered legal."

He said "surreptitious entries" had been fairly standard procedure since at least the 1950s, so none of the Mounties involved questioned the legality of this break-in.

He and two other RCMP officer testified Monday that although the break-in was successful, the computerized membership lists and financial records yielded almost no useful information.

The break-in, staged after months of careful planning, was made on the night of Jan. 8-9, 1973. Mounties stole the computer tapes, had them copied and returned them a few hours later.

Vermette said the inspiration for the break-in came from a corporal who read in a Montreal newspaper that the Parti Quebecois had begun keeping all its important information in a computer system.

Low Food Prices Push Farm Debt?

HAMILTON (CP) — A director of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture says farm debts are skyrocketing because food prices are low.

Frank Wall, who also is a fruit grower near Simcoe, Ont., said farm debts increased by 15 per cent from 1976 to 1977 and food prices will have to increase to control the debt.

Wall said the figures indicated that farmers are going deeper into debt because of escalating production costs.

"The only way there can be a decided change in those figures is through an increase in the price of food," he said.

Last year, farm debts for Canada were $9.8 million while income from farms was $10.17 billion — a 1.3-per-cent increase over 1976.

Consumer Service Conference Set

OTTAWA (CP) — A national consumer services conference, the first of its kind, will be held here Oct. 16 and 17, the consumer affairs department announced Monday.

Delegates will look at ways of making the consumer services industry more efficient by eliminating duplication and overlap and improving the quality of service, the department said in a news release.

Federal and provincial consumer departments, Better Business Bureaus and volunteer organizations such as the Consumer Organization of Canada are receiving large numbers of inquiries and complaints covering everything from automobile repairs to the quality of furniture and clothing, the release said.

Representatives from private industry, government, volunteer consumer groups and the media will be invited to attend.

Tahsis — Kanuka Forest.

NUCLEAR CURB

OTTAWA (CP)—Customs officers are being asked to block the trans-shipment of any nuclear materials through Canada unless specific approval has been granted, the federal Atomic Energy Control Board said Monday.

The nuclear regulatory agency said it believes that on some occasions in the past radioactive materials were shipped in bond through Canadian ports or airports.

The board said it considers the risks involved in any request for trans-shipment, allowing them only if strict conditions are met.

Mineral Bonanza for B.C. in '77

Provincial mineral production netted the industry a record $1.8 billion in 1977 — an increase of 17 per cent over the previous year.

Figures released Monday by Mines Minister Jim Chabot show metals still constitute the major portion of mineral production, representing almost 40 per cent of total production value. Copper still leads the metals.

Petroleum and natural gas made up 30.8 per cent of the production value; coal, 18.4 per cent; structural materials (sand and gravel), 6.5 per cent and industrial minerals (such as asbestos), 4.4 per cent.

Natural gas reached a record $396.6 million, ranking second to copper by value.

The B.C. Mining Association, meanwhile, continues to fight the federally-owned Export Development Corporation's plan to provide $1 billion in aid to Pananma to develop a copper mine.

Bob Matthews, managing director of the association, said Monday the "short-term outlook of the EDC on this huge loan could cost mining jobs in B.C."

He said it is difficult to understand why the federal government would risk tax dollars — generated in part by Canadian mining companies and their employees — to guarantee a loan to Panama to set up a competing industry.

Canadian copper mines are generally in poor health because of the world surplus of copper, Matthews said.

"In fact, the independent survery by Price Waterhouse and Co. of the B.C. mining industry showed that B.C. companies lost an average of two cents on each pound of copper produced in 1977."

A huge mine in Panama would make the world surplus even worse, he said.

Buzz Off, Traffic Told

WALLA WALLA (AP) — The flight of the bumblebee might be protected next year, Walla Walla County commissioners say.

Nine Gardena alfalfa farmers have asked commissioners to post bee crossing signs to slow traffic that proves fatal to the pollinating alkali bees. Bees are choosy about which fields they pollinate, and follow certain flight patterns, the farmers said.

Charles Saranto, spokesman for the group, asked the county to put 20-mile-an-hour speed limit signs on nearby roads to help cut down the number of bees that wind up dead on vehicle radiators and windshields.

Farmers say they are stung economically by losses of bees, which pollinate their alfalfa. Each bee killed means a $1 loss, the farmers said.

Dennis Skeate, county engineer, said last week the state has no official bee signs, but he would post speed signs if farmer put up explanatory signs.

PWA Fires 10

VANCOUVER (CP) — Pacific Western Airlines has fired 10 of its employees in Vancouver in the wake of a consultant's report that said some of the airline's computer-systems positions were redundant.

The organizational report was prepared for the Alberta-owned airline by Peat, Marwick and Partners Ltd.

Ruth Cowan, PWA public affairs officers, said Monday the 10 have been either asked to resign or been given redundancy notice and one month's notice. She said eight of them had been hired within the last six months.

Air Chaos Reigns All Over Europe

Times News Servives

LONDON — Hundreds of thousands of travellers jammed European airports Monday as a slowdown by French air traffic controllers and a flood of Canadian and U.S. passengers fighting for standby seats threw air travel facilities into chaos.

British authorities said 16 flights an hour were being allowed through French airspace, a fraction of the normal traffic.

"This chaos is threatening air transport as a reliable and serious trade," said Hans Erik Christensen, station manager at Denmark's Billund Airport, as flights continued to pile up after the third straight weekend of a slowdown by the French controllers.

Aage Riis Johansen, president of the Danish Air Controllers' Association, defended his French colleagues, saying, "This is first of all a matter of safety in the air."

He said that in France there are too few air controllers to handle the traffic with the outdated equipment they use.

Thousands of Canadian and U.S. passengers swelled airport and ticket office queues in Britain, pitching camp for waits of up to eight days for cut-rate standby seats home.

For Britons with a week or 10 days to spend on some sunny beach, it seemed a mockery as Monday's gray skies sprayed cold rain.

"It started off as a bit of a joke, but the novelty has long since worn off," said Sheilagh McLaughlin, 18, reclining on the terminal floor at England's Manchester Airport. She had been waiting since Saturday morning for a flight to Majorca.

More than 3,000 would-be travellers slept there Sunday night and hundreds more arrived Monday.

At the other end, 70 airplanes waited at Palma de Majorca airport, departing at one an hour rather than the customary 500 a day. Iberia Airlines cancelled 48 Monday flights out of Spain, stranding thousands for a third consecutive day.

In Brussels, public address announcers began announcing flights that "may" leave at a certain time. Extra officers assigned to police the mob used the time for tighter baggage checks and found 10 pounds of heroin.

Delays in Germany were a mere 10 hours, but officials tried to reduce that by waiving bans on night takeoffs and landings at several airports.

In London, Sir Freddie Laker's air travel revolution gave birth to a sort of spiritual experience for 1,500 travellers lined up for a $115 ticket to North America.

"It should be hell out there amid the flapping polythene and the damp paving stones," said a British reporter outside Laker's ticket office.

"But, thanks to the Yanks' relentless cheeriness and obsessive organizational drive, it has turned into something like fun."

Meanwhile, the stiff upper lip Britons have shown during five days of airport chaos curled into a snarl when vacationers who waited 27 hours to fly to Venice were turned back in mid-flight because of technical problems.

One hundred and sixty-two passengers aboard the chartered Boeing 707 refused to leave the plane when it returned to Gatwick airport south of London after an hour in the air and demanded their money back Monday night.

In a related development, air controllers and technicians went on strike at Mexico's 47 airports for 15 minutes today.

The work stoppage ended when they accepted a wage hike of 12 per cent and increased benefits offered by the government. The controllers had demanded a 28 per cent increase.

The 12 per cent increase falls about 5 per cent below Mexico's current inflation rate, but within the government's austerity program for fighting spiralling prices.

SECRECY SHROUD COVERS McCARTHY

Federal government immigration officials today refused to comment on when McCarthy will be deported to Ireland.

"The department will have no comment on the McCarthy case until he has landed and been accepted by Irish officials," the spokesman said.

Last week the Federal Court of Appeal upheld a deportation order McCarthy had resisted since May 19 through court battles.

He is being detained by Quebec provincial police in Montreal and has twice thwarted federal attempts to get him to Ireland by raising a fuss on one aircraft and refusing to board another during a flight transfer in Amsterdam.

McCarthy had been in Vancouver jail since March 24 after being arrested for jaywalking and found to be employed in violation of his visitor's status with no working permit.

Opponents Rallying

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP) — Robert Daudlin, Liberal MP for Kent-Essex, said Monday he is organizing a constitutional conference to be held in September because he is opposed to some of the constitutional changes proposed by the Liberal government.

Daudlin said the featured speaker will be Senator Eugene Forsey who has said he would fight Prime Minister Trudeau's proposed changes to the limit.

Daudlin said he hopes to present viable alternatives to the government before the proposals become legislation.

Jetfoil Ride at 42 Knots Smooth as an Airliner

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

Jetfoils aren't for thrills.

In fact, the Flying Princess II that Washington State Ferries has chartered for a trial service between Victoria and Seattle until Aug. 14 is about as exciting as a scheduled airline flight — even if it is a boat travelling at 42 knots.

Leaving the Black Ball ferry dock in the Inner Harbor on Monday to savor the hydrofoil being put through her paces in a short demonstration off the Victoria coastline there was an anticipated excitement among those taking their first ride in such a craft.

We taxied out quietly until the Ogden Point breakwater was in sight.

Then effortlessly the Flying Princess II picked up speed and almost without her passengers noticing, her hull was above the water on her three foils.

The captain announced she was doing 42 knots. It wasn't until we looked out at the shoreline we realized how fast we were moving.

Being aboard the Flying Princess II is like flying in a Boeing 747. There are the familiar seats and seatbelts. Except for its width the pilot house looks like the cockpit of an airplane.

And, just as when an airplane is airborne, it is hard to get the sense of speed.

Add to this the use of hydraulic controls, computers, ailerons and flaps and the impression that you're in a plane is inescapable.

Nothing else near Flying Princess's size — 90 feet long, 31 feet wide and 15 long tons — can make a 360-degree turn in such a short time and so smoothly. We went through gyrations, flanked on one side by a Canadian destroyer making her way to Royal Roads and a clutch of sports fishermen's boats and a tug on the other.

Circling at 42 knots the hydrofoil didn't even make a wash. It was so smooth that, as the craft tilted and circled, the contents of coffee cups remained undisturbed.

Next came a fake emergency landing. This had to be the thrill we were all anticipating.

Wrong again. A slight bump and the maneouvre was over.

There are five on commuter runs in Hong Kong, one runs a shuttle service from downtown London to Zeebrugge, yet another provides service in the Irish Channel, running between Dublin and Liverpool.

There are also Boeing hydrofoils in Venezuela,

The Australians are considering having 400-seat hydrofoils for Sidney harbor.

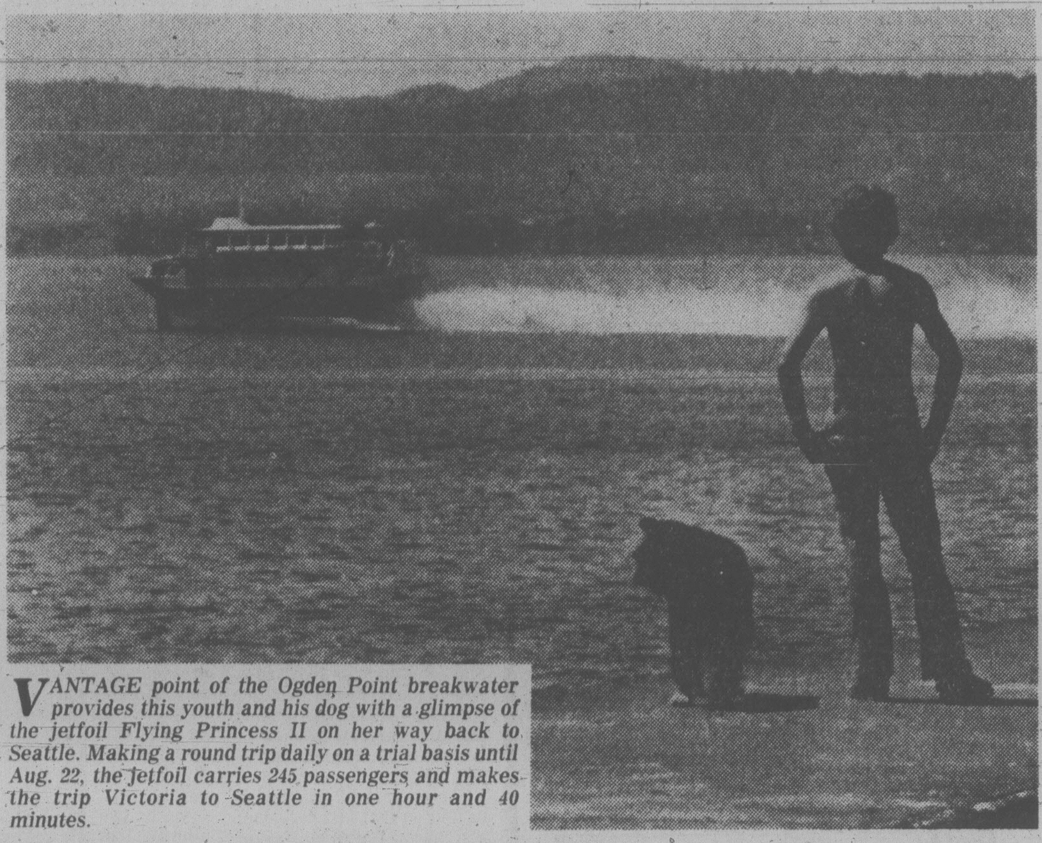
Boeing is designing a special hydrofoil for the Royal Navy that will act as a fisheries patrol vessel, being able to patrol Britain's 200-mile limit at high speeds and yet have the capability to stay on station for long periods.

Nuzzling sideways into her berth just feet ahead of the Princess Marguerite, the Flying Princess II finally gave at least some semblance of the thrill we'd all been expecting.

An indescribable noise ground beneath us but even that turned into an anti-climax.

A cabin attendant explained that it was just the bow thruster which makes manoeuvring in close quarters a cinch.

So much for thrills.



VANTAGE point of the Ogden Point breakwater provides this youth and his dog with a glimpse of the jetfoil Flying Princess II on her way back to Seattle. Making a round trip daily on a trial basis until Aug. 22, the jetfoil carries 245 passengers and makes the trip Victoria to Seattle in one hour and 40 minutes.

Builder Cuts Down Minnie Mount Plans

Broadmead Farms Ltd. has revised its plans for a proposed major housing development on Minnie Mountain in the Ten Mile Point area in an effort to allay neighborhood fears of high-rise intrusion into a single-family residential area.

Managing director Gordon Rolston says there will be more apartment buildings than originally proposed but they won't be so lofty.

Instead of two apartment buildings of five and eight storeys, the plans now envisage four low-profile apartment blocks.

The firm also intends to build 62 townhouses and 82 single-family homes on the 70-acre property.

Saanich council's Advisory Planning Commission considered the revised Broadmead submission last week, and sources say the commission has recommended approval.

If council endorses the recommendation next week, the matter will automatically go to a public hearing, probably no earlier than September.

APC backing alone is no guarantee that the housing development will be allowed to proceed, in the face of stiff opposition from the Cadboro Bay Residents Association which wants to preserve the area for single-family homes.

In the city of Victoria, where several council members also serve on the city's advisory planning commission, APC recommendations are routinely accepted by council.

But in Saanich under Mayor Mel Couvelier's earlier policy change there is no political representation on the advisory group, and its recommendations are often overturned by council.

New Claims Centre Considered by ICBC

The Insurance Corporation of B.C. may build a new claims centre to serve the Greater Victoria area — if it can sell the Douglas Street property housing its present centre for an attractive price.

"It all depends on the numbers," an ICBC spokesman said in Vancouver Monday. "If we get a favorable offer and the price is right we may proceed with a new claims facility."

Meanwhile, he said, the corporation has no specific sites in mind for the new claims centre although it has looked at several in the general vicinity of its present base, which ICBC purchased from Johnston Terminals Ltd. in 1973.

The three-acre property between the Canadian National Railway tracks and Douglas Street is bounded on the north by Ardersier Road and on the south by Kelvin Road.

The northern two-thirds of the block, covering nearly 100,400 square feet, and the warehouse-office buildings on it have been advertised for sale by the corporation.

Tenders have to be submitted by Sept. 1.

The southern portion occupying more than 46,100 square feet is not included in the sale.

The Vancouver spokesman for the corporation said better facilities are needed for processing claims.

"The ones we have served yeoman duty in the early stages but you have to remember it was a warehouse that was converted for that purpose," he said.

"It isn't terribly conducive to the efficient handling of claims, as the other centres are."

Q. Please give me the mailing address of Vernon Presley and Col. Tom Parker. L.D.

A. Write to them c/o Ballantine Books, 201 East 50th St., New York City, New York 10022.

In a recent Ask the Times item a reader asked when the Hudson's Bay Company building was built.

The reply was construction started in 1912 but because of the First World War was not completed until Sept. 19, 1921.

Another reader, F.G.P. Maurice of 3921 Braefoot Place, points out we were a year out. He is correct. On checking we find excavation actually started Sept. 18, 1913.

PAPER DRIVE TO AID FERRIES?

The B.C. Ferries Corp. operations department is looking into a recycling program for discarded newspapers on ferries.

General manager Charles Gallagher says if there is sufficient volume and it doesn't cost any more money "we'd be pleased to do it."

Victoria NDP MLA Charles Barber suggested the program in a letter to Gallagher.

Recycling depot supervisor Michael Romano said: "We're looking at saving money for the corporation. The less they throw away, the less they'll pay in disposal charges.

Price War Mashes Bananas

Bananas may be selling for anything from 12 cents to 39 cents a pound this week as the great banana marketing war continues.

"There's some very aggressive marketing going on in the banana business," federal agriculture spokesman Don Fisher said today.

He said bananas normally are around 30 cents a pound at this time of year, and have been as high as 39.

"But we have seen prices as low as 12 cents a pound in Victoria and Vancouver. That makes them a real bargain when you consider that the price of grapes and stone fruits is high — 69 to 79 cents a pound. I have even seen grapes at $1.09."

The banana war erupted when Del Monte decided to get a larger piece of the market away from Dole and United Fruit.

They flooded the region with large amounts of bananas and the price war began.

"The competiton had no choice but to cut prices," Fisher said. "Bananas are a highly-perishable item."

Fisher said he first noted the unusual activity when import totals of bananas began to climb.

"During the past month to six weeks the amount of bananas coming into B.C. is almost 33 per cent above the normal amount. These people are really trying to shoulder into the market."

Like all price wars, however, this one is expected to be short-lived. Prices are already starting to edge upwards as the surplus begins to be reduced.

Spokesmen for produce companies confirmed that a banana price war is under way but pressure is easing, which means prices will rise over the next 10 days.

The bananas are grown in Central America and are landed by ship in San Francisco. From there they are distributed by truck to B.C.

Gold Glistens In Sellers' Eyes

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

A spectacular leap in the international price of gold has created a seller's market.

Anne Mills, supervisor of the securities branch at the Bank of Nova Scotia in Victoria said today the bank is purchasing more than 10 times what it is selling.

In the past couple of weeks the bank has purchased more than 400 ounces from customers. Over the same period it has sold only 30 ounces. The bank's purchases of South African Krugerrands are also more than its sales, 135 compared with 87.

In Vancouver, too, the rush is on to sell, a spokesman for the bank said.

Despite the trend there's no shortage of buyers, even for the monstrous 400-ounce bars which cost $82,000 U.S.

For the most part, however, investors who bought gold earlier in the year are cashing in on gold prices which on Monday reached an all-time high on the London Gold Exchange. The price opened at $207.50 U.S. and closed at $204.40.

The price in Canadian dollars is $232.98. On top of that purchasers have to pay bank charges — $5 for telephoning in the order, $3 minimum for shipping and a commission of one quarter of one per cent of the Canadian price.

The London exchange is in chaos today, partly the result of a national holiday in Switzerland, where many of the world's gold deals are put through.

Said Gordon Chambers, an account executive with Merrill Lynch in Victoria: "The prices are jumping all over the place . . . it's all pretty confusing."

Mrs. Mills said interest in gold has never been greater.

"Every minute someone is phoning about gold," she said. "We can't keep up with the calls. They waste a lot of our time."

She said the investment potential of gold is new to a lot of people and they should be putting their questions to qualified commodity dealers, not the bank staff.

Chambers said the soaring interest in gold reflects a lack of confidence in western monetary systems, triggered by the declining value of the U.S. dollar vis-a-vis the Japanese yen. Today the U.S. dollar opened at 187.95 yen, down from 190.80 on Monday.

Interest is growing, too, in other precious metals, particularly silver, which went up to $5.72 today from Monday's $5.57.

Mrs. Mills said there are a handful of people here who have been buying silver over the years.

One is a little old lady who started buying silver when it was $1.65 an ounce. She has purchased three or four of the giant 1,000 ounce (75 pound) bars since.

When asked where she stores them — they're too big for bank safety deposit boxes — she told Mrs. Mills she kept them under her bed.

"We thought she was a bit mad at the time," said Mrs. Mills. "But we don't any more."

HIT-AND-RUN KILLS GIRL, 10

A 10-year-old girl was killed Monday when struck by a hit-and-run car on Gibbins Road in Duncan.

Duncan RCMP said Gina Hutton of 5805 Wilson was walking beside the road with an eight-year-old companion, returning from a trip to a corner store, when a car ran into them from behind. Gina was knocked under the car and was killed instantly; the other, whose name has not been released, bounced off the vehicle and received minor injuries. She was treated at Cowichan District Hospital and released.

The mishap occurred shortly after 5 p.m.

The car kept going but a motorist noted the licence number.

Police said the car continued into downtown Duncan where it was believed to have been involved in several other collisions.

Tube Race Set Sept. 10

Tall Ships come and go, the bathtub race is just a memory for another year, but the Great Inner Tube Race is all ahead of us.

The unique contest will take place in the Gorge on Sunday, Sept. 10, and will attract contestants from Washington and Oregon as well as B.C.

The event, as always, will be organized by the Hampton Park Hustlers Association and this year is sponsored by the Victoria Times. Official entry forms will appear in the Times later this month.

This year there will be a Tubers' Ball on the Saturday night, followed by a parade at noon Sunday with a Capt. Cook theme. The race follows the parade and is over a mile course in the Gorge.

Each tube must carry two people and there are three classes: men, women and mixed.

Entry fees of $5 per tube are used to help local charities and amateur sport.

Nanaimo may resort to motors in its bathtub races but in Victoria's extravaganza only paddles will be used. Nothing can be added to the tubes except paint.

The event is open to anyone over 16, which makes Nanaimo's mayor Frank Ney eligible to get in on the real action.

But while admittedly being somewhat outside his usual field which is anything from lions and elephants to hummingbirds, he philosophized that after all "maybe a violinist is a rare bird."

At least it can trill along with a canary.

A member of a Langford juvenile girls' softball team, Shirley is the young lady who collided with a goalpost and had to undergo extensive dental treatment. About $2,000 worth.

It was, as they say, a popular win.

Educated at Sir James Douglas and Victoria high schools, as well as Victoria College, Firth is the son of Mrs. Frances Firth of 22 Howe Street.

A former pilot, Firth has served three tours in Europe and joined the Canadian armed forces in 1950.

Uplands Gulf Service Centre and Car Wash raised the price last Thursday to $1.50 with gas purchase.

The car wash has been subsidized by gas prices, but still loses $20-30,000 a year, he said.

TOWN TALK

Stock car driver Marty White of Kamloops enjoyed a profitable weekend in racing on Vancouver Island at the weekend, and some of the credit has to go to a visiting couple from Alberta.

White finished second in the Strawberry Cup race at Western Speedway on Saturday night. Sunday he headed for Nanaimo to take part in Canadian-American Modified Racing Association event at Grandview Bowl.

The motor of the truck that tows his racing car blew as he was climbing the Malahat Drive.

That's when the Samaritan tourists from Alberta, towing a trailer, happened along. They found a place to park their trailer, unhitched it, then got back on the highway to pick up White and tow his race car to Nanaimo. They spent the day at the races, then towed White and his car back to Mill Bay, where his truck was undergoing repairs.

Years Change Maritimes

elizabeth forbes

I last saw the Maritime provinces over 10 years ago. So you will understand that in revisiting that part of Canada during the past three weeks, I found many changes.

The tidal bore on the Petitcodiac River was one.

Last time I was in Moncton, N.B., I watched as it rushed like an express train around the bend of that river; in a matter of minutes, it surged to a height of something like 20 feet.

The reason? About 10 years ago it was decided to build a causeway across the river and it has slowed the rush of the incoming tide.

Mud flats that have built up since then also contribute to a narrowing of the channel through which the tidal bore once roared.

So this great natural phenomenon, while still very interesting to watch, has been harnessed more or less by what we name as progress.

In Fredericton, capital city of New Brunswick, I looked for an old church on a side street where I remembered, atop the spire, a gilded hand with index finger pointing to the sky.

It was the only such spire in Canada, I was told years ago, and one of perhaps two in all of North America.

The church is still there, the spire, too, but the hand is gone.

Exposure to harsh weather conditions and to modern-day pollution finally spelled its doom.

An attempt was made to replace it by public subscription, but nothing came of it. And the cost was far beyond the means of the church itself.

Last time I was in Saint John, N.B., a friend walked me down King Street, the "shortest, steepest, widest" main street in any Canadian city.

Purpose was to see the Market Slip at its foot and a rough stone monument marking a spot at the head of the slip where thousands of Loyalists came ashore in the year 1783.

The monument was easier to find on that last occasion, as I discovered when I again made my slow way to the foot of King Street.

Then it was a focal point in the market square. It stood alone in a quiet area, easy to approach.

Today, grass and shrubs have been added to give a more attractive frame. But now the traffic from two main thoroughfares, three smaller roads and two wharves swirls around it.

On previous visits I had seen the statue of Evangeline and been stirred by the unusual sculpturing of the face.

On one side you saw a young Evangeline and on the other a countenance that had grown old and saddened.

This time, as I looked at the statue, I found there had been a change.

The young side of the face is still there, but on the other side (I presume in making needed repairs) Evangeline's hair has been brought down over cheek and chin and there is no sign of aging or sadness.

Almost at the foot of the lighthouse a large parking lot has been gouged out of the gray rock, and what was once a small souvenir shack has been enlarged into a huge wooden building.

Wild iris still grow in pockets of marshy soil between the gray rocks. The tangy smell of the sea is still there.

One or two small wharves still have fish nets and lobster pots ready for use. But the fisher-folk themselves are conspicuous by their absence and it is the tourist who dominates the scene.

The Silver Dart, fourth machine assembled by the Aerial Experimental Association founded by Bell, was missing from the ceiling of the main museum hall.

Piloted by J.A.D, McCurdy and using an engine designed by Glenn Curtiss, it made the first flight in the British Empire at Baddeck in 1909.

Attendants told me atmospheric conditions in the tetrahedron-shaped building (that seemingly could not be corrected or improved) finally led to disintegration of the Dart.

There was no way it could be saved.

However, they said, it is hoped "before too long" to have a replica constructed that will be exact in every detail.

And that replica will hang from the ceiling in an extensive addition connected by tunnel to the present museum.

This addition, started by Parks Canada in 1975, has only recently been completed and opened to the public.

By L. L. COLEMAN, M.D.

I want to complain. I was driving along, minding my business, when I was suddenly struck from behind by a driver who was later found to be drunk. I was taken to the hospital with bad pains in my neck and back. When I complained about the pain in the emergency room, they acted as though I was "making a case" out of this. I got the same impression from the insurance doctor who examined me about four weeks later. All in all, their attitude was that I'm a faker because I complained of the pain of my whiplash injury.

It is now eight months since the accident and I still have awful pains in my neck. I've been wearing a collar. I've missed many days of work. All I want to do is get well. Yet I do not want to settle too early with the insurance company in case I'm left with a permanent injury. I'm miserable because I'm being treated like a dishonest person who is trying to collect more than is due him. — Mr. E.W.A.

Dear Mr. A.:

You state so well a problem that has involved thousands of people who have had whiplash injury. It is estimated that almost 30 per cent of all motor vehicle accidents are rear-end collisions that have done mild, moderate or severe damage to the cervical spine of the neck, the muscles and tendons of the neck and to the muscles of the shoulder.

Because of the frequency of litigation involving whiplash injury, an accusing finger too often has been pointed at the injured, suggesting that he may be dishonest or severely neurotic.

A whiplash injury is a very definite one and, often, a severe one. It can cause protracted pain and limited motion of the neck, which may last for months, for years, and even indefinitely.

TARTAN TIME: Yves Saint Laurent has come up with this orange, green and black plaid skirt for fall which was shown in Paris on the weekend. It's worn with a blue silk blouse with fluffy shoulder and a tight, black macrame bellt. Cap is burgundy and woollen jacket in model's hand is black.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 17-year-old girl who has been in love with a guy I'll call Donny since last summer. He broke up with me because he said I wouldn't let him go out with the boys as often as he wanted to.

I gave in to him a lot, but I was one of the lucky ones who didn't get pregnant. Donny would come and get me, and after he got what he wanted, he'd bring me home and take off to be with his friends. Abby, I never said no to him because I loved him a lot and still do, but he always was in a hurry to get away from me.

He treats me just great when we're together, but when I'm up to his house with his sister, he ignores me. I want to know what Donny really thinks of me, but he won't commit himself. I have told him I loved him several times, but he's never told me that. How can I get Donny back, Abby?

NO NAME, PLEASE

DEAR NO NAME: I don't think you can get Donny "back" because you never really had him — for any longer than it took him to "get what he wanted" before taking off. He used you, dear.

DEAR ABBY: Recently our daughter was married to a young man from the west coast. His parents came for the wedding and stayed at our home.

As is the custom, the groom's father hosted a diner party the evening before the wedding. But being unfamiliar with local restaurants, he asked us to make the dinner reservations for him, so we selected a famous ethnic restaurant. When the cheque was presented to the host, we were embarrased to find that the waitress had added a $25 "tip" for herself. When we questioned the practice, she said it was customary for parties of more than 10 people.

It was a very awkard situation for all of us, and we felt especially embarrassed because we hade made the reservation.

BRIDE'S PARENTS

DEAR PARENTS: Some clubs, hotels and restaurants routinely add "gratuities" to the bill for special services (group dinners, etc.). But when a waitress specified her tip on her own, I would ask for the management's confirmation.

Tasty Recipes for Rabbit Fanciers

If you raise domestic rabbits for consumption, you'll undoubtedly want to try the following recipes offered by Mother Earth readers Robert C. Winans and George Fournier. Several of our staffers tried these concoctions and found them simply mouthwatering.

RABBIT FRIED WITH GRAPEFRUIT JUICE

1 cup all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon Season-All (optional)
1 teaspoon garlic powder
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon thyme (optional)
½ teaspoon salt
1 three- to four-pound rabbit, cut into pieces
The juice of one grapefruit
1 medium onion, chopped

Combine flour and seasonings. Dip each piece of rabbit in the grapefruit juice, then roll it in the flour mixture until the meat is thoroughly coated. Pour the oil and chopped onion into a deep, heavy pot and heat over a high flame. Place rabbit in the pot and brown each chunk on one side and then the other.

Lower the flame, stir together the remaining grapefruit juice and flour mixture, and add them to the pot. Cover and let everything simmer together until the meat is tender, turning the rabbit pieces from time to time to keep them from sticking.

RABBIT SAUSAGE

The coarsely ground meat and fat of one large rabbit
1½ teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon pepper
A pinch of ginger
2 or more teaspoons sage (to taste)
1 teaspoon thyme
A pinch of garlic powder
A dash of cayenne pepper, or two or three dashes of hot pepper sauce (optional)

Combine the seasonings with the ground meat (everything together should total about two pounds) and regrind the mixture. Refrigerate overnight. The next day, test the flavor by frying a small patty and adjusting the seasoning if that seems necessary. Form one-pound rolls of the meat, wrap them in freezer wrap and place the ready-to-slice rolls in your freezer. (The frozen sausage can be cut quite easily when you're ready to use it.)

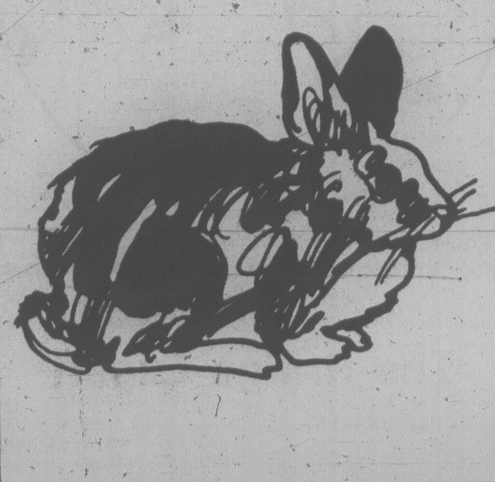
RABBIT SOUP

The bones of one or more rabbits
One to two quarts water
Sliced carrots
Chopped onions
Pre-soaked lentils or split peas
Fresh or canned tomatoes
Salt, pepper and garlic powder
A few pieces of suet or a little butter

(Note: The exact amounts of the above ingredients are purposely not specified to allow you to vary them according to your preferences or what you have on hand.)

Boil the bones and water in a good-sized stock pot. Then remove the bones from the stock and scrape all the meat from them. Return the chunks of rabbit to the broth and add the carrots, onions, lentils or split peas, and tomatoes. Season, add suet or butter, and simmer.

MOTHER EARTH NEWS



Youth Clinic

Young readers' questions on human relations and sex are answered by a panel of experts: Marion Powell, medical doctor; Blair Shaw, psychologist; Graham Cotter, clergyman; and Bruce Vichert, social worker. Send questions to Youth Clinic, The Victoria Times, 2621 Douglas St., Victoria, B.C., V8W 2N4.

Dear Mr. Vichert: I am 17 years old and attractive, I am also very independent. Although I would like to have a boyfriend, I will not settle for just the status symbol of having one. So I'm waiting for the right guy to come along, not to marry me but just a guy I could have fun with.

My girl friends tell me I'm strange when I turn down a guy, and the guys are beginning to think I'm strange too. I have always been friends with many boys, but I have never gone out with one. Do you think I'm too independent, or strange?

ANSWER: You may be independent but I don't think you are strange. You have confidence in your own thinking, the ability to make a decision and the strength to act on it. I find all these attributes positive ones and I don't think that you should worry about what your friends think.

Having a boyfriend or girlfriend for a status symbol seems to be a particulary insulting way to have a relationship. People should be liked as people, not as objects or symbols. I think it is wise for you to wait to go with someone that you really enjoy and like.

It can be destructive to form a relationship with someone that you don't particularly like, just because it is what everyone else is doing. If you are "independent and strange" for resisting that, then it is a pity there are not more "independent and strange" people around.

Dear Dr. Powell: I am a 12-year-old girl who is terrified of mixed parties. I am fairly popular at school and I get along well with other people both male and female. I have been invited to mixed parties before but I have been so nervous that I have had to refuse.

Sometimes I even stop hanging around my friends when I know that their birthday is coming for fear of being invited to their party. Please be honest. Is there something wrong with me?

ANSWER: My first reaction to your letter is to reassure you there is nothing wrong with you that growing up a little longer will not cure. Many people your age are uncomfortable in social situations which require them to act grown up.

Since it appears the problem occurs only at mixed parties, I expect you do not like to dance or do not know how to. So it is not being with boys and girls that makes you nervous — it is being afraid you will not be able to do the things that the others do as well as they do.

There is an easy solution to this: Find a friend who can teach you how to dance and have him or her give you a few lessons on how to behave at a mixed party. Once you develop confidence in yourself you will become less terrified and gradually you will begin to enjoy yourself.

Dear Dr. Shaw: I am 14 years old and I have been going out with this guy of 16 for five months. Three weeks ago he made a pass at me and asked me if I wanted to have sexual intercourse with him. I was half drunk and so I said yes.

Now every time we're alone he wants to do it. I go along with it because I still like him a lot and I want to keep him. I asked him if he was using me and he said no.

I know it's wrong but I don't know how to stop it. Should I talk to him about it, ignore him or what?

ANSWER: Stop using your body to gain his love. Do what you know is right. When we try to coax someone to like us or to give us a lot of attention, we usually feel rotten. The only way we can feel good about ourselves is to live by our principles.

Any boy who only shows attention toward you when you "give in" to sexual behavior which you think is wrong is not worth much. And he certainly doesn't see much in you other than physical satisfaction. If you continue, then what started as a mistake will become a bad habit. Bad habits are hard to change.

You have the right idea. Stick to your guns. Don't let anybody lead you astray. And don't feel that just because you have made mistakes that you can't steer a straight course today and tomorrow.

Dear Dr. Cotter: There is this one guy who has been bugging me constantly for a date. Every time he asks me for one, I tell him that I'm going over to my boyfriend's even though I don't have a boyfriend.

Anyway, that hasn't stopped him. Somehow he got my phone number and has been phoning me every night.

He is driving me crazy! I just don't know what to do. Can you help me?

ANSWER: I suggest an old-fashioned remedy: authority, backed by the threat of force. Put your father or your elder brother on the line next time he calls. If you don't have a father or a brother, invent one. If you can't do that, get the phone company on the job, and after them, the police.

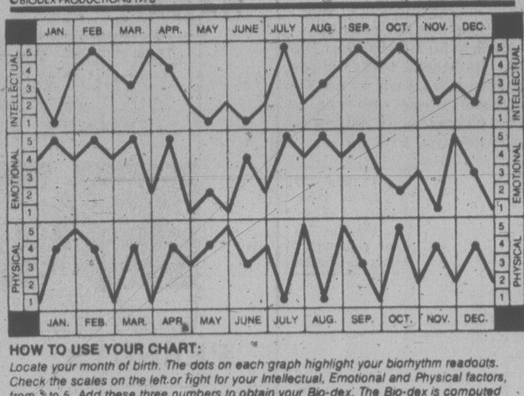
Bio-dex

By Ken J. Michaels

Your computerized biorhythm

©BIODEX PRODUCTIONS 1978

Dist. by Toronto Sun Syndicate



HOW TO USE YOUR CHART:
Locate your month of birth. The dots on each graph highlight your biorhythm readouts. Check the scales on the left or right for your Intellectual, Emotional and Physical factors, from 1 to 5. Add these three numbers to obtain your Bio-dex. The Bio-dex is computed on average population age based on official Government statistics.

BIO-DEX READOUT:

0-5 Negative Cycle- You feel hemmed in by outside forces. Too many people, too many demands. You must overcome fear.

6-10 Neutral Cycle- A turn of events leaves you feeling lost and lonely. Turn to one you love for solace.

11-15 Positive Cycle- You think you've seen it all, but remember there are many mysteries yet to be solved.

Are you an idealist? Your low Bio-dex might be that much harder to handle if you are. But the worthwhile idealist puts theories to the test, and is not a quitter. Don't lower your standards just to satisfy others. At the same time, especially on a low cycle, try not to criticize others. Remember that not everyone thinks that details are important, and you must learn to be tolerant.

Common ¢ents

How about a lacy border of parsley for your flower bed? Soak the seeds for an hour in hot water just before planting so they will germinate faster. And if you don't let your parsley "set seeds," it will survive several winters. A border row isn't wasted because you can air or oven dry what you don't need during growing season.

When you see or hear "manufacturer's list price" compared to "sale price," in an ad, could be that the sale price isn't as great a bargain as you might think. So many stores now discount prices that "list price" doesn't indicate the store's regular price. Look for regular price in price comparisons.

The survival of North America's rarest and most magnificent bird, the whooping crane, is endangered. Each spring, the few remaining wild whoopers leave their winter abode in Texas and wing their way north via Oklahoma, Kansas, Nebraska, the Dakotas, Saskatchewan, and north-eastern Alberta to the Northwest Territories. There, in Wood Buffalo National Park, they make their nests and rear their young.

The whopping crane is a large, satiny-white bird with a long neck, a long, dark, pointed bill and long, thin black legs. A large male stands more than five feet tall and is the tallest of all North American birds.

In the air the whopping crane is even more impressive. Its white wings measure six feet or more between the tips of the long, black flight feathers. Normal flying speed is about 45 miles per hour.

In mid-December, the cranes' annual mating dances being. It is thought that they mate for life. The female usually lays two eggs and the incubation period lasts about 34 days. In September, the young birds practise flying and by early October are usually ready for their 2,500-mile journey southwards.

Typical of the top-notch defensive play necessary to win major championships (or to emerge as a winner in any bridge game) is the performance of the East-West defenders in today's deal.

Opening lead: King of ♡.

West's opening lead of the heart king was overtaken by East's ace, after which the diamond jack was led. South played low, West did likewise, and dummy's queen won the trick. It should be noted that if West had assumed that East's diamond led was a singleton, and had won the trick with the ace to return a diamond, declarer would have had an easy time making his contract.

After dummy's queen of diamonds had won trick two, declarer cashed the king and ace of trumps, gathering in the outstanding pieces. Then came a low club, and West put up the queen. Dummy's king won the trick. The deuce of clubs was returned, and East, alert to the situation, came up with the jack, to play back her remaining diamond. South's king was now trapped, and West couldn't be prevented from making two diamond tricks. And so declarer went down a trick.

Actually, even if West had not put up the club queen on the intial club lead, declarer would probably have gone down anyway. But West could forsee that if he played low, after dummy's king had won the trick, a club return would compel him to take the trick with the queen.

If West next played the ace of clubs, dummy's two remaining clubs would be established as winners; if, instead, West cashed the diamond ace, he would make a winner out of South's king. West's only safe play would have been to lead a heart. Whether declarer ruffed the trick in dummy (discarding a diamond from his own hand) or ruffed the heart in his own hand while discarding a diamond from dummy, declarer would eventually have to lose two diamond tricks (or one diamond ad one club).

WORDY GURDY

Every answer is a rhyming pair of words (like FAT CAT and DOUBLE TROUBLE), and they will fit in the letter squares. The number after the definition tells you how many syllables in each word. To win $10, send your original rhymes with your definitions to this newspaper. All entries become the property of UFS, Inc.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Wednesday, August 2
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Conclude assignment, finish negotiations, stand firm on offer. Your security is enhanced if you show strength. What you own is more valuable then might be apparent on surface. Know it; act accordingly. Aries, Libra persons figure in scenario — and so does the number 9.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20: New ideas, directions grab spotlight. Leo, Aquarius persons figure prominently. Visits, relatives, messages, calls make this an active time. Humor, versatility are featured. Save details for another day. For now, gain perception of picture as a whole.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Windfall is spotlighted. Cash flow surges — you rise above jealousy, indifference and other obstacles. Study Taurus message. Your "touch" enhances value of possessions. Know it, be confident, refuse to be intimidated by "bush leaguers."

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Cycle high, activities expand — take initiative, make new starts; be original, independent, a pioneer. Popularity increases. People are fascinated and will pay attention — and money. Gemini, Sagittarius persons figure prominently.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): What had been cause for fear, alarm can now be turned to your advantage. You get better "treatment." You locate escape mechanism. Confinement problem is resolved. Good news arrives. Yes, you can celebrate!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Wish is on solid basis — means it comes true in a very practical manner. Emotions are part of picture. You ask for reassurance. One in question wants the same from you. Reconciliation could be on agenda. Money situation is brighter.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Home, career, financial returns — these form significant trinity. Capricorn, Cancer and the number 8 figure in scenario. Older individual aids you up ladder. Keep goal in sight. Insist on adhering to principles. By so doing, you gain in long run.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Being alone is not the same as being lonely. Know it, respond accordingly. Some time to yourself is not only beneficial, it now is a necessity. Accent on distance, travel, publishing, education, spirtual insight.

SAGGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Power play is on agenda. Be in charge. If others whine, let them. Keep your own objectives clearly in sight. Be aware of taxes, insurance policies, delinquent bills. Partner or mate is concerned about hidden costs.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Sign agreement; assume responsibility of "partner." Means be finished with role of shrinking violet. Be receptive, cooperative, not subservient. Aries, Libra figure prominently. You receive accolade as past efforts bear fruit.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You have chance to correct past error; you have proverbial second chance. What seemed a lost cause is revitalized. Leo is in picture. Accent on basic material, dependents, pet — you're able to get affairs in order and to be rid of foolish burden.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): What you need is available. Know it and act as if aware of it. Creative efforts succeed. Welcome change, variety — express yourself in writing. One who taught you in past will make reappearance. Aquarius, Cancer persons figure prominently.

IF AUGUST 2 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are sensitive, compassionate, sensual, artistic and have digestive problems. This is one of your most powerful and productive years — September will be memorable. Cancer, Capricorn persons play important roles in your life. Before 1978 is finished, you could go into business, have an addition to family or organize a special group. During August, avoid making commitments. Play waiting game.

Showers: Mixed Blessing

The thunder storm last week were a mixed blessing. On dry soil the 10mm of rain penetrated about one inch, perfect for vegetable sowings made in mid July, but of little benefit to established plants with roots 12 or more inches below the surface.

Experienced gardeners who slipped on their rain clothes and spent an hour with the hose watering their vegetables, or frequently moved their canvas soakers, obtained deep water penetration with far less gallonage than is possible on a hot day with low humidity.

But not all vegetables benefited from the cold rain. Those of us with sun-ripened fruit almost ready for picking and the first female flowers open on the squash plants were not too enthusiastic when we saw the storm clouds increasing.

When cold raindrops strike warm fruits it causes the skins to split, and this happened to all the tomatoes which would be ready to pick in the next three days.

Although the skins split, the only indication of the damage at picking time is a thin white line where the cells were damaged.

This marking means little to the home gardener but is a serious matter for the commercial grower. It also happens to several fruits such as cherries, peaches, plums, if rained on when ripe and ready for picking.

Squash, marrows, pumpkins, and related cucurbits were adversely affected by the heavy showers.

The wide open flowers were soon filled with water which ruined the pollen and the female flowers were not pollinated. As a result, the young fruits have not formed seed and are now being discarded by the plants.

Lack of pollination is indicated when the young fruits develop a soft rot on the blossom end. Many in this condition have been removed over the weekend.

Although these problems should not be evident in our normally dry summers it is surprising the number of gardeners who experience them every year.

The cold heavy rain in a hot spell had its good points if only to emphasize that some of our gardening problems result from trying to do gardening the easy way.

There is no difference between cold rain on warm plants and cold water from a spinkler. Tomatoes will split their skins and squash flowers fill with water whether it comes from clouds or a sprinkler.

This is the reason we so often stress that tomatoes and squash, and any other vegetables which depend on flower pollination to produce fruits, should be carefully watered with a gently trickling hose held in the hand and directed to the soil over the roots, not sprayed over foliage and flowers.

Turning on a sprinkler takes only a few minutes, but to water the vegetable garden by hand may take an hour once a week.

Yet this is not time wasted because the plants get full benefit from every drop of water applied and the gardener is repaid with the maximum production from the plants he has taken the trouble to grow.

HOW TO WRITE

A GOOD

CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room etc., for rent, or property for sale: start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your adveertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. for you daily, Monday through Friday; 8:00 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. Saturday. Don't allow the reader to speculate

RED TAPE TYING STEAM ENGINE

Premier Bill Bennett will be asked to cut through red tape to ensure an old-time steam locomotive is brought to Vancouver Island for the Aug. 13 ceremony marking the driving of the last spike on the E&N Railway.

John Cooper, chairman of the railway employees' committee, said efforts to get the train so far have failed.

"The premier expressed enthusiasm about it on his trip to Courtenay (on July 11) but it's caught in the bureaucracy somewhere and time is running out," he said.

He said he knows the government has three steam locomotives available on the mainland. There are also cars that could be used for the occasion. All the locomotive needs is a boiler test which would take about a day to complete.

The employees have asked Pierre Berton, author of The National Dream and The Last Spike to attend the ceremony near Cliffside on Shawnigan Lake where Sir John A. Macdonald drove the final spike in 1886.

Cooper said Berton has shown considerable interest in the invitation but hasn't confirmed whether he'll come.

Sidney Stall Bid Fails

Sidney council defeated a motion Monday that would have delayed consideration of a 102-condominium project on White Birch Road for six to eight months.

The delay would have given time to have the town's 10-year-old community plan revised.

(At last week's meeting Ald. Peter Grant suggested a moratorium on development until the plan is revised but his proposal was defeated.)

Instead, aldermen voted to ask municipal staff to prepare recommendations on the condominium proposal for the next council meeting.

Ker Priestman and Associates Ltd. of Victoria has proposed the condominium project on behalf of the property owners, Piccadilly Apartments Ltd.

A development spokesman said the condominium would contain mostly two-bedroom units, with about eight three-bedroom units.

There would be an outdoor tennis court, indoor swimming pool, saunas and game rooms.

The acreage is now zoned single-family residential. The design would carry on the theme of the adjacent Marina Park development, Peter Orme, of the architectural firm Orme and Levinson, said.

In other business, council recommended approval of an application by Island View Marina Ltd. to rezone its property to commercial-residential.

More 2,4-D In Lake

Environment ministry officials today were to treat a 10-acre plot of Okanagan Lake with the controversial herbicide 2,4-D, research officer Steve Phillips said Monday.

The application at Wilson's Landing will be followed by treatment to other areas of the lake later in the week, he said.

Phillips said treatment of Kalamalka Lake south of Vernon, scheduled for Monday, was postponed until next year because of water supply problems to the nearby municipality of Coldstream.

Coldstream gets its water from the lake, and the water intake systems in treatment areas are shut off while the herbicide is applied and not turned on again until there is no trace of the chemical left in the water, Phillips said.

$5000 Donation To Castle

In a press release, Nesbitt said a former charter member of the society, the late Frances Jordan, has contributed $5,000 toward the restoration process.

A provincial government grant of $12,000 has also recently been received and the society has received $12,294 through the castle collection box.

New additions to the castle this year include furniture and two stained glass windows done by Warren Becker of Sooke. Two more windows are under construction.

Nesbitt said the donation from Miss Jordan may be used to furnish a room in her name.

Although funds from the collection box have increased from last year, the society is not doing as well as it did in 1976.

4 Held After Siege

PARIS (AP) — French police held three Iraqi security agents and a badly wounded terrorist today after the terrorist's siege in the Iraqi embassy ended in a gun battle between embassy guards and the police.

The police said they grabbed the Iraqis after the agents tried to kill the terrorist, reputed to be a member of Yasser Arafat's guerrilla army, as they were taking him away at the end of the 8½-hour siege Monday.

At least 17 shots were fired; one policeman and one Iraqi guard were killed, and two other policemen, an Arab League official and the terrorist were wounded.

Reliable sources said the terrorist belonged to Al Fatah, Arafat's guerrilla organization which the Iraqi government opposes because it considers Arafat too soft toward Israel.

The terrorist demanded the release of a woman held in London for an assassination attempt on the Iraqi ambassador to Britain on Friday.

Rhodesia Claims 10 Bases

SALISBURY (AP) — The Rhodesian military command says it has knocked out 10 of guerrilla leader Robert Mugabe's bases in neighboring Mozambique during a two-day attack. Mozambique officials said 12 persons were killed in the raids and 110 wounded.

"A total of 10 terrorist bases have been effectively neutralized," said a brief Rhodesian communique issued Monday night. "As a result of these self-defence operations against these terrorist bases, the intended disruptive effects have been achieved. Security forces suffered one minor casualty."

The raids, which began Sunday, were the first admitted Rhodesian move into Mozambique since last November, when the Rhodesians said they killed 1,200 guerrillas of Mugabe's Zimbabwe African National Union (ZANU).

In Maputo, the capital of Mozambique, a government spokesman said the attacks were carried out by fighter-bombers and no Rhodesian infantry crossed the border. He said 12 persons were killed and 110 wounded in Manica province and a school there was destroyed. He gave no casualty figures or damage reports for other areas that were attacked.

The Rhodesian statement did not say whether infantry units had actually crossed the frontier and gave no estimate of guerrilla casualties. Its subdued tone was considered either a reflection of awareness of international opposition to strikes into neighboring countries or an indication that the raids weren't as successful as hoped for.

Rev. Ndabaningi Sithole, one of the three black members of the executive council that heads the bi-racial Rhodesian government set up in March, said the raids were "ill-advised."

Meanwhile, in a joint statement the black and white co-foreign ministers in the government, Eliott Gabellah and Pieter van der Byl, announced that "fair and free majority-rule elections" will be held in early December in accordance with the March agreement between Prime Minister Ian Smith, Sithole and two other moderate black leaders.

They invited U.S., British and UN observers to watch the elections and said guerrilla leaders Mugabe and Joshua Nkomo of the Zimbabwe African People's Union (ZAPU) "are welcome to return to Rhodesia and to fully participate in the transitional government providing they work within recognized government procedures."

Mugabe and Nkomo rejected the agreement between Smith and the moderates and have stepped up their guerrilla war since formation of the bi-racial interim government.

Male Principal For St. Joseph's

St. Joseph's Catholic School in Saanich has selected its first male principal.

Roger Heaton, 34, will take over from Sister Elizabeth, who is taking a sabbatical after three years at the 13-year-old school at 757 West Burnside Road.

Heaton was educated in England and has been principal at a 12-pupil alternative school for emotionally disturbed teen-agers in Nanaimo. He has also taught in England, Toronto and Los Angeles.

St. Joseph's is an independent school for students from pre-school to Grade 7 and is eligible for the maximum in government grants under the Independent Schools Support Act.

Vancouver Takes Provincial Crown

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Vancouver Inter-City Community beat Coquitlam 13-2 in the second game Sunday to win the Babe Ruth British Columbia baseball championship for 14- and 15-year olds.

In the first game, Coquitlam edged Vancouver 9-8 to force a deciding contest.

Vancouver finished the six-day, double-loss-eliimination tournament with five wins and one loss. Coquitlam had a 5-2 record. Eight teams were entered in the tournament.

Soccer Ranks Keep Growing

HALIFAX (CP) — The number of boys and girls under the age of 18 playing organized soccer in Canada is continuing to increase at a dramatic rate, Kevan Pipe, youth development co-ordinator with the Canadian Soccer Association, has announced.

Pipe said in an interview he estimates 150,000 players between the ages of six and 18 will be registered in the association's youth division by the end of the current season.

About 77,000 of the 118,074 players registered last year played in the under-10, under-12 and under-14 categories.

Pipe said more growth in the game's popularity among young Canadians is expected with the sanctioning of regional and national championships for girls.

Ontario led the provinces with 45,323 registered in 1977—37,823 boys and 7,500 girls.

INSULATION GRANT CUT-OFF AUG. 18

A $70,000 federal grant for insulating houses for low-income people in Esquimalt-Saanich will be exhausted Aug. 18.

The Esquimalt-Saanich Reinsulation Project provides free labor, counselling and help in obtaining financial assistance to purchase insulation materials.

Soothing Letter On Ferries

B.C. Ferries general manager Charles Gallagher has written a letter to all the Crown corporation's employees telling them that they can be proud of the ferry system.

The move is an apparent effort to counter union complaints about staffing and safety aboard the ferries, as well as public statements alleging poor communication between the corporation's management and its employees.

Gallagher says in the July 25 letter that he is proud of the ferry service "and I say so to anyone who is willing to listen and to those who knock us who are not willing to listen."

He says it seems at times that uninformed, so-called experts on the deficiencies of the ferry system abound.

"Everyone knows how to operate our ferry system and the experts are quick to criticize and never take the time to appreciate the quality of the service we provide," Gallagher says.

The letter was sent about a week after 32 crew members of the Queen of Coquitlam walked off the job for a few hours at Horseshoe Bay. They were protesting management's failure to deal with their concerns, a union spokesman said.

The Labor Relations Board intervened and got both parties to agree to settle their differences through the normal grievance procedure. However, the incident flared up again two days later when Gallagher suspended 26 of the workers involved in the walkout.

Bryan Williams was appointed a special officer in the dispute. Until he has presented his report, the suspensions have been held up and further job action prohibited.

$100-$200M Insurance Eyed at Airports

VANCOUVER (CP) — A senior ministry of transport (MoT) official said Monday that some municipalities are paying 38 times as much as others for air-accident liability insurance coverage at municipality-operated airports across the country.

Jack Cadieux, director-general of airports and construction services for the MoT, said in a telephone interview from Ottawa the government hopes to rationalize the tangled airport insurance picture by acquiring $100 million to $200 million worth of blanket coverage for 36 Canadian airports this fall.

The MoT began looking at the insurance picture when other municipalities operating MoT airports became alarmed about the possibilities of enormous settlements resulting from a major air disaster, far above the kind of coverage a city or town can afford to buy on its own.

Under the current MoT proposal, the insurance would apply to all airports simultaneously covering smaller claims, and also would be activated in the event of municipal liability in a major airport crash. It means that all participating municipalities would have $100 million to $200 million worth of coverage collectively and individually.

A consultant investigated the coverage currently carried individually by the 36 airports—six of which are in British Columbia— and discovered some of them are carrying as little as $100,000 in liability insurance. Others, said Cadieux, are carrying up to $10 million, with the average generally in the $1 million to $2 million range.

The consultant also worked out premium payments made by the municipalities and discovered that the highest was paying 38 times a $1 million worth of coverage more than the lowest, said Cadieux.

He did not name the airports or municipalities involved.

He said the MoT now is attempting to determine just how much coverage the municipalities need to cover their liability at MoT airports by analyzing aircraft and passenger traffic patterns across the country.

Tax Effect Varies If Merger Proceeds

If the three western communities incorporated, Colwood residents would pay slightly higher taxes, while Metchosin and Langford residents would pay less, according to municipal affairs department figures.

The western communities' restructuring committee studied these figures Monday night as part of its continuing study of the pros and cons of a merger.

Had Colwood incorporated this year, a taxpayer living in a $68,000 home would have had an additional tax levy of $25.42.

A Langford resident, however, living in a $62,000 home would have saved $3.25 and got rid of a lot of regional government control, the department says.

Provincial government grants — about $15 million available during the initial five-year period — could also reduce taxes during the first years of incorporation.

Similar statements for View Royal will be prepared by the department in the near future.

Metchosin director Mac Tipton said today another meeting will be held Aug. 22 after committee members have had time to study the proposals more closely.

Following that meeting, Tipton said public meetings will be held on the incorporation issue and explanations of the proposal carried in the newspapers.

A telephone hot line will be set up and be available Monday to Friday from noon to 5 p.m. to answer queries.

View Royal director Al Beasley said Monday, "We have enough on our plate as it is, worrying about sewers, and we'll have a sewer referendum around that time. We may give it a miss entirely this time around."

He said he was not concerned about missing out on government grants promised if all the western regions vote at the same time. "The government can always change its mind," he said.

Beasley said he had been talking to Esquimalt on the possibility of amalgamating with that municipality but said Esquimalt is unwilling to accept View Royal until sewers are installed.

The provincial government has promised the incorporation committee $5,000 for promotion work, in addition to the $4,000 left over from last year when $1,000 was spent in an abortive attempt to hold a vote.

It is proposed to set boundaries roughly along the lines of fire districts with Colwood and Langford voting on whether or not to form an amalgamated municipality and Metchosin voting alone.

Drugs Sentences

BRUNSWICK, Ga. (AP) — A federal magistrate has set bail at $50,000 each for 14 men charged in the seizure of about 22 tons of marijuana off the Georgia coast. The marijuana, five boats and seven vehicles were seized during a raid Saturday.

No-Frill Housing Challenge

Plans for no-frill housing in an 11-lot subdivision at Brentwood are being challenged by nearby residents who want council to act to protect their property values.

A meeting tonight of Central Saanich Advisory Planning Commission was expected to make a recommendation for aldermen to deal with at their next meeting Aug. 8.

Council has received a 200-name petition against the Marchant-Sluggett-Clark subdivision, including a number of applications for building aid under the federal Assisted Home Ownership Plan. Signatories ask council to do something to prevent devaluation of surrounding development.

But as a municipal official pointed out, if plans conform to regulations and meet building requirements and zoning bylaws, council must grant approval.

"It seems to be the age when people oppose everything," he commented, acknowledging that an existing property owner has the right to enhance the value of his home.

There is also need for affordable housing — smaller, more energy-conserving units — because young people with families can't pay for conventional mortgages at today's prices, he said.

No Bids on Charlotte Ferry

The first time bids were tendered, only two companies — Burrard Drydock and Vancouver Shipyards — submitted proposals.

So the B.C. Ferries went back to tender, called bids again but the shipbuilders didn't go back to the drawing board.

Tenders closed last week, and there were no bids.

Ferry general manager Charles Gallagher said the next move is up to the board of directors who will likely discuss the situation at the next board meeting later this month.

A tug and barge service continues to serve the islands.

95th YEAR, No. 45 ★ ★ ★ VICTORIA, BRITISH COLUMBIA, TUESDAY, AUGUST 1, 1978 15 CENTS DAILY, 30 CENTS SATURDAY

Award Cut Over Belt

A Victoria man has had his B.C. Supreme Court damage award for injuries in a traffic accident more than two years ago chopped by a quarter because he wasn't wearing a seatbelt.

Kim Anthony Charles Lucas, then 19, suffered a fractured pelvis and several less serious injuries when the car in which he was a passenger left West Saanich Road near the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory May 8, 1976, and rolled over several times.

He sued the driver of the car, Susan Raper (formerly Davis), then 17 and the owner of the car, her mother, Dorothea Davis.

Mr. Justice Kenneth Meredith assessed damages for pain and suffering, past and future, loss of pleasures of physical recreation and a life-time limp at $28,000 with an additional $8,000 for the risks in a further operation if one becomes necessary. Special damages and passed wages lost of $4,000 had also been agreed on.

Meredith said Lucas was sitting in the right front bucket seat of a small Cortina which was equipped with seat belts that were rarely used. Before the accident, Lucas recognized the danger he was in and warned the driver to slow down several times but she did not do so and the accident resulted, Meredith said.

Liability was admitted but the defendants said the award should be reduced by 25 per cent because Lucas wasn't wearing a seatbelt.

Meredith said he would do this if the defendants established that the injury would not have occurred had the seatbelt been used.

He said Lucas wasn't excused because of forgetfulness or neglect from his obligation to care for his safety by using a seat belt.

He said the seatbelt was designed to hold the passenger firmly in place in an accident such as this. An expert witness said Lucas' injuries would not have occurred had the belt been worn.

FOOD PRICES LEVELLING OFF

OTTAWA (CP) — Recent sharp rises in food prices have levelled out and consumers can expect stable prices for the rest of the year, the anti-inflation board predicted Monday.

Reporting on its regular monthly survey of supermarket prices in 12 cities across the country, the board said the price rise in the four weeks to July 21 was the smallest this year.

In that period, prices increased six-tenths of one per cent. The increases apparently peaked in early July, when they were rising at 4½ per cent a month, and have been rising more slowly since, the board says.

But board officials caution that it will likely be September before the price moderation shows up in Statistics Canada's consumer price index, the most commonly used inflation measure. The board's survey is more current than the consumer price index.

Prices for fresh produce in particular should start declining in late summer and fall as domestic supplies become available, the board survey notes.

In the past four weeks, beef and fresh vegetable prices have declined significantly, the board says. In the past six months, beef prices particularly have led generally escalating consumer prices. Prices for poultry, margarine, shortening, apples, potatoes and other root vegetables rose in the past month.

In the four weeks to July 21, beef prices declined by 2.9 per cent, the survey found. Recent declines in live and wholesale beef prices suggest continuing lower beef prices in coming weeks, the board says. But for the longer term, beef will rise again, it predicts.

Beef prices now are 49 per cent higher than a year ago, according to the board's survey.

Major Prisoner Swap Includes Shcharansky?

VIENNA (Reuter) — Jailed Russian dissident Anatoly Shcharansky will shortly be flown to the West as part of a major East-West swap of prisoners, sources involved in the bargaining said today.

But plans for Shcharansky, convicted of treason by a Moscow court last month, to be traded for East German spies Guenter and Christel Guillaume have been vetoed by West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt, the sources said.

Instead the Soviet Union, acting through an East bloc negotiator, has indicated its willingness to exchange the 30-year-old dissident computer scientist for an unidentified person being held in the West.

Details of the swap were being worked out in Europe and the United States this week by the Communist negotiator and U.S. state department representatives, with an Israeli parliamentarian acting as intermediary.

The Israeli, billionaire Samuel Flatto-Sharon was also engaged in parallel negotiations with Russian go-betweens to secure the release of up to 12 Jewish dissidents jailed or exiled in the Soviet Union, the sources told Reuters news agency in an interview here.

Shcharansky's release was to have involved Guillaume, a personal political adviser to Willy Brandt whose arrest as a spy in 1974 led to Brandt's resignation as West German chancellor.

But the sources said Schmidt, who succeeded Brandt as government head, refused to release the Guillaumes on political grounds during a personal interview with the East Bloc negotiator.

Guillaume has served 2½ years of a 13-year prison term after being convicted in 1975 of spying for East Germany. His wife Christel is also in a West German jail on related charges.

Flatto-Sharon has been active in previous prisoner exchanges with East German lawyer Wolfgang Vogel, most recently in a complicated three-way trade last April which was to have included Shcharansky.

The sources, who have been directly involved in bargaining between Tel Aviv, Washington, East Berlin and Moscow, said the Russian withdrew their offer to free the dissident scientist as a follow-up to the April deal when rumors of an impending court case against him led to protests in the West.

Shcharansky was sentenced on July 14 to three years in jail and 10 years in a labor camp.

U.K. Shops Dump B.C. Salmon

Times News Services

LONDON — Supermarkets and stores are clearing their shelves of canned salmon today — especially salmon from Canada and the United States — in the wake of a British government health warning.

The alert went out after four older persons, who ate salmon allegedly from Canada, became ill in Birmingham with symptoms of deadly botulism poisoning.

"We just do not know whether this was an isolated case or if there are thousands of contaminated tins in the country," a department spokesman said.

"Our strong advice is, if you have a can of salmon from America or Canada, do not eat it.

"If anyone is in doubt, they should avoid all tinned salmon."

The spokesman said: "We are very worried by the situation and we do not issue such warnings lightly."

The bulk of salmon sold here, where it has been considered a delicacy for years, comes from Canada and the United States. It is bought by a number of British firms and sold under various brand names.

Sainbury's, one of the large supermarket chains here, ordered all 187 branches to stop selling canned salmon of all kinds "to avoid confusion."

An Ottawa spokesman said today that possibly contaminated salmon reported sold in Britain does not come from Canada but from the U.S.

Health and fisheries officials said they are not yet able to explain why the cans are labelled Produce of Canada when they are processed in Alaska, and shipped to England via the Peter Pan Seafood Co. of Seattle, the spokesman said.

"Naturally our main concern is whether Canadians are in danger," he said. "However, there is a very good chance the salmon cans didn't come into Canada."

In Vancouver, the head of the salmon inspection program for B.C. also stressed that there is no health danger from canned salmon sold in Canada.

Boy, 15, Caught With Coke

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A 15-year-old South American boy was arrested at Los Angeles International Airport Monday with 2½ pounds of cocaine stashed in his suitcase, authorities said.

U.S. Customs inspectors said they found the cocaine, which they said had a street value of $700,000, during a routine search of the boy's luggage.

The boy was the youngest smuggling suspect ever arrested at Los Angeles International Airport.

Two Colombians, meanwhile, were arrested at the Mexico City International Airport with 14 pounds of cocaine, worth $5 million, hidden inside six pairs of shoes and a suitcase with a false bottom.

Dollar Skids To New Low

Times News Services

The battered U.S. dollar crashed to another low against the Japanese yen and skidded on European money exchanges today, sending gold to its highest price in history.

The dollar hit a low of 187.00 yen in hectic trading before rebounding slightly to close at 188.00. The Japanese government called the drop "noteworthy" and said it might tighten foreign exchange controls to stem the dollar's decline.

The Canadian dollar followed it U.S. counterpart downward on world markets and continued its decline against the American dollar as well. The U.S. dollar was up 2-5 to $1.1389 in Montreal at noon today and in New York the Canadian dollar was down 31-100 at 87.8 cents.

The U.S. currency also sank in Europe and investors, worried over the dollar's future, shifted their funds into gold, a traditional hedge against economic uncertainty.

The price of gold soared in hectic London trading today, reaching an all-time high of $207.50 U.S. an ounce before dropping back in late afternoon dealing.

The big five London bullion dealers fixed the price of the metal at $205.10 an ounce at the late afternoon fixing, down $2.40 from the record-high morning fixing price of $207.50.

But it was still $4.85 above Monday's close of $200.35. The previous high, set last Friday, was $201.30.

Demand for gold was so strong that the price inched upward 12.5 cents after the formal fixing.

In Paris the American dollar opened at 4.3525 francs, its lowest figure since Nov. 3, 1975, when it touched the same figure. At Monday's close it was 4.3625 francs.

In Tokyo the U.S. dollar ended the day's trading at 188 yen, down sharply from the previous low of 190.30 and the close of 190.80 on Monday.

Immediately after opening at 188.50, the dollar slumped to the new, lower rate. It has lost 26.7 per cent in value since Jan. 4, when it was traded at 237 yen. Compared with the long-established postwar rate of 360 yen, the ratio of depreciation came to 92.5 per cent.

Earth Opening Beneath Kamloops Homes

VANCOUVER (CP) — At least 20 new houses could collapse in the immediate future after a massive land shift in a picturesque valley overlooking the South Thompson River in Kamloops, officials said Monday.

One family already has had to evacuate its $60,000 house, after huge cracks opened up in the crumbling silt around the home.

The house now is hanging precariously over a 10-metre-high cliff, and the young owners and their two-year-old baby are living in a tent in the backyard after being warned the house could collapse at any time.

"This is just the tip of the iceberg," Mike Latta Kamloops mayor said Monday night. "This is a very serious situation — it's a natural disaster, and at least another 20 homes are in immediate danger.

"We want to see something done, but it is the provincial government's responsibility. The provincial highways department originally approved the development, and we are not going to assume financial responsibility."

"This building should never have been allowed, the whole area is geologically very unstable," a senior civil engineer said.

Civil engineers and geologists have prepared a rush report for provincial highways and Public Works Minister Alex Fraser, who was expected to take action today.

"The bureaucrats are passing the buck, while my house is collapsing around me," said teacher Don Erickson, 28, owner of the house which has begun to collapse.

"It's crumbling before our eyes. We've literally put our last penny into our home, and I'm sure not going to stand back and see it go down the drain.

"Unless someone helps us we're going to have to declare bankruptcy.

"We've taken out all our furniture and belongings and stored it with friends in eight different houses," he said. "All we've got left there is the tent, but a crack has opened up under that now, so we're going to have to stay with friends.

"My insurance company say it's a natural disaster and won't help; Kamloops City Council won't do anything; and my lawyer says my mortgage company will sue me if I don't pay them back. My last hope is the provincial government."

The Ericksons moved into their house three years ago. They paid $46,500 then, and still have a $34,000 mortgage.

"We noticed the first crack in the land about two months ago," said Debby Erickson. "It was quite a way from the house, and the city engineer's department assured us we had nothing to worry about.

"Then the cracks started getting bigger and bigger and much nearer the house. The foundation has sunk five inches, the floors have twisted — it's an uphill walk from the bathroom to the living room — and there are cracks in the walls."

Gymnastics at Edmonton Could be Canadian Show

PHILIP DELESALLE
. . . one of world's best

By Canadian Press

The strongest competition for Canadian gymnasts at the Commonwealth Games that start Thursday in Edmonton is likely to come, not from England or Australia, but from other Canadians.

"I would say the Canadian team, both men and women, has an excellent chance of taking top placement in both team and individual competition," says Gladys Hartley, the team manager.

The team events are scheduled for Aug. 6-7 and the individual all-around competition Aug. 8-9.

Predictions are based on the performance of the Canadians in international competition because gymnastics has never been a Commonwealth Games event in the past.

There doesn't seem to be anyone from other Commonwealth countries who can come close to Philip Delesalle, the 21 year-old men's champion from Victoria.

Delesalle is rated among the top three in the world on the pommel horse, one of six events in men's competition. He reinforced his rating by earning a perfect mark of 10 in an international meet in Vancouver in February.

He is also a solid all-round gymnast, meaning he could be tops on the rings, vault, parallel bars, horizontal bar and in the floor exercises.

If anyone is to threaten his dominance, it could be other members of the Canadian men's team—Jean Choquette, 22, of Montreal, Owen Walstrom, 24, of Vancouver, and Nigel Rothwell, 21, of Windsor, Ont.

Rothwell was a replacement for Warren Long who was injured at the Canadian championships in Ottawa but the team did not lose much as a result of the switch.

In the women's competition, Elfi Schlegel, 14, of Toronto, the new Canadian champion, and Karen Kelsall, 15, of Surrey, B.C., the former champion, will be in a head-to head battle.

But Hartley is also high on the chances of two 13-year olds—Monica Goermann of Winnipeg and Sherry Hawco of Cambridge, Ont.

And she wouldn't be surprised if Canadian girls were to sweep all the medals in the individual all-round, which includes the vault, uneven bars, balance beam and floor exercises.

"England and Australia would possibly be somewhat of a threat to our women's team, but not a great deal," Hartley noted.

Unlike the Olympic Games, where gold medals were awarded for each apparatus competition, there will be no individual apparatus events.

But the team and individual all-round medals will be awarded on the basis of two separate competitions, not from one competition as in the Olympics. There will be no compulsory exercises in the Commonwealth Games.

The final two days of competition have been sold out for some time and, as in Montreal, it is apparent that gymnastics has become one of the glamor sports in international competition.

That's a tribute to Nadia Comaneci and Olga Korbut, the European girls whose charismatic performances at the last two Olympics have given gymnastics an element of excitement that puts it in the class with swimming and track and field.

Bowling Reward

Lisa, who finished fourth in the girls' handicap division, earned the scholarship on the combination of bowling prowess and a written examination.

Another scholarship went to Vince Ornato of West Vancouver. Winner of the boys' handicap championship, he will represent the Northwest region in the national rolloffs in Greenwich, Conn., Aug. 16-20.

Nanaimo Test For Golf Vets

Gordon Verley of Victoria, last year's low-gross champion, and Dick Renwick of Nanaimo, the 1977 handicap winner, will be shooting for repeat triumphs Friday when members of the Vancouver Island Seniors' Golf Association compete in their annual tournament at Nanaimo Golf Club.

Tourney officials have scheduled a shotgun start at 9:30 a.m. for the field of 144 contestants, who will begin play from the following tee positions:

VICTORIA RUTH TEAM SURVIVES

Victoria bowed 11-0 to Seattle in their opening game and then rebounded with a 9-1 decison over Idaho Falls at the weekend.

Perry Walz picked up the pitching victory over Oregon while Calvin Harrison and Glen Smith supplied the necessary backup support by each tagging a home run.

Either Wyoming or Montana will provide the opposition for Victoria as play continues in the tourney tonight.

VANCOUVER PAIR LEADS

Canadian Pair Takes Atlantic Doubles Final

ELFIE SCHLEGEL

HALIFAX (CP) — Dale Power of Toronto and Richard LeGendre of Quebec City won the men's doubles event at the $15,000 Atlantic Open tennis tournament Sunday, defeating two U.S. competitors.

Power and LeGendre defeated top-seeded Bruce Kleege of La Jolla, Calif., and Joe Garcia of Knoxville, Tenn., 6-4, 7-6 after the second set went to a 12-10 tiebreaker.

They became the first Canadians to win an event on the $100,000 American Express Canadian challengers circuit, gaining a standing ovation from the crowd as they strolled from the court.

Kleege had previously won the singles crowns in the British Columbia and Quebec Opens and was ousted from singles contention here Saturday when his come-from-behind bid was foiled in the semi-finals.

The Atlantic Open was the fifth and final tournament leading to the $25,000 Masters Tournament, starting Wednesday at Montreal.

Six Canadian men won berths in either singles or doubles play in the Montreal masters.

The Atlantic Open singles title went to Australia's Alvin Gardiner, who defeated Emilio Montano of Mexico 6-3, 6-2 after Montano won the first three games in the first set.

In women's singles, third-seeded Leslie Allen of New York City defeated Kym Ruddell of Melbourne, Australia, 6-2, 7-5 to get the title.

Allen came back with Aleida Spex of Miami, Fla., to win the doubles event over Brenda Perry of New Zealand and Britain's Kate Brasher 6-2, 6-2.

Only the top 16 men and eight women, based on points accumulated during the B.C., Prairie, Ontario, Quebec amd Atlantic Opens advanced to the masters.

In Sunday's finals, the men's and women's singles champions both won purses of $1,800.

First Defeat For Alberta

WINNIPEG (CP) — An afternoon downpour marred the third round of the Canadian cricket championship Monday, and the day's three matches had to be decided on the basis of overs bowled and runs scored.

Ontario scored 245 with the loss of six wickets to defeat previously-unbeaten Alberta, which lost three wickets for 88 runs.

In other matches, Quebec 5—244 beat Saskatchewan 7—93, and British Columbia 5—150 defeated Nova Scotia 9—174. Manitoba had a bye.

Four teams—reigning champion Ontario, Quebec, B. C. and Alberta—shared the lead with 12 points each after Monday's round. Manitoba had six points, and Saskatchewan and Nova Scotia were winless with no points.

The week-long tournament ends Saturday.

Ontario captain Glenroy Sealy set his province off to a good start by scoring 61 runs. But the star of the inning was right-hander Cecil Marshall, who scored a powerful 91 before being trapped in front by Hal Bowen.

The best match of the afternoon was between British Columbia and Nova Scotia. Although outclassed in the first two games, Nova Scotia came out fighting Monday, and batsman Rustum Southwell scored a hard-hitting 87 runs before he was caught behind by keeper Anthony Brierley off the bowling of Steven Deare.

N. S. pacemen Cecil Solomon and Renn Holness had British Columbia in trouble early, and three wickets were quickly down for 12 runs.

Jetfoil Ride at 42 Knots Smooth as an Airliner

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

Jetfoils aren't for thrills,

In fact, the Flying Princess II that Washington State Ferries has chartered for a trial service between Victoria and Seattle until Aug. 14 is about as exciting as a scheduled airline flight — even if it is a boat travelling at 42 knots.

Leaving the Black Ball ferry dock in the Inner Harbor on Monday to savor the hydrofoil being put through her paces in a short demonstration off the Victoria coastline there was an anticipated excitement among those taking their first ride in such a craft.

We taxied out quietly until the Ogden Point breakwater was in sight.

Then effortlessly the Flying Princess II picked up speed and almost without her passengers noticing, her hull was above the water on her three foils.

The captain announced she was doing 42 knots. It wasn't until we looked out at the shoreline we realized how fast we were moving.

Being aboard the Flying Princess II is like flying in a Boeing 747. There are the familiar seats and seatbelts. Except for its width the pilot house looks like the cockpit of an airplane.

And, just as when an airplane is airborne, it is hard to get the sense of speed.

Add to this the use of hydraulic controls, computers, ailerons and flaps and the impression that you're in a plane is inescapable.

Nothing else near Flying Princess's size — 90 feet long, 31 feet wide and 15 long tons — can make a 360-degree turn in such a short time and so smoothly. We went through gyrations, flanked on one side by a Canadian destroyer making her way to Royal Roads and a clutch of sports fishermen's boats and a tug on the other.

Circling at 42 knots the hydrofoil didn't even make a wash. It was so smooth that, as the craft tilted and circled, the contents of coffee cups remained undisturbed.

Next came a fake emergency landing. This had to be the thrill we were all anticipating.

Wrong again. A slight bump and the maneouvre was over.

There are five on commuter runs in Hong Kong, one runs a shuttle service from downtown London to Zeebrugge, yet another provides service in the Irish Channel, running between Dublin and Liverpool.

There are also Boeing hydrofoils in Venezuela.

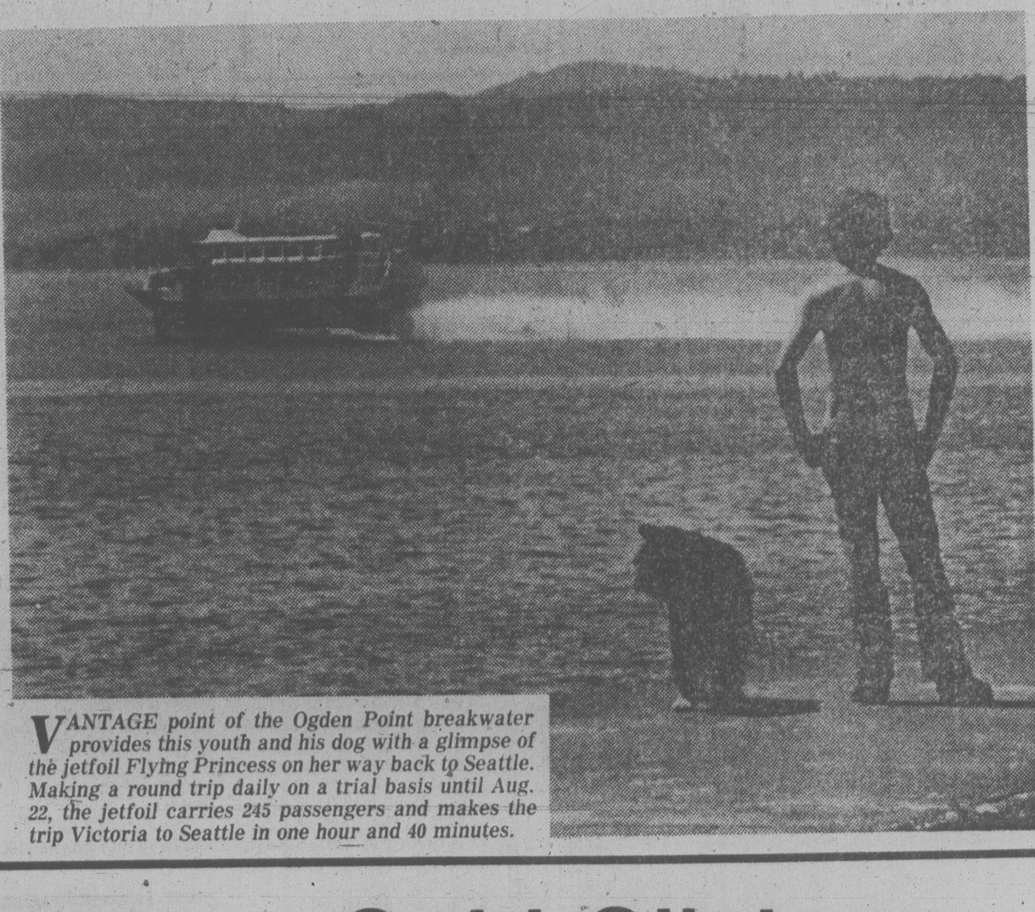
Boeing is designing a special hydrofoil for the Royal Navy that will act as a fisheries patrol vessel, being able to patrol Britain's 200-mile limit at high speeds and yet have the capability to stay on station for long periods.

Nuzzling sideways into her berth just feet ahead of the Princess Marguerite, the Flying Princess II finally gave at least some semblance of the thrill we'd all been expecting.

An indescribable noise ground beneath us but even that turned into an anti-climax.

A cabin attendant explained that it was just the bow thruster which makes manoeuvring in close quarters a cinch.

So much for thrills.



VANTAGE point of the Ogden Point breakwater provides this youth and his dog with a glimpse of the jetfoil Flying Princess on her way back to Seattle. Making a round trip daily on a trial basis until Aug. 22, the jetfoil carries 245 passengers and makes the trip Victoria to Seattle in one hour and 40 minutes.

Builder Cuts Down Minnie Mount Plans

Broadmead Farms Ltd. has revised its plans for a proposed major housing development on Minnie Mountain in the Ten Mile Point area in an effort to allay neighborhood fears of high-rise intrusion into a single-family residential area.

Managing director Gordon Rolston says there will be more apartment buildings than originally proposed but they won't be so lofty.

Instead of two apartment buildings of five and eight storeys, the plans now envisage four low-profile apartment blocks.

The firm also intends to build 62 townhouses and 82 single-family homes on the 70-acre property.

Saanich council's Advisory Planning Commission considered the revised Broadmead submission last week, and sources say the commission has recommended approval.

If council endorses the recommendation next week, the matter will automatically go to a public hearing, probably no earlier than September.

APC backing alone is no guarantee that the housing development will be allowed to proceed, in the face of stiff opposition from the Cadboro Bay Residents Association which wants to preserve the area for single-family homes.

In the city of Victoria, where several council members also serve on the city's advisory planning commission, APC recommendations are routinely accepted by council.

But in Saanich under Mayor Mel Couvelier's earlier policy change there is no political representation on the advisory group, and its recommendations are often overturned by council.

New Claims Centre Considered by ICBC

The Insurance Corporation of B.C. may build a new claims centre to serve the Greater Victoria area — if it can sell the Douglas Street property housing its present centre for an attractive price.

"It all depends on the numbers," an ICBC spokesman said in Vancouver Monday. "If we get a favorable offer and the price is right we may proceed with a new claims facility."

Meanwhile, he said, the corporation has no specific sites in mind for the new claims centre although it has looked at several in the general vicinity of its present base, which ICBC purchased from Johnston Terminals Ltd. in 1973.

The three-acre property between the Canadian National Railway tracks and Douglas Street is bounded on the north by Ardesier Road and on the south by Kelvin Road.

The northern two-thirds of the block, covering nearly 100,400 square feet, and the warehouse-office buildings on it have been advertised for sale by the corporation.

Tenders have to be submitted by Sept. 1.

The southern portion occupying more than 46,100 square feet is not included in the sale.

The Vancouver spokesman for the corporation said better facilities are needed for processing claims.

"The ones we have served yeoman duty in the early stages but you have to remember it was a warehouse that was converted for that purpose," he said.

"It isn't terribly conducive to the efficient handling of claims, as the other centres are."

Ask the Times

Q. Please give me the mailing address of Vernon Presley and Col. Tom Parker.. L.D.

A. Write to them c/o Ballantine Books, 201 East 50th St., New York City, New York 10022.

In a recent Ask the Times item a reader asked when the Hudson's Bay Company building was built.

The reply was construction started in 1912 but because of the First World War was not completed until Sept. 19, 1921.

Another reader, F.G.P. Maurice of 3921 Braefoot Place, points out we were a year out. He is correct. On checking we find excavation actually started Sept. 18, 1913.

PAPER DRIVE TO AID FERRIES?

The B.C. Ferries Corp. operations department is looking into a recycling program for discarded newspapers on ferries.

General manager Charles Gallagher says if there is sufficient volume and it doesn't cost any more money "we'd be pleased to do it."

Victoria NDP MLA Charles Barber suggested the program in a letter to Gallagher.

Recycling depot supervisor Michael Romano said: "We're looking at saving money for the corporation. The less they throw away, the less they'll pay in disposal charges.

Price War Mashes Bananas

Bananas may be selling for anything from 12 cents to 39 cents a pound this week as the great banana marketing war continues.

"There's some very aggressive marketing going on in the banana business," federal agriculture spokesman Don Fisher said today.

He said bananas normally are around 30 cents a pound at this time of year, and have been as high as 39.

"But we have seen prices as low as 12 cents a pound in Victoria and Vancouver. That makes them a real bargain when you consider that the price of grapes and stone fruits is high — 69 to 79 cents a pound. I have even seen grapes at $1.09."

The banana war erupted when Del Monte decided to get a larger piece of the market away from Dole and United Fruit.

They flooded the region with large amounts of bananas and the price war began.

"The competiton had no choice but to cut prices," Fisher said. "Bananas are a highly-perishable item."

Fisher said he first noted the unusual activity when import totals of bananas began to climb.

"During the past month to six weeks the amount of bananas coming into B.C. is almost 33 per cent above the normal amount. These people are really trying to shoulder into the market."

Like all price wars, however, this one is expected to be short-lived. Prices are already starting to edge upwards as the surplus begins to be reduced.

Spokesmen for produce companies confirmed that a banana price war is under way but pressure is easing, which means prices will rise over the next 10 days.

The bananas are grown in Central America and are landed by ship in San Francisco. From there they are distributed by truck to B.C.

Gold Glistens In Sellers' Eyes

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

A spectacular leap in the international price of gold has created a seller's market.

Anne Mills, supervisor of the securities branch at the Bank of Nova Scotia in Victoria said today the bank is purchasing more than 10 times what it is selling.

In the past couple of weeks the bank has purchased more than 400 ounces from customers. Over the same period it has sold only 30 ounces. The bank's purchases of South African Krugerrands are also more than its sales, 135 compared with 87.

In Vancouver, too, the rush is on to sell, a spokesman for the bank said.

For the most part, however, investors who bought gold earlier in the year are cashing in on gold prices which on Monday reached an all-time high on the London Gold Exchange. The price opened at $207.50 U.S. and closed at $204.40.

The price in Canadian dollars is $232.98. On top of that purchasers have to pay bank charges — $5 for telephoning in the order, $3 minimum for shipping and a commission of one quarter of one per cent of the Canadian price.

The London exchange is in chaos today, partly the result of a national holiday in Switzerland, where many of the world's gold deals are put through.

Said Gordon Chambers, an account executive with Merrill Lynch in Victoria: "The prices are jumping all over the place . . . it's all pretty confusing."

Mrs. Mills said interest in gold has never been greater.

"Every minute someone is phoning about gold," she said. "We can't keep up with the calls. They waste a lot of our time."

She said the investment potential of gold is new to a lot of people and they should be putting their questions to qualified commodity dealers, not the bank staff.

Chambers said the soaring interest in gold reflects a lack of confidence in western monetary systems, triggered by the declining value of the U.S. dollar vis-a-vis the Japanese yen. Today the U.S. dollar opened at 187.95 yen, down from 190.80 on Monday.

Interest is growing, too, in other precious metals, particularly silver, which went up to $5.72 today from Monday's $5.57.

Mrs. Mills said there are a handful of people here who have been buying silver over the years.

One is a little old lady who started buying silver when it was $1.65 an ounce. She has purchased three or four of the giant 1,000 ounce (75 pound) bars since.

When asked where she stores them — they're too big for bank safety deposit boxes — she told Mrs. Mills she kept them under her bed.

"We thought she was a bit mad at the time," said Mrs. Mills. "But we don't any more."

HIT-AND-RUN KILLS GIRL, 10

A 10-year-old girl was killed Monday when struck by a hit-and-run car on Gibbins Road in Duncan.

Duncan RCMP said Gina Hutton of 5805 Wilson was walking beside the road with an eight-year-old companion, returning from a trip to a corner store, when a car ran into them from behind. Gina was knocked under the car and was killed instantly; the other, whose name has not been released, bounced off the vehicle and received minor injuries. She was treated at Cowichan District Hospital and released.

The mishap occurred shortly after 5 p.m.

The car kept going but a motorist noted the licence number.

Police said the car continued into downtown Duncan where it was believed to have been involved in several other collisions.

Tube Race Set Sept. 10

Tall Ships come and go, the bathtub race is just a memory for another year, but the Great Inner Tube Race is all ahead of us.

The unique contest will take place in the Gorge on Sunday, Sept. 10, and will attract contestants from Washington and Oregon as well as B.C.

The event, as always, will be organized by the Hampton Park Hustlers Association and this year is sponsored by the Victoria Times. Official entry forms will appear in the Times later this month.

This year there will be a Tubers' Ball on the Saturday night, followed by a parade at noon Sunday with a Capt. Cook theme. The race follows the parade and is over a mile course in the Gorge.

Each tube must carry two people and there are three classes: men, women and mixed.

Entry fees of $5 per tube are used to help local charities and amateur sport.

Nanaimo may resort to motors in its bathtub races but in Victoria's extravaganza only paddles will be used. Nothing can be added to the tubes except paint.

The event is open to anyone over 16, which makes Nanaimo's mayor Frank Ney eligible to get in on the real action.

Holidaying in Florida while she prepared for concert engagements in Mexico, Victoria Symphony concert master Derry Deane found herself in need of some publicity pictures and was pleased to get an offer of photographic services from a relative's visitor. She was a little disconcerted though when he turned out to be a famous wildlife photographer — Philip Kahl, who has had several National Geographic covers and spreads of birds in the Audubon Society books.

But while admittedly being somewhat outside his usual field which is anything from lions and elephants to hummingbirds, he philosophized that after all "maybe a violinist is a rare bird."

At least it can trill along with a canary.

Good Fortune has replaced Mis Fortune on Shirley Wilson's team.

A member of a Langford juvenile girls' softball team, Shirley is the young lady who collided with a goalpost and had to undergo extensive dental treatment. About $2,000 worth.

Good Fortune came around Sunday to offer some more help. Shirley was one of the young women who volunteered to sell tickets on a "50-50" draw held during a Northwest Men's Fastball League game at Royal Athletic Park. She decided she might as well buy one of the tickets and wound up winning $94.

It was, as they say, a popular win.

Educated at Sir James Douglas and Victoria high schools, as well as Victoria College, Firth is the son of Mrs. Frances Firth of 22 Howe Street.

A former pilot, Firth has served three tours in Europe and joined the Canadian armed forces in 1950.

Uplands Gulf Service Centre and Car Wash raised the price last Thursday to $1.50 with gas purchase.

The car wash has been subsidized by gas prices, but still loses $20-30,000 a year, he said.

Across the street, Esso Imperial Centre manager Tom Martin says he will probably follow suit, but doesn't know when.

While most Alaska cruise ships have white hulls shore-strollers on Sunday were surprised to see a navy blue cruise ship off Dallas Road.

For the record, she was the Veendam, formerly the Monarch Star, and was on her way to the Columbia River to get some work done at Portland.

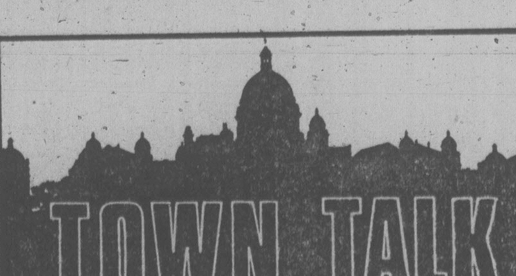
Several New Canadians are among the guests invited to a Government House garden party Monday, marking the visit by the Duke of Edinburgh and Prince Andrew as part of the Captain Cook bicentennial celebrations.



TOWN TALK

Stock car driver Marty White of Kamloops enjoyed a profitable weekend in racing on Vancouver Island at the weekend, and some of the credit has to go to a visiting couple from Alberta.

White finished second in the Strawberry Cup race at Western Speedway on Saturday night. Sunday he headed for Nanaimo to take part in Canadian-American Modified Racing Association event at Grandview Bowl.

The motor of the truck that tows his racing car blew as he was climbing the Malahat Drive.

That's when the Samaritan tourists from Alberta, towing a trailer, happened along. They found a place to park their trailer, unhitched it, then got back on the highway to pick up White and tow his race car to Nanaimo. They spent the day at the races, then towed White and his car back to Mill Bay, where his truck was undergoing repairs.

Barbecuing hints:

Preparation for barbecuing these meats: One-half-in. thick cuts can be slowly cooked frozen. ¾-in. thick cuts should be thawed before cooking. To prevent steak from curling while cooking, nick around edges and slightly into the lean.

- Lightly apply fat to hot grill to prevent meat from sticking. Clean off burned residue from grill.
- To prevent loss of juiciness, don't salt meat before cooking. Turn the meat with tongs.
- To lock in juices, sear both sides of meat while cooking slowly.
- Thicker-cut steaks can be cooked over a hotter fire than thinner steaks, which are burned easily.
- Get that delicious smoke flavor by throwing some damp hardwood on fire. Hickory sawdust is preferred.
- Because heat of fire fluctuates, determine doneness by nicking meat and observe the color.

Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market edged fractionally higher in active mid-afternoon trading.

Among industrials, OPI Ltd. A climbed 1¾ to $14¼, Crestbrook Forest Industries ⅞ to $8, Husky Oil ¾ to $40¾, Great Lakes Paper ⅝ to $34 and Kaiser Resources ⅛ to $14½.

Algoma Steel dropped 1 to $21¾, Bow Valley Industries 1 to $34, Dome Petroleum 1 to $66½, Elks Stores ¾ to $14 and Asbestos Corp. ¾ to $39¼.

Campbell Red Lake Mines jumped 1½ to $44¾, Sigma Mines Quebec ¾ to $40¼ and United Siscoe Mines ⅜ to $8½. Ego Mines declined ⅞ to $8¾ and Campbell Chibougamau A ⅜ to $6⅜.

Amalgamated Bonanza Petroleum gained 1⅜ to $37⅛, Ocelot Industries B ½ to $14½ and Ocelot A ⅜ to $14⅜. Numac Oil and Gas fell ¾ to $34¾ and North Canadian Oils ¾ to $11⅝.

New York

Brokers said some traders seemed to be selling in the belief that the market's recent rally had run its course for the moment, especially with pressure on the dollar persisting.

The dollar declined against leading foreign currencies today, and the price of gold soared in London to a record of $207-plus an ounce.

Gold mining shares advanced broadly, following the lead of the bullionprice. Dome Mines gained ¾ to $82½; Campbell Red Lake 1¼ to $39⅜; Homestake Mining ⅞ to $39¾, and ASA ¼ to $26¾.

Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Prices were mainly higher in moderate trading on the Montreal Stock Exchange. Texasgulf was up ⅞ at $23¾, Noranda A ¼ at $30, Interprovincial Pipe Lines ⅛ at $16½, CP Ltd. ⅛ at $20¾ and Reitman A ¼ at $17. Falconbridge Nickel A was off ¼ at $24¾, Bank of Montreal ¼ at $22¼ and Zeller's A ⅛ at $8⅞. Among speculative issues, Silver Stack Mines was up 13 cents at $1.75 on a volume of 25,300 shares traded.

London

LONDON (CP) — Speculation over a possible reduction in the minimum lending rate sent the London stock market sharply higher today near the close of moderate trading. The Financial Times index was up 5.2 to 494.6 an hour before the close. Lending equities advanced, while gold issues moved sharply higher with international bullion prices. Canadian stocks eased.

CATTLE

CALGARY (CP) — Receipts to 11 a.m. at the Calgary public stockyards totalled 650 head on a normal supply of all classes of slaughter cattle.

Trade was active on slaughter heifers with a good local and west coast demand. Slaughter steers and cows met a moderate local demand. A1-2 slaughter steers traded steady. Slaughter heifers sold 50 cents higher with sales to 57.25.

A1-2 over 1,000 lbs. 60.50-62.50, A1-2 under 1,000 lbs. 60-61.50. A1-2 Heifers over 850 lbs. 55-57, A1-2 under 850 lbs. 54.50-55.50. D1-2 cows 40-42.50, D3-38-40, D5 36-38. Good bulls 48-53.

Several loads of 1,000-pound short-keep feeder steers traded active at steady prices. Good feeder steers over 1,000 lbs. sold from 61-62.80.

Australia Eyes Energy Boom

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Australia is on the threshold of huge oil and natural-gas activity, hoping it will bolster export earnings and buttress a sagging economy.

In the remote northwest, four major consortia are investing up to $500 million to explore the Exmouth Plateau where Indian Ocean waters are 10 times deeper than in Europe's North Sea oilfield.

In the adjoining Northwest Shelf, an oil group is on the way to reducing the odds to ensure their proposed $3.5-billion natural-gas project will prove profitable once production starts in the mid-1980s.

More than 3,200 kilometres away, in the southwest, an Exxon subsidiary and Australia's Broken Hill Property Ltd. plan to spend $1 billion during the next decade to develop their rich Bass Strait oilfields.

Elsewhere in Australia, the search for oil and natural gas is picking up on long-neglected, but less-attractive, onshore prospects.

Many causes have led to the upsurge of activity after the declining exploration trend started from the 1964 peak. A drastic tumble occurred during the three-year term of the former Labor party government, which imposed strict controls on foreign ownership of resources.

Under increasing pressure from oil producers and explorers, the current Liberal-Country party coalition of Prime Minister Malcolm Fraser has removed most of the uncertainties that worry the industry.

Fraser agreed to guarantee full world price levels for new oil finds and to increase by more than 400 per cent current domestic crude-oil prices, the two measures jointly becoming the major incentive.

In recent weeks, he has backed down from a pledge to introduce a super tax designed to siphon off excessively high oil profits.

Partly because of the promise of higher prices, Esso and Broken Hill have been able to boost oil reserves at their equally owned Bass Strait operation, leading to optimistic Australian press reports that a little more time has been bought before the oil crunch of the 1980s.

Some observers say this optimism may be somewhat misplaced. Current oil reserves, of about 2.5 billion barrels, are being rapidly depleted and output from the Bass Strait, which produces 90 per cent of the daily output of 400,000 barrels, will see oil flows drop in the 1980s.

As a result of the higher predicted reserves, Australia's current ability to produce 65 per cent of its domestic oil needs will fall to 45 per cent by 1985, instead of the previously forecast 30-per-cent level.
